PRESSURE EASES ON DOLLAR

LONDON (UPI) — Pressure on the dollar eased today and the U.S. currency held firm on the European money markets. One financial barometer, gold, dropped $1.25 an ounce following two days of brisk trading. (See also Page 45).

In London the pound became slightly more expensive to buy with dollars, though the changes were measured in fractions of a cent. It opened today at $2.48175, marginally higher than Tuesday's close. In early trading the dollar dropped by another 15 hundredths of a cent.

Bill 42 Delay Rejected

The Social Credit opposition in the legislature today moved an amendment which would delay second reading of Bill 42 for six months.

The amendment was moved by Ed Smith (SC-North Peace) who was winding up his participation in the second reading debate of the Land Commission Act. (See earlier debate on Page 45.)

After a fiery debate, the amendment was defeated, with the government crushing the combined opposition by a vote of 32 to 17. Debate then continued on the principles of Bill 42.

All three opposition parties expressed strong support for the amendment, but government spokesmen including Premier Barrett, rejected it, saying it was designed as a delaying tactic.

Barrett said the effect of the six-month delay would be to "let the subdividers go at it again."

Opposition leader W. A. C. Bennett rose for the first time during debate: "Don't shove this down the people's throats so quickly," he told the government.

"It's not easy to take a seat and look, I know," he said to Barrett, "but if you do you will go down in history as a great premier."

Opposition leader W. A. C. Bennett said he is a dictator and will remove him from office." Bennett said, adding that in his public life he has never seen the people of the province so "aroused" about one particular piece of legislation.

The debate on the amendment was by far the most heated witnessed in this session of the legislature. Members shouted across the floor of the house, banged their desks to make their points, and speaker Gordon Dowding had to repeatedly call for order.

Gordon Gurdom (L-Vancouver Point Grey) said what the government is doing is "practising closure."

"If we were governing this province," he said, "we would not bring in a lousy bill like this. We would consult with the general public." He urged the government to conduct public hearings on the bill in accordance with the citizens' right to a "fair hearing before the highest court of the province, which is this legislature."

"The premier is denying them their democratic rights," Gurdom said.

WOUNDED KNEE 'ONLY START'

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Wounded Knee is only the beginning of overt Indian unrest that might result in similar incidents in Canada, a group of Indians who have returned from the South Dakota community said Tuesday.

Bob Atone, a leader of the London chapter of the American Indian Movement (AIM), said there are 4,000 Indians from all over North America in the towns surrounding Wounded Knee.

Those Indians are there to show support for the 250 Oglala Sioux inside the hamlet on the Pine Ridge Reserve, he said.

A group of 25 left London two weeks ago to observe the Wounded Knee situation.

In Wounded Knee, Indian moderates have ousted members of AIM who were leading the occupation. This apparently clears the way for a peaceful end to the four-week-old siege.

A less-militant group of Oglala Sioux is reported to have taken command in the historic settlement, seized Feb. 27 by a band of armed Indians demanding a better deal from the U.S. government.

South Dakota Senator James Abourzak, who has been in close touch with the situation, said the moderates want a meeting with the government in nearby Rapid City today.

Lawyer Ramon Roubideaux said in Wounded Knee: "We could have terminated this problem earlier if it wasn't for the shenanigans of AIM, but AIM is out of it now."

Federal officials at the scene said they understood that Dennis Banks and Russell Means, two militant leaders of AIM, left Wounded Knee two days ago.

GUARD REMINDS HIM OF WIFE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A San Quentin prisoner filed suit Tuesday charging it is cruel and unusual punishment to have women guards subject him to "cruel and unusual punishment in violation of the 9th Amendment to the United States Constitution."

The prison recently hired two women correctional officers, Bonnie Briggs and Wilma Snider, both of whom were named as defendants.

The prisoner said he has lost certain rights but personal modesty was not among them. He said his privacy is being invaded because the women guards watch him as he bathes and take care of his other personal needs.

"Defendant Snider is an almost exact duplicate of plaintiff's wife and when plaintiff sees this defendant he is reminded of the fact that he may not hold his wife and demonstrate his love to her," Hand said.

"By seeing defendant Snider, plaintiff is being subjected to deprivations of his past life and is subjected to what is tantamount to a carrot on a string in that he is able to see the defendants as women, but is unable to compete for their affections as such is totally against the rules."

Hand is serving a sentence of eight years to life for convictions of kidnap, rape and other offenses.

BATTLE SWELLS IN CAMBODIA

Times News Services

PHNOM PENH — Communist forces pushed to within 15 miles of Phnom Penh in fighting along Highway 1 today despite the 21st consecutive day of bombing raids by U.S. B-52 bombers and other warplanes.

In Washington, the White House said U.S. bombing would continue as long as Communists press their offensive in Cambodia, the only country in Southeast Asia with no formal ceasefire.

Oppel, wearing a long mustache, stepped off the plane into bright sunshine with a big smile on his face and a longish shock of hair blowing freely in the wind. He looked thin and pale, but in good physical shape.

U.S. officials said Oppel was expected here to undergo medical checks here and then was to fly by CP Air to Vancouver.

Oppel was captured with another missionary, Samuel Mattix, of Centralia, Wash., when the southern town of Kingkok, Laos, was overrun five months ago. Two women missionaries with them were killed by fire when they were tied to a stake in a house and the house was set ablaze. Mattix was also released.

Highrise Burials

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — People who like living in highrises may soon be able to spend eternity in them.

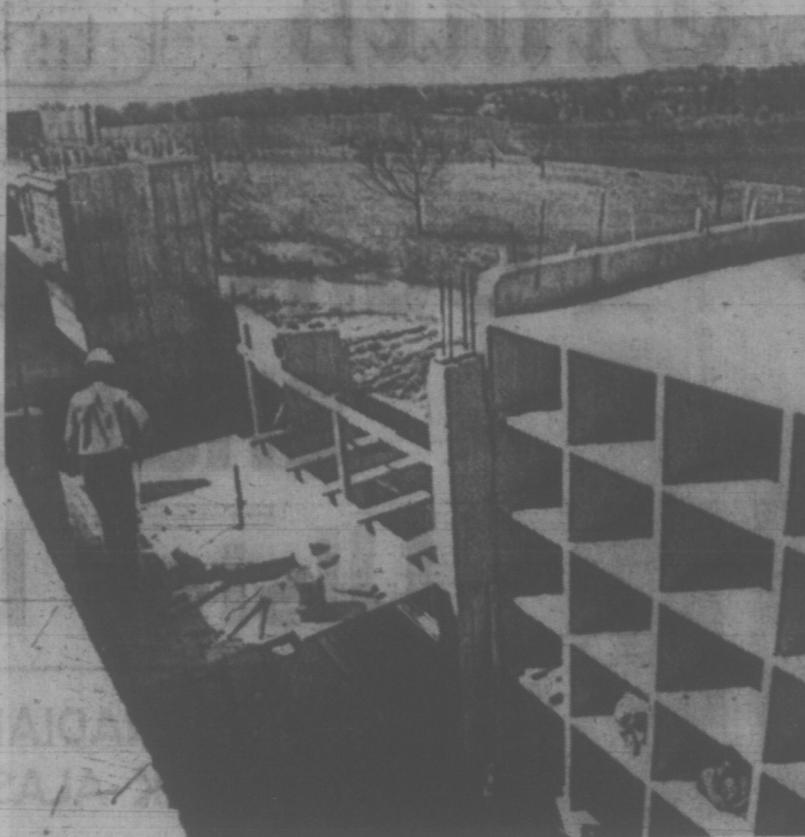

Two years ago, Woodlawn Mortuary Inc. began construction in south Nashville of a high-rise mausoleum which the company says promises to write the tombstone's epitaph. At least two more are planned in Tennessee, one near here and one in Knoxville.

The first floor at Woodlawn's 20-story mausoleum here will open early this summer with 2,183 crypts for above-ground burial. The company says demand is so great it will begin construction soon on a second one in suburban Hendersonville.

At Knoxville, Memorial Estates and Investment Co. has announced plans to build its own high-rise mausoleum.

"I don't think there is any question that this is the thing of the future," says John E. Snively, a Woodlawn official. "For one thing, we are running out of land and need it to grow food."

In addition, he said the cost of labor "has made it pretty expensive to dig graves."

tagonists generally, according to LeDain studies, is that the addict can turn to other drugs, such as alcohol and barbituates, which are not blocked by the chemical. In fact, since the use of a chemical antagonist does not in fact treat and remove the underlying causes of drug addiction, it is considered likely that many addicts would resort to other drugs.

Campbell answers: "But then you might prefer the addict to use alcohol or barbituates, and dry up the illicit heroin demand."

Other Commission members question whether society actually is better off with tens of thousands more alcoholics or barbituate addicts.

Again, the Addiction Research Foundation Journal, in an editorial, on antagonists concludes "it is not only naive to anticipate that any one chemical will obliterate narcotic dependence, but it may be counterproductive."

DON'T EXIST

Chemical cures for heroin probably not only don't exist, but suggesting they might

exist could convince some Canadians to try heroin on the false assumption that treatment and cure does exist, chairman Dean LeDain says.

The LeDain Commission feels that antagonists must be considered as one of the number of many possible approaches to treatment of heroin addiction. Some commission members predict that Canadians will be faced with important decisions about the use of antagonists in as little as two or three years, if better antagonists are developed and if the present oral methadone program is pushed to its maximum as far as attracting addicts to be treated and rehabilitated.

In other words, the antagonist issue will likely come up for discussion and decision at the same time as the heroin maintenance issue comes to a head.

HIGH PRIORITY

It should be noted that the commission, in its drug treatment report last year, urged the government to give high priority to the development of antagonists for amphetamines, "speed."

The commission has said

there is a progressive link between "speed" use and heroin use, in part because both types of drug abuse involve the "intravenous or needle route" of administering the drug.

Both the antagonist and the "speed" addicts off to an island" approaches fall under the controversial area of "compulsory treatment," an area the LeDain Commission has tried to stay away from as much as possible.

The commission favors maximizing treatment and rehabilitation; it favors the "indulgence" approach; it does not seem to favor forcing addicts to be treated and rehabilitated.

The main problem with the various proposals to isolate all heroin addicts, as LeDain sees it, is that in Canada at least, the present democratic system would make such solutions unacceptable.

He admits that such approaches do look attractive, if radical solutions that "work" are what society wants.

Other commission members argue that society might actually lose if it did ship everyone off, instead of trying to rehabilitate some or all of them.

Peter Stein, the Edmonton social worker, notes that the heroin user is not the "abnormal beast" society has branded him as being for so many years.

Parole officers and social workers in Vancouver, where heroin has been a major problem for many years, "continue to be amazed at how bright and energetic heroin addicts are," especially when compared to alcoholics, Stein maintains.

"You're not dealing with a 'wipe-out' guy," Stein says. The heroin addict has to be tough and bright to be able to survive, to be able to hustle in the street every day for his money and his heroin.

Stein also makes the plea that the "repugnance society feels towards the heroin addict" must be broken down if the heroin addiction problem is to be dealt with properly and if the heroin addict who leaves his drug problem behind is to be able to return to society.

Stream Greenbelt 'Harmful'

Forestry firms today urged the provincial government to permit selective logging right to the edge of streams.

In a brief prepared for presentation today, the B.C. Truck Loggers Association said leaving a green belt of 66 feet of uncut timber at streams could do more harm than good.

Old trees could blow down, plugging the streams and tearing the banks.

The logging firms said there should be a selective cut, leaving older, maple and small conifer trees.

"Rather than a policy of leaving strips of timber that will blow down, we feel it is prudent to log to the stream edge leaving those trees that can stand," the brief says.

GOOD FISHING

The Vedder River near Chilliwack and the Nanaimo River have both been logged to the edge in past and fishing is still good in both of them, the brief says.

The brief was presented today to the legislature committee on forestry and fisheries, which is studying the effects of new guidelines for the forestry industry.

The Truck Loggers Association called for a commission or judicial inquiry to determine forest management policy for the next 20 years.

The commission could help to sort out what the association called a three-way battle involving the forest service which wants timber cut, the fish and wildlife branch which isn't sure and the department of recreation which is opposed to timber cutting.

The brief says timber stands are more important to British Columbia than farms and timber harvest more important than harvest of agricultural crops.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Henry Harrington remembers that it was rainy and foggy as he climbed over the railing of the Golden Gate bridge for his 247-foot suicide plunge to the chill waters of the San Francisco Bay.

"I was hanging on—wait-—do I have the guts?" he said Monday on his first visit to the bridge since his November, 1971, death try. He recalled:

"Some man came running out of the fog, yelling. I got mad, cursed him and leaped. I had my arms out—stretched like Jonathan Seagull."

"On the way I felt, 'Gee, this is a long way down!' My feet hit the water first."

His back struck the concrete moat at the base of the tower and he lost consciousness for a few seconds when he hit the water.

When he came to, he was disappointed he hadn't died.

"No, I was swimming around, yelling for help. My finger found a notch in the concrete. I held on enough to give me stability."

He was rescued by a coast guard cutter.

"I punctured a lung, broke a couple ribs and had back contusions," Harrington said. He was in hospital for more than a year after a splenectomy operation and now is an out-patient at McAuley Neuropsychiatric Institute, St. Mary's Hospital, here.

Why did he leap?

"I'm still asking myself," said Harrington, 37. "I think I may have been possessed by the demons. I was crazy."

Harrington is one of only six known survivors in leaps from the famous span which connects the city with Marin County.

Harrington said he survived the 247-foot jump because "there was some higher person helping me."

HE JUMPED—AND LIVED

OTTAWA (CP) — The government plans a study of the odd mixture of authorities operating ports and harbors, it was announced Tuesday.

The transport department said Pierre Camu, head of the department's marine administration, suggested new legislation bringing harbors boards and harbor commissions under one act.

Port authorities operate under the National Harbors Board Act, the Harbor Commissioners Act or special local acts.

In Vancouver, for example, the Port of Vancouver is administered by the National Harbors Board. Nearby, there is the Fraser River Harbor Commission at New Westminster.

In addition, there is the North Arm of the Fraser River Commission which deals with local matters such as barge traffic.

DUDE RUSTLERS FLY? Damp Jokes Snuffed by British Winter

CORNING, Iowa (AP) — Rustlers may be using helicopters as lookout points while stealing livestock, says Adams County sheriff Merlin Dixon.

Monday night and early Tuesday, lawmen and citizens "from probably 10 counties" used cars to chase unsuccessfully two helicopters, Dixon said. "We've spotted these helicopters off and on for the last three or four weeks, but we haven't been in position to do any serious chasing."

The sheriff said: "We're not saying they're involved in rustling. We're just looking into the possibility they may be. But if they're rustlers getting this sophisticated, we might just as well hang it all up."

"You bat your heads against the board of supervisors for $30 to keep a radio running, and those dudes are up there in $30,000 helicopters. You can't compete with them."

Dixon said the theory is that the helicopters hover over livestock herds at night while men on the ground load the cattle into it.

"They could just be staying up there to see if anybody is coming while the guys on the ground are loading."

"Southern Iowa is the grazing area of the state, and livestock losses have been heavier in the last 15 to 18 months — ever since the price of cattle and hogs went up to make them worth stealing," Dixon said.

By ROD CURRIES
LONDON (CP) — Many in Britain are anxiously watching the skies these days for signs of — are you ready for it? — rain.

Traditionally the butt of jokes about its damp climate, Britain has just gone through its driest winter in almost 40 years and the experts predict a drought unless rainfall increases during the summer.

Maps published by the West German weather bureau indicate an extraordinarily dry winter in much of North America and the Soviet Union as well.

Other experts note that while Britain last year was having its coolest and driest summer in living memory, the Mediterranean countries were plagued by cyclones and heavy rain. Earlier, the winter wheat crop in Russia died in frozen ground because the traditional snow cover never arrived. The protective snow came in time this year but later than usual.

European weather scientists generally blame a vast high pressure area over the Arctic that has been building for 10 years, resulting in a spreading cooling process.

Rainfall in Britain during February was down to 59 per cent of average and although tourists and those in the tourist industry are delighted by the sunny skies and promises of a bright summer, many experts warn of dire long-term consequences.

For instance, in reference to Britain's cool summer last year, some experts have calculated that an over-all average temperature drop of even one degree would dramatically reduce agricultural yields and mean longer snow cover in some areas. In the context of the energy shortage, they warn that fuel demand would increase notably.

Although there is little or no public concern, some quarters are agitating for greater emphasis on long-term weather forecasting.

Two London newspapers have advocated government assistance for Britain's climatic research unit at the University of East Anglia, the only such unit in Europe. The university team notes that temperatures measured since 1920 at the most northerly recording station on Franz Josef Island in the Arctic have dropped five centigrade degrees in the last 10 years.

Some scientists have suggested that the solving of long-term weather mysteries should command as much financial support as the daily weather forecasts, on which the British government spends millions every year.

TV, Radio Rap Liquor Ad Ban

Television and radio stations in B.C. are being discriminated against because they are not allowed by law to carry liquor and tobacco advertisements, the legislature's social welfare and education committee was told today.

The complaint came from the B.C. Association of Broadcasters in a brief to the committee, which is studying the field of tobacco and alcohol advertising in the province.

The association, represented by Dale Elton, past president, Bob Hall, president, and Ray Peters, president of the B.C. TV network, contend that the legislation prohibiting radio and television stations from advertising liquor and tobacco products puts the stations at a disadvantage in comparison to newspapers and television stations piped in by cable from the United States.

"The reasons for the discrimination have never been clear," the brief said. "It is quite clear, however, that in B.C. there is one law for broadcasters and another for newspapers when it comes to liquor and tobacco advertising."

The brief referred to the findings of the 1970 Morrow commission on liquor which found that advertising policy was "inequitable in that it discriminated against the electronic media as well as other forms of printed media."

If the policy was intended to protect the public from invasion by liquor advertising through the electronic media, "this commission indicates it was a complete failure."

The association urged the committee to recommend to the legislature a "sensible, equitable and non-discriminatory policy for the regulation of liquor and tobacco advertising on the basis of some long lost reason which may have been valid in 1930 but certainly has no validity today."

Lone 'No' Dims TV In House

Permit was refused in the legislature this morning for television crews from the CBC and CTV to film the first 15 minutes of house proceedings.

The first objection was raised by Allan Williams (L-West Vancouver-Howe Sound) who said a special committee of the house is examining the whole matter of televising legislative proceedings, the committee has presented no report and until some positive recommendations are made the house should not continue to amend its rules and procedures on an ad-hoc basis for the benefit of television crews.

Opposition Leader W. A. C. Bennett said the Social Credit party was in favor of allowing the crews to film, but Graham Lee (NDP-Prince Rupert), chairman of the special television committee, agreed with Williams.

When the matter was put to a voice vote, the only "no" came from Phyllis Young (NDP — Vancouer-Little Mountain), also a member of the committee.

As unanimous leave of the house is required to suspend rules, the speaker had to ask the television crews to leave and moments later the harsh lights were dimmed.

Arms Buildup Exaggerated

LONDON (UPI) — Western diplomatic sources said Tuesday that investigations show a reported Soviet arms and troop buildup in the Far East is exaggerated.

Unofficial reports earlier suggested military buildup had reached crisis levels on the border with China, especially along the sensitive Sino-Ki ng border and in Mongolia.

We Are Not Part of the War

Extension of Canada's participation in the International Commission of Control and Supervision in Vietnam for another two months was not unexpected and appears to be an acceptable compromise. To criticisms that External Affairs Minister Sharp is pursuing an on-again-off-again plan in regard to the Canadian contingent, surely it is a sufficient answer to say that the Vietnam peace is by no means a hard and fast situation, and therefore a hard and fast policy is not feasible in dealing with it.

There is a job that the Canadian Commission members can do. So far it falls far short of the on-the-spot supervision and effective reporting of true infractions which Canada wanted to perform. The delaying actions and deliberate evasions of the Communist members of the Commission are preventing proper functioning of the four-nation teams. But if Canada continues the policy of full publicity for all the Commission's decisions and actions — or lack of them — and does not become fog-bound in the stalemate which is being imposed, then at least a minimum service will be rendered. If the world cannot see what is being done, it will at least hear of what is not being done, and whose fault it is.

The Commission apparently is to receive little back-up support from either Saigon or Hanoi, which are pursuing their own interests. These appear to involve a frantic build-up of forces and equipment rather than any ready intention to obey the terms of the Paris agreement. With departure for home of the last United States servicemen and prisoners of war Thursday, the North and South governments, plentifully supplied with armaments, will confront each other alone for the first time in years. That is not a situation likely to last long without action.

If the further programmed steps of the political peacemaking are not taken on schedule, the fighting which still persists in some parts of South Vietnam may be expanded rapidly. This will confront the truce supervisory Commission with a state of war and render its further presence meaningless. Mr. Sharp should lose no time, under such circumstances, in getting the Canadian personnel out of the country.

It may be that such a denouement will come well before the new May 31 deadline. If so, there should be no cheap attempts by Ottawa critics to make political capital out of the situation. Canada has offered its help in an important job and is prepared to carry on as long as there is a peace to supervise — but no longer.

Still in Prospect

The degree to which national interests will intrude in next year's United Nations law of the sea conference have been clearly indicated in preliminary reports from the 91-nation committee meeting in New York to prepare for the major 1974 event. Faculties have emerged championing different areas of sovereignty, or fisheries jurisdiction, that should be established at the international gathering.

This was the rock on which the last conference of this nature founded — a lack of agreement on what might properly be regarded as a maritime country's specific preserves. The broad division currently involves a dispute over a 12-mile limit reportedly favored by the United States and the Soviet Union and a 200-mile limit favored by developing nations with the support of China.

Failure of the earlier conference led to a foreseeable development. Various nations set their own limits unilaterally, with the majority of South American countries and the United States declaring jurisdiction over sea and seabed 200 miles from their shores. Others, Canada included, settled for much less.

It is reasonable to assume, however, that the example of the South American nations will leave less demanding countries dissatisfied with the more modest claims they have made. On Canada's west coast, for instance, pressure increases to extend territorial limits to the edge of the continental shelf.

Failure to reach accord next year will presumably result in the continuation of present frictions, dramatically exemplified in the conflict between Iceland and Britain and between some South American countries and the United States. While workable compromises appear to have reduced tension between Canada and nations fishing near this coast, decisions on such matters seem to rest more directly on expediency than on principle.

The committee meeting this month has raised the storm warnings. They cannot be ignored.

More Ups and Downs Ahead

TORONTO — According to most of those who did the deed, it was a sad, black day when the Ontario Legislature ended the elevator constructors' strike with legislation that ordered the strikers back to work and imposed compulsory arbitration of their dispute with their employers.

The Minister of Labor, Fernand Guindon, was unhappy because it was the first time an Ontario government had applied compulsory arbitration to a strike in the private sector of the economy. The Liberal opposition, while agreeing the deed had to be done, was unhappy because the government had not been more energetic in trying to head it off.

The New Democratic Party was so upset that it fought the bill at every turn in the hope that the government would adopt a rather tortuous NDP alternative of ordering the strikers back to work until the decision of an arbitration board, which would not be binding on the parties, was handed down.

Compulsion Justified

One can only wonder why everyone was so unhappy. If ever there was an industrial dispute where compulsory arbitration can be justified, it is the nationwide strike by the International Union of Elevator Constructors against five elevator manufacturers. The only question is why it wasn't resorted to months ago.

Quebec, which bans strikes and lockouts in the construction industry, ordered the strikers under its jurisdiction back to work on Jan. 26. The British Columbia Supreme Court ruled the strike illegal in that province on the same date, and the Appeal Court upheld the judgment, but the men have not yet returned to work.

The contracts between the union and the five companies expired last April 30. Since then, the two sides have agreed on only seven minor language changes in a new contract. Intensive conciliation and mediation efforts by Mr. Guindon and the Ontario Ministry of Labor have been totally fruitless. It has been obvious from the beginning that the differences are intractable and that a settlement had to be imposed, unless the government was prepared to tolerate hazards to public safety, stalled housing projects, and so on.

The differences are intractable because the obstacle from the beginning has been the issue of "management rights". Everything else has been hung up by the union's insistence on, and management's rejection of, certain clauses concerning the hiring and training of employees, and who may do what in the construction and installation of elevators. While in some respects the union is only insisting on what has been tacit practice, the companies contend they are being asked to surrender their right to manage, and will have none of it.

The union wants control of employee hiring through a hiring hall system to which contractors would go for mechanics and helpers. It also wants to control a crunch example of what is becoming the cardinal problem in modern industrial relations, namely, assertions by employees that they should have some control over matters which have traditionally been regarded as the prerogatives of management. It is a fair guess that this issue will dominate collective bargaining for some years to come, and that the future will see considerable encroachment by workers into the preserves of managerial rights.

It would of course be preferable to have this evolution decided by collective bargaining, but lacking that possibility in the elevator industry, the opposition of the pro-labor NDP to compulsory arbitration is difficult to understand, given the probability of union gains.

The Ontario bill sending the strikers back to work provides that all issues in dispute will be subject to arbitration by a three-man board consisting of a nominee from each side and a chairman appointed by the Minister of Labor. It seems highly likely therefore that arbitration will give the employees something by way of managerial rights, which is more than they have been able to get after seven months of arguing. At least they will get their foot in the door, and they may even achieve a real breakthrough.

With the Union

Significantly, the union has not opposed arbitration while the companies have denounced it, and perhaps with good reason. At one point, they offered to submit everything to arbitration except those issues involving managerial rights but the union refused, and the government in drafting its legislation has in effect gone along with the union.

To the NDP, however, the precedent of compulsory arbitration was too much to bear. Henceforth, its members warned, it will hang over the collective bargaining process like Damocles' sword, destroying the incentive to bargain freely and applicable whenever there is a public cry that a strike has gone on too long.

Many will no doubt answer: It's about time. There is nothing sacrosanct about collective bargaining; indeed, the assumption that collective bargaining is per se in the public interest can be shown, all too frequently, to be a fallacy. Compulsory arbitration may not be the ideal alternative but at least it proceeds from the principle that the public interest is paramount, which is precisely why the government invoked it in the elevator strike.

job promotion without assessment by the employer as to an employee's skill and ability. The companies reply they must remain responsible for the quality and safety of their products.

On the question of work jurisdiction, the union insists that only elevator constructors assemble elevator equipment, whereas the old contract provided that electricians and iron workers may be involved. This was not enforced for on-the-job installations but the union fears the companies intend to invoke it for equipment pre-assembled in their plants. The companies deny it but still reject the union demand on the ground that it would prevent improvements in elevator design and installation efficiency.

It is not necessary to take sides on these questions to recognize that they

I wonder if the "girls" (ex-nuns), picketing Sandringham are praying for the staunch and faithful nuns at St. Mary's Priory as your cartoonist, (Victoria Times, March 26), seems to imagine.

Eastern 'Moral Decline' Not All Outsiders' Fault

Asians Edgy About West

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH
The London Observer

Saigon bargirls . . . we're blamed for break-up of the family

SINGAPORE — As rival Powers with axes to grind nobly step forward and offer to put a shattered Vietnam together again, aid is in danger of becoming a dirty word. Investment is already suspect, for today many Southeast Asians fear a neo-colonial take-over — economic, cultural, perhaps political — by a West that has made a miserable mess of Indo-China, built up multinational corporations that could buy and sell the national economies of many States in this region before breakfast, and developed in the hippie cult a psychosomatic ulcer that betrays its own sick condition.

Earlier this month the South Koreans imposed restrictions to halt "increasing foreign domination" of major local industries, and Malaysians are looking narrowly at foreign companies that plough little back into the native soil they are mining for dividends, but are bent on making quick money and transferring it abroad.

In Singapore also, ministers speak darkly of aliens who try to "dominate the economy with foreign capital" and must be prevented from "buying over" the Republic. The rich intruder is accused of bringing in executives from outside, of stealing skilled workers from local competitors, buying up the island in speculative property deals, forcing prices to soar, secretly financing political parties. Asia is edgy again about the white man from the wicked West whose baggage can be equally dangerous, whether it contains dollars or decadence. Expatiate academics from Europe and America have come under fire, and the University of Singapore is now trying to recruit staff from Asian countries. The 19th century acronym "wog," once coined by the West from "Wily Oriental Gentleman" and used as a disdainful epithet for Arabs, has been deliberately amended to mean "Westernized Oriental Gentleman" and adopted here as a disdainful epithet for "brainless young" Asians who ape "negative Western styles of life."

Governments are meanwhile taking defensive action to preserve "Asia's" moral values."

South Koreans can be jailed for wearing hot-pants, for spitting in public and jumping queues, while in Thailand women can be arrested for wearing backless dresses and men for not wearing shirts. Miniskirts are banned in the Malayan Parliament, and loud skirts and tight jeans in Malaysian schools. In Manila and Bangkok, drug traffickers have been publicly executed by firing squads, and in the Singapore Parliament last week it was proposed that pushers should be deliberately turned into addicts as a punishment.

However, the announcements of the curbs themselves often disclose that local abuse can be as pernicious as the imported variety. Thal officers who take bribes from youths anxious to avoid military service are being thrown into prison, and Filipino civil servants are now forbidden to accept presents of any kind on any occasion. Malaysian officials promise to stamp out corruption among the police, but meanwhile a senator in Kuala Lumpur somewhat revealingly deplores the heavier penalties imposed for traffic offences on the grounds that drivers will simply have to pay heavier fines to traffic cops.

The most enthusiastic response to the call of the somewhat puritanical Singapore government for a "rugged society" that leaves vice to foreign visitors has come from those eager to learn the martial arts of the Orient — Kung Fu, Tae kwon-do, Karate, Aikido and the rest of the rougher games they play in this part of the world. The result has been an uncontrollable proliferation of pugilistic academies, the emergence of the black-belt bully-boy, and a spate of brawls that has alarmed the government. In consequence an official Martial Arts Control Unit is to be created to enable it to censor schools of violence, as it already censors films of violence.

It is not Western films primarily that come under the guillotine for excessive blood-spilling and brutality, but Chinese films made mainly in Hong Kong, and the sword-fighting, ston-fisted stars of these enjoy the hero-worship elsewhere reserved for bull-fighters or centre-figures.

Now is the West responsible for infamous rackets like the Chap-Ji-Kee numbers lottery run by Chinese who pocket 80 per cent of the pitances they take in from housewives and humble wash-wahs hooked on this daily gamble, giving 20 per cent of their take in prizes. Three syndicates in Singapore have been making more than $35 million a year of housekeeping money and hard-earned wages out of the fraud, which flourishes along with the extortion, drug-peddling, gang-war and pimping that so profitably fill the working day of sworn-in members of the island's secret societies.

game, has protested that its wholly laudable object is to tempt the public away from illegal gambling swindles like Chap-Ji-Kee by offering an official short-cut to wealth. Asia has evolved the martial arts, others stress, purely for defence against evil-doers and the protection of the weak. Pious arguments are also advanced to explain why Western pornography is still but Eastern pornography is only morally uplifting — the Kama Sutra teaches a wife to make herself eternally exciting to her husband, so that he will not be tempted to stray. The Chinese novel, Golden Lotus, is a stern lesson on the bitter wages of unbridled lust (the bitter wages nevertheless come after four volumes largely filled with blow-by-blow accounts of titillating bedroom acrobatics).

There is another side to the coin, however — the hapless post-graduate youngster nagged by parents who still want them to account for every minute of their day, the arraigned marriages, the ruinously expensive wedding ceremonies, the semi-slavery of young wives and the tyranny of mother-in-law in this game of so-called "happy families" that the West once played but gave up for club canasta. Racial and religious chauvinists who pontificate about the glories of oriental society and the degeneracy of the West are members of a conspiracy in hypocrisy that covers up much home-made misery in the Far East — the original heartland of the opium pipe, the lethal chop, hippie philosophy, porn, conning and cumshaw (from the Chinese hsieh). They obstruct the attempts of perceptive Asian leaders to establish a valid position for their continent in the world today, for this cannot be done until they stop blaming their troubles on the all-too-obvious shortcomings and sins of the West, and take a good, long, cold, hard look at the East.

But the Western way of life has also been blamed for the break-up of the family, the rebellion of the more restless young who no longer wish to live in the same houses as their parents and grandparents. Ministers plead for continued respect for the ancient traditions of the East, which make the coherent family the basis of a stable society. And it is easy to this is a ridiculous waste of time, would cut to the bone of a great reality. If our MPs didn't fill their record with speeches what else would there be for them to do?

This is a much more exciting Parliament than the last one. It seems to me to be above average in terms of talent and ambition.

Recently I've had the chance to watch two state legislatures in the U.S. at work. The longest speech rarely reached the 5-minute limit. Yes . . . 5 minutes. The attendance of legislators at the sessions was always as high as 80 per cent of the total. Yes . . . 80 per cent or more in the chamber.

Now it's useless, at this time, to go into the contrasts of the American congressional system and our parliamentary system. Each has its virtues and debits.

The Americans will not sit, day after day, by the hour, listening to long speeches.

The Canadians will not sit, day after day, listening to long speeches. At least most of them won't. The average audience of fellow MPs at any speech in the Commons is probably about 40 (out of 264 MPs).

But the Americans gave up long speeches long ago. Our practice continues, even though few MPs listen, even though almost no one from the media listens, even though ministers and senior government officials rarely bother to listen to such speeches or even to read them after they are put in Hansard's print.

It's madness. It really is. Over the years, thousands of hours of speeches to which almost no attention is given, at the time or when in print.

Last week when I was explaining to a powerful California politician the Canadian penchant for hours and hours of long speeches he commented: "Well at least you must have a lot of great orators."

Of course, we haven't. Perhaps dozens of the present 264 have the powers to rouse or exasperate or entertain their fellows.

Why, then, does the barrage of largely uninterrupted talk go on?

To a large degree, I think, because to question it, to say the answers.

The British, to their credit, know the worth and efficacy of the long (so-called) debate have disappeared so they arrange with great ruthlessness that each debate shall be limited to a handful of speakers.

The Canadians talk on and on, without listening to each other. Some sweet fools among them even advocate piping the performances out to the nation through television. Ugh.

They're Talking, Who's Listening?

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — It's been eight years since I had to listen to speeches in the House of Commons. "Had to . . ." simply because as an MP I had to fill a seat a portion of the time. Much of the listening then was occasional and random. I was fulfilling party duty. I was helping sustain the illusion that speeches in the House are important.

Recently I've had the chance to watch two state legislatures in the U.S. at work. The longest speech rarely reached the 5-minute limit. Yes . . . 5 minutes. The attendance of legislators at the sessions was always as high as 80 per cent of the total. Yes . . . 80 per cent or more in the chamber.

There's Been No Moral Decline

THE MYTH OF THE 'GOOD OLD DAYS'

By STANLEY KAUFFMANN

(From a film review in The New Republic of Save the Tiger, starring Jack Lemmon.)

The whole is presented as a drama of American corruption: how there is no ethics any more — meaning since the days when they were young.

This is nonsense, on two scores. First, there is not one item in this catalogue of decline that could not have been present 30 years before, except the hippie girl, who is herself by now a howling platitudes.

Second, there has been no moral decline from a Golden Age in this country, there was an osmosis of corruption from the top down, and it didn't begin 30 years ago.

For decades the middle and working classes behaved, generally, according to prescribed standards. The morality of power went along with them.

In 1960 Lemmon would have been a manager for a huge manufacturer, scrupulously honest, with no real chance for ethical temptation, or he would have been a small manufacturer with the mentality of a manager. Now he is a small tycoon who — one may say perversely — is so crippled by his heritage of clerkdom that he doesn't have the brass to be a ruthless tycoon.

I suppose this dark view of American ethics is somewhat overstated, but at least it's a corrective to the dreadful sentimentality that this kind of script leans on. Things Used to be Better — the sort of romance that Senator McGovern invoked last fall with his "Come home, America" Come home to what? The Indian Wars, Jay Gould, the Teapot Dome, Gastonia?

Underneath the Currier and Ives trappings, just where was that lost Eden which we want again and which cheap-jack writers try to jerk tears with? There is, probably, some hope for morality in this country, but it doesn't lie in illusions about the past.

Why Stop at Farmland?

By SCOTT YOUNG
The Globe and Mail

There seemed to be at least a slight air of the Lord Gyleth And The Lord Taketh Away, when the Ontario government was lifting the curtain an inch or so the other day on its plans for the future use of farmland.

It starts right there on page 3 of the Throne Speech, which means pretty good priority. Getting a shade closer to the subject on page 5, one paragraph intones plausibly about "strong and reformed local government" having "more authority and responsibility" in local land matters. But in the next paragraph: "My Government will take steps to ensure proper policy co-ordination involving land-use controls . . . so that good farmland may be retained for agricultural purposes."

Translation to the English: "No matter what I said before about local government, in the end Daddy knows best."

Still, there's no real hint of what form these controls will take, so let us worry the subject a little. (I should state here a special interest, in that my wife and I own 100 acres in Cavan Township. But it is not subdivided and we do not intend to sell it unless we go broke in some way unforeseen now, so I am speaking only of principles.)

Most citizens agree that good farmlands and fruitlands should be protected in some way from developers and speculators. But some wise man is going to have to figure out how this can be done without making second-class citizens out of the present owners.

I read the other day a preposterous suggestion by Jack McArthur in The Toronto Star. While it was aimed especially at foreign owners (which is always good for a few yards in the Star) it also forecast that eventually the same rules might apply to Canadian owners. The idea being that no one should be able to profit from the sale of land. The rationale was that land prices rise without any effort by the owners, so that profit should be allowed in an amount equal to the inflation away, all of it.

If Jack McArthur had said that the same rules should apply to anything of any kind bought and sold without improvement, at least that would have had the fairness of universality. It would wipe out the stock market, of course; nobody could buy a stock low and sell it high. Applying the same principle elsewhere, no one could profit from the sale of diamonds, gold, or any other commodity whose value the owner had done nothing to enhance.

But the rules are going to be changed on allowable profit, why stop at farmland? The day no profit is allowed on selling any city property large or small, that will be the day to eliminate profit on country properties.

Will somebody from the Toronto Real Estate Board second that motion?

Meanwhile, I do hope that part of the province's plan will be to buy agricultural land that comes on the market naturally, paying the same market price that a farmer might get from anyone. Some could be developed for recreational purposes — smallish conservation areas for cross-country skiers, snowmobilers, picnickers, hikers, lovers, and just plain loafers. A housing land bank could be built up. And prime farmland could be resold (at no profit, of course; heavens, no) under agreements that would specify agricultural uses only. And we'd all live happily ever after.

Some Protected Again and Again

Stock splits are usually good news for investors but consolidations are something else again.

A consolidation or reverse split is defended as a desperate measure aimed at bailing out a company by calling in all the shares and reselling a handful through a new company.

The Vancouver Stock Exchange defends the practice on the basis that the shares might otherwise be delisted and have no value at all. Thus, although most of the investor's shares vanish, he is being protected.

Some shareholders are "protected" again and again.

For example, an investor buying 1,000 shares of Gem Explorations in January, 1968, would have been hit by two consolidations with an effect of a one-for-twenty rollback.

That leaves 50 shares out of the 1,000 purchased.

In 1968, Gem Explorations became Consolidated Gem Explorations on a one-for-four roll-back.

This year, on Feb. 1, Gem shareholders were protected again with a one-for-five consolidation to form Brendon Resources.

An investor would have paid about $500 for his Gem shares. This week Brendon Resources was trading at 24 cents. The $500 worth of Gem has become $12 worth of Brendon if the investor can get it.

Because the selling commission has to come out of the $12, most investors just file the shares away hoping for a spectacular rise that would make a sale worth the effort. As a result, hundreds of shareholders who bought the shares at 24 cents were postponed at the request of the exchange when members of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges rejected the proposed rates.

The hearings had been scheduled for Jan. 24 but were postponed by the Toronto Stock Exchange, provides for higher charges on small trades and reduced charges on transactions valued at more than $40,000.

Judge Declares Mistrial

An article published Tuesday in The Daily Colonist led Victoria county court Judge M. L. Drake to declare a mistrial in the case of Bernard Mountain, 56, charged with attempted robbery and wounding with intent.

The trial, before a jury of 10 men and two women, was beginning its second day when Drake's order was made.

"I have come to the conclusion, after reading the article, that it is prejudicial to a fair trial," said Drake.

"It is merely that what has been said in the morning paper might make your task much more difficult than it need be," Drake said to the jury.

"I have no doubt at all that any conscientious jurymen is just as embarrassed as a judge is when he learns of matters that he would rather not hear and which would add to his difficulties in performing his judicial duty."

CODE OF JUSTICE

"Had it been shown here that what was published was calculated to interfere with the proper course of justice, that publication would amount to a contempt of court. I don't think in this case that it goes quite as far as that."

"But if, in an account of a trial, a newspaper publishes an account of something that has not taken place in open court, it certainly does so at its peril. I think it should be made very clear to these people that freedom of the press must be exercised with intelligence and discretion, and that was not done in this instance."

Material regarding this trial, which must have come from some source other than this courtroom, has been published. It is material which unquestionably affects the defence, and which to some extent, embarrasses the Crown.

"I have no reason to suppose that is was published out of malice, but simply out of ignorance and stupidity."

NEW TRIAL

In discussing a new trial, Prosecutor Robert Hutchinson said the nearest available date was in June.

Defence counsel Cecil Branson, appointed on a legal aid basis, told the court he would be involved in other matters in June and would inform the legal aid authorities Mountain will require another lawyer.

Drake said he would not sit on the case in the County of Victoria and would leave it up to the attorney-general to decide in which county the trial will be heard.

Wiring Fault Caused Blaze

The cause of a $500 house fire at 2322 Quadra Tuesday was found to be faulty wiring — not vandalism, as it was originally suspected, Victoria Deputy Fire Chief Carl Coates said today.

Further investigation showed that the wiring inside a basement wall was defective, said Coates.

No Offer for Line

EDMONTON (CP) — Industry and Commerce Minister Fred Peacock told the legislature Monday the government has received no written offers for purchase of the Alberta Resources Railway.

Peacock said there were negotiations on the prospect of Northern Alberta Railways offering $2 million to $3 million for part of the ARR.

Want to Buy Oil? Try Britain

Manchester Guardian
LONDON — By and large, the past few years have been difficult times for the international oil companies. They have seen their assets taken over in Libya, Algeria and Iraq, conceded the principle of participation in countries where they still have some assets left, heard threatening noises from the Shah of Iran, paid out extra money as compensation for dollar devaluation, and watched the aggressiveness of a producing country spread to Norway and the North Sea.

It would seem that they are fast running out of friends. Except in Britain, that is. According to a report from the Public Accounts Committee, the oil companies could not have got better terms for North Sea oil exploration and production if they had written them themselves.

The unanimous — and for the government, embarrassing — conclusion of the committee is that Britain has sold its North Sea oil reserves far too cheaply. It attacks the licensing policy for exploration — which has been substantially unchanged since 1964 (when no one knew if there was any oil around) to the latest round last year (when everyone had an idea of the area's vast potential). It also attacks, perhaps even more strongly, the system of taxation for international companies in this country, because this system will enable the oil companies to pay virtually no tax on their North Sea profits — which could be as high as $1.5 billion a year by 1980.

It is only the restraint and discipline of parliamentary language that prevents the report from breaking out in anger over what it considers as nine years of wasted opportunity.

"Under the present arrangements, the UK will not obtain either for the exchequer or the balance of payments anything like the share of the take of oil operations that other countries are obtaining for oil, at present, the only certain revenue from a large number of the North Sea operations is the royalty and license payments."

As politicians and oil companies never tire of pointing out, North Sea oil will go a long way to reducing Britain's dependence on the volatile middle east for its oil supplies. "By 1980 we should be producing about 75 million tons a year."

Oil exploration in the deep and turbulent waters is an extremely expensive business, but it is clear that the profits will justify the effort. The department of trade and industry estimated that the profits for the oil companies could work out at around $25 a ton.

Indeed, it is quite possible that the revenue that the government will get from all this oil could be as little as $187 millions a year.

This is not because of the brilliance of their accountants, but due to the labyrinth of international taxation. The deputy chairman of the inland revenue, A. Lord, told the committee that the profit on North Sea oil could be "wholly covered by foreign tax, which would by way of unilateral relief, wipe out United Kingdom tax, and as the law now stands there would be nothing we could do about that."

It is obvious that you have to be nice to oil companies if you are trying to persuade them to explore for oil in completely uncharted areas. The original reasoning behind the government's licensing policy took this into account with favorable terms. Apart from the royalty, there was only an annual fee, and the licenses were awarded for 46 years.

Even when it became clear, by 1970, that the British sector of the North Sea was a major oil producing area, the terms were hardly changed. We thus had a situation where the government pursued a policy of desperately trying to persuade companies to explore an area which the companies were falling over themselves in their eagerness to explore.

When, as an experiment, 15 blocks were auctioned to the highest bidder in 1971, the government received tenders totalling $335 million from 30 companies. A few months later, however, the government maintained its policy of giving away blocks, when it allocated 118 blocks, for the price of a license fee, plus royalties.

The fact remains, from the committee's report, that even if the companies paid full corporation tax at 50 per cent (which they will do) Britain would still do worse than many other oil-producing countries. Norway, which is taking an increasing stake in North Sea operations, and is publishing a white paper will get up to 80 per cent. The Middle East states get approximately 77 per cent share of the profits, and even Nigeria gets 70 per cent.

At full tax, Britain would get only around 55 per cent, and thanks to the tax laws we will be lucky if we get a 20 per cent share of the profits for British oil. If Britain were ever to apply for membership of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries it would probably have its application refused.

TOP MAN WANTED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian National Railway yardmen said they would continue a work-to-rule campaign, now in its fifth week, until the company brings a policy-making official to Vancouver.

George "Boutille" United Transportations Union, local vice-president, said "some of our problems are policy problems which officials here do not have the power to decide."

Little Known Singers — But High Rewards

By JAY SHARPUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Kenny Karen and Leslie Miller are totally unknown to pop music fans, even though their singing is heard day and night on television and radio across the United States.

They're jingle singers, members of a little-known clan that sings commercials about cars, beer, shampoo and chewing gum.

Their type of singing is a highly-specialized, million-dollar business. A top singer can earn $150,000 a year and more, according to industry sources.

But it's a tough market to crack. Experts in the business say there only are about 30 singers in New York, where most of the work is concentrated, who earn a living from jingles.

About half of these, including Kenny Karen, who grew up in Montreal, and Leslie Miller, from Mamaroneck, N.Y., get most of the work. It's not unusual for them to do 10 recording sessions a week.

MOST YOUNG

The top singers are mostly in their 20s and early 30s, with solid experience in singing all kinds of contemporary music, from acid rock to gentle jazz.

Most got started in the mid-1960s, when the pop music revolution was underway. They sang in backup groups at record sessions or did demo records, recording songs that publishers and writers hoped to sell to established stars.

When jingles began emphasizing the "now" stand, they knew how to capture that sound with only minutes of rehearsal time — a necessity with studio costs running $200 an hour and higher. And they all knew each other.

"We all know each other's voices and with all the different demo records, we've done we know how to blend. Nobody's trying to outdo each other," said Miss Miller.

"You have to be adaptable," says Karen, 29, who began singing as a choir boy at his father's synagogue in Montreal. "Say five singers go to a jingle session and they're told, 'You've got to be a far-out sounding rhythm-and-blues group.'

"An hour later, the same five people are told, 'It's folk sound time or Fifth Dimension time.' You have to be flexible and the more flexible you are the more work you get."

MONEY IN FEES

The real money in jingle singing comes not from the studio fees but from residual checks each time the commercials are played on radio and TV.

The amounts vary, depending on how many markets or

Changes Give Trustees More Autonomy

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

An omnibus package of amendments to the Public Schools Act, with the general aim of giving school boards more autonomy and furthering the community school concept, was introduced in the legislature Tuesday by Education Minister Eileen Daily.

The bill would enable large school boards to hire their own school superintendents without reference to the department of education, arrange for community use of school buses and enter into agreements with municipalities and regional districts for cost-sharing in the operation and maintenance of community-use facilities.

It would also make the provision of kindergartens mandatory throughout the province.

The legislation states that any school district with an enrolment figure of more than 20,000 pupils — there are six such districts, including Victoria — may appoint its own school superintendent.

In the past, a board wanting to fill a vacancy for that position had to obtain from the department a "prescribed list of acceptable superintendents." Daily told reporters after the bill was given first reading.

CHANGES QUALIFICATION

Daily said regulations to accompany the act will also remove the qualification requiring a candidate for the job of superintendent to have had five years' professional experience in B.C.

The only qualifications required will be that the applicant be a Canadian citizen, possess a university degree and show by his background that he would qualify for a B.C. teacher's certificate.

Daily said the provision for locally-appointed superintendents "fits in with the whole theme of decentralization in our school system."

The bill would also allow a board to bear transportation costs involved in arranging educational trips for pupils, and to arrange with a local parks or recreation commission for it (the commission to use district-owned school buses in connection with recreation programs).

Daily said she has received many requests from community groups that buses, which would otherwise stand idle several hours a day, be used for such purposes.

On the community school concept, Daily noted that previously, boards could only enter into agreements for jointly financing capital construction costs, while the new provision allows them to participate in operational cost-sharing as well.

However, she pointed out that a section of the bill would give the department of education budgetary control over such agreements, to ensure that the department "when it comes to budget time will have some say in ensuring that costs are shared on an equitable basis."

Also contained in the legislation is the policy move announced by the minister last November, under which the provincial government will assume 100 per cent of capital financing of community colleges in the financial year starting April 1.

Daily stressed that while the amendment will require all school districts throughout the province to provide kindergarten services, that doesn't mean kindergarten attendance is being made compulsory.

She said she recognizes some districts may encounter problems in getting kindergartens established, and she intends to spell out how the government will assist in this when she speaks in the house during second reading on the bill.

TORONTO (CP) — A 22-year-old man who suffered extensive injuries four weeks ago in a skydiving accident says people should try the sport because "there's nothing like it."

Reg Perry of Sarnia, Ont., broke his legs, pelvis and an arm when he opened his parachute too late in a 7,500-foot jump from a plane over Lake Nipissing.

But he hasn't lost his enthusiasm.

Lying in traction and in a massive cast Tuesday in a Toronto hospital, Mr. Perry said the accident was "no fault of the sport or of my parachute — I was just careless."

Doctors say he will be in hospital for a long time, but Mr. Perry isn't discouraged. "I'll be jumping again as soon as I possibly can," he said. "I intend trying to make the Canadian parachute team."

A student at Sault Ste. Marie College, Mr. Perry hopes to become a smoke-jumper — a parachutist used in fighting forest fires.

His accident has not caused him to lose his nerve.

"No, I won't be bugged," he said. "I'll just be more careful."

All Set
To Talk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Convicted Watergate conspirator James McCord Jr. begins closed-door testimony under oath today before a special Senate committee probing political espionage in the 1972 campaign.

McCord, former security chief for President Nixon's re-election campaign, had said he wanted no more interviews with committee lawyers but instead wanted to speak to the full seven-member committee, sources reported.

The sources said McCord's reason for this request was that parts of interviews he had held Friday and Saturday with Samuel Dash, the committee's chief counsel, and Fred Thompson, its Republican counsel, had leaked to the press.

Sen. Howard Baker (R-Tenn.), committee vice-chairman, said the members voted to "invite" McCord and his attorney, Bernard Fenterwald, to appear at the session set for 1:30 p.m. EST today.

Barrett Sees Wider Role
For Railway

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Dave Barrett said Tuesday he would like to see the British Columbia railway become directly involved in ocean shipping.

Barrett who is BCR president, said in a television interview "we should not be stopped just at the rail's end at the water."

"I think it's only logical that there should be an extension," he said, but added he could not give a definite plan on when BCR would enter ocean shipping.

"We believe that whenever possible our raw materials should go on Canadian ships, manned by Canadian crews," he said. "That is a hope this government would like to see eventually accomplished."

Barrett said he could see no objection to the BCR developing into a multi-transportation business such as the Canadian Pacific Railway.

"That's a long-term goal of the BCR," he said.

Trial Ordered

VANCOUVER (CP) — James Richard Allen, 30, was committed for trial on a charge of armed hold-up following a preliminary hearing. Charge was laid after a lone bandit stole $16,441 from a Vancouver branch of the Royal Bank of Canada. Allen is also charged in connection with two other robberies in which a total of more than $3,000 was taken.

Pension Bill Delayed

By JEAN-GUY CARRIER

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons went into overtime Tuesday night determined to pass a bill to increase old age pensions, but gave up at 11:20 p.m., frustrated by the surprise proposal of an amendment by Roch LaSalle (Ind-Joliette).

The House usually rises at 10 p.m., but all parties had agreed to extend the time.

The bill would increase old age pensions to $109 a month from $82.88. The debate resumes today with presentation of Mr. LaSalle's amendment.

The Commons did manage to pass one piece of legislation on to the Senate during the day. The bill increases maximum war veterans allowances to $257.21 a month for married veterans and $151.14 for single veterans from $217.61 and $131 respectively.

Most of the day's debate was on Social Credit amendments to the old age pension bill.

Their five amendments would have increased the minimum monthly pension to $200, lowered the age of eligibility to 60 from 65 and given an automatic pension to the spouse of a person meeting the age requirement. The amendments also would have lowered the age of eligibility for handicapped persons to 50.

ARGUE PROCEDURE

Long procedural arguments by members of all four Commons parties ended in a lengthy decision by Deputy Speaker Gerald Laniel (L-Beauharnois-Salaberry) to reject the amendments. He argued that they would increase the expenditures proposed by the government, which contravened the rules of parliamentary procedure. An opposition party could propose amendments to cut government expenditures but could not propose amendments to increase them.

The persistence of Social Credit members in pressing their amendments caught New Democrats on the horns of a peculiar dilemma.

While in favor of hastening passage of the bill, the NDP could not disagree with proposals aimed at increasing its benefits, something they also have proposed.

NDP House Leader Stanley Knowles commended Social Credit members for "the vigor with which they are pressing points I feel strongly."

"I'm prepared to sit here all night if necessary," he said.

Once their amendments had been swept away by Mr. Laniel, the Social Credit MPs moved to have the bill sent back to committee for further study.

SPEAKERS BUSY

Two such motions were rejected by the Speakers. Switches in the chair were frequent as Speaker Lucien Lamoureux left the House to carry out research on the admissibility of motions. Running the relay with him were Deputy Speakers Laniel and Robert McCleave (PC-Halifax-East Hants).

No Liberals rose to speak on the bill itself. The Conservatives also restrained themselves, saying they were doing it to hasten its passage.

The NDP showed no such reticence.

Lorne Nystrom reiterated his party's position that pensions should be raised to $150 and the age of eligibility lowered to 60.

He suggested that the funds necessary could be collected by scrapping government plans for corporate income-tax cuts.

Heath Macquarrie (PC-Hillsborough) objected to what he called the injection of partisan politics into the debate. He mentioned, however, that a pension taking into account increases in the cost of living would come to about $106 a month.

He said it is easy for the NDP to promise high pensions when there is no chance the party will ever come to power.

Cowichan Lake Big Clean-Up To Start Soon

CAYCUSE — Early improvement in the appearance of Cowichan Lake shores and removal of semi-submerged boat hazards is forecast by area logging manager Les Way.

The B.C. Forest Products Ltd. divisional logging manager is one of a joint government-industrial committee that is aiming at cleanup of floating debris, deadheads, salvageable logs and shore debris.

Way said there will "certainly be an improvement in the lake," but as the program has barely begun it has not been determined how extensive it will be nor how much it will cost.

The committee of five companies, provincial fish, wildlife and forestry branches, and the federal fisheries department are "trying to make a planned and organized approach" to the problem which Way said is largely historic.

Very little debris gets into the lake today, except in the form of escaped logs from storage or booms en route to mills, Way said. But the semi-submerged material and wood piled on the beaches may date as far back as the mid-1920s when logging of the river valleys began.

There is a heavy accumulation of floating debris that moves back and forth as the lake level changes and storms blow it around.

Priority in the cleanup program will be given to deadheads, escaped logs and beach clearing for public enjoyment of the lake.

Forget the Super-Stars Sports Are for People

Day in and day out, no writer does a more competent, enterprising job of column-writing than our own Bill Walker and I want him to know that's my opinion before I slip this knife right between his shoulder blades.

Along with certain other sports writers who have that professional blind spot of being more advocate than critic of the endeavors they cover, Bill has come out, without reservation, for the use of public moneys so that Canadians may run faster or jump higher for the greater glory of the nation. Myself, I don't happen to think that running and jumping should rate high on any priority list of government spending and I'm not at all sure that they should be on the list at all.

Bill's argument is that since Montréal is hosting the next Olympics we should be grooming some super-stars "to give us a national pride in our very own Olympics". Our track and field record at the last Games in Munich, it seems, was fifth place in the pole vault and a sixth in the high jump.

To match up and catch up with the other competing nations we need an injection of that old green magic called money.

Bill goes on: "Of course, this would involve full-time professional coaches, which Canada hasn't got; national training centres where athletes could gather for concentrated coaching, which Canada also hasn't got; and some form of freeing the athletes from the necessity of earning a living for that period of specialized training each year, which Canada also is missing."

I wish I could believe that the quality of life in this country could be upgraded in any way by the creation of winning athletes, but pride or prestige, as I see it, are better won in any other arena than track and field. The Soviet Union and the United States may come head-to-head in that kind of hysterical nationalism. We surely have more important things to do, more worthwhile goals to attain.

What Bill is proposing is a discreet form of professionalism, which is what the Olympics have become. That is the trend in Canada as much as it is anywhere.

Sport is rapidly becoming show business. We create heroes to be worshipped and rewarded with kings' ransoms in hard cash. We are progressively becoming a nation of spectators, either in stadiums with wall-to-wall carpeting for the players or in the living room facing the magic lantern. Winning, rather than playing the game, has become a reason for competition. Fifth in the pole vault and sixth in the high jump is, in the view of the sports chronicler, a national crisis.

We have, in fact, a continuing national crisis in terms of athletics that's far more important than hand-toiling a select company of gold medal winners. Two recurring findings by interested groups over the past 20 to 25 years have spelled it out in the clearest possible terms.

The first is that, as a nation, we're in truly dreadful physical shape. It is a finding that goes across every age group from the primary school to the paunchy middle years. For a country with an outdoor tradition our condition is lamentable. The disease of Spectatoritis — watching the superstars — is clearly a contributing factor.

Secondly, we're a nation scandalously short of facilities for the playing of sports, particularly in urban areas where they're needed. Every study comes to the same conclusion. We've not nearly enough playing fields, tennis courts, swimming pools, ice rinks or gymnasiums. Why pour public money into specialized training for the virtuous athlete when it's clear that we're under-financed where it counts the most?

Coaching and competition are necessary in every sport, at every level. There is no question that that takes money. But the real priority in this nation should be at the grass roots level where physical fitness and the fun of the game are far more important than the making of world champions. That's where the money should be going, Bill, not to any foolishness of national pride.

Tight Tenure Tests For UVic Professors

Arts and science faculty members who have applied for tenure at the University of Victoria will have to demonstrate "exceptional" circumstances to win a recommendation this year, Dean Jean-Paul Vinay said today.

Vinay was reluctant to talk about the tenure cases before they are decided by the UVic board of governors at its next meeting but he said probably only five or six out of 13 professors up for tenure will be recommended by him.

However, the eight or nine who don't win tenure will not be rejected, but will be deferred until next spring when their cases will be reconsidered.

Winning tenure means a faculty member has a permanent appointment at UVic and may not be fired except for a good reason.

This year's tenure situation is unusual, said Vinay. Last May the length of time a professor normally stayed at UVic before being considered for tenure was changed from four years to five years.

This year professors with four years at UVic had a choice of applying for tenure, or waiting till next year when they would have five years experience as stipulated in the new agreement.

Thirteen arts and science faculty members chose to go ahead and apply. But in applying early, said Vinay, they must show "peculiar or remarkable or outstanding merit."

"It's always more difficult to be looked at (for tenure) early," he said.

Vinay attributed the expected deferral of the tenure decisions to next year as "the need for being careful."

There has been speculation at the university that the $374,000 deficit UVic faces between its operating budget and the provincial grant this year will force cutbacks in staff.

Elevator Mediator

Labor Minister Bill King told the legislature Tuesday he has appointed a mediator from his department — Gus Leonidas — to the dispute involving Canadian elevator construction.

The mediator was involved in meetings with the two sides Monday and Tuesday, King said, adding "I am hopeful some resolution will be forthcoming soon."

King was responding to a question posed during the day's question period by Scott Wallace (PC — Oak Bay).

Saying that the federal government doesn't ask how a pensioner spends his money, Arc adds, "There's no such thing as being able to keep anything secret in B.C. anymore."

They also state: "This information is required for accounting and statistical purposes only."

David Arc, 74, of 906 Gordon, is typical of those resenting being asked the additional questions.

He has sent the form back uncompleted saying, "Unless I am compelled by a court I have no intention of filling in the enclosed form."

He says losing the supplementary allowance would be "better than getting an ulcer from bureaucratic impertinence."

He's concerned that "some crooked-minded people may use such information for their own ends."

He asks if the federal government doesn't demand these facts, why does the provincial government need them?

He refers specifically to questions on such items as:

—Water costs per month.

—Fuel costs, both monthly and yearly.

Grant Given

Antique Restorers

A group of senior citizens who restore antique machinery and vehicles has received a $15,000 grant under the federal New Horizons program.

Art and Facts New Horizons project was one of two Victoria projects for which grants were announced this week.

The other, the Citizens Research Group, also received $15,000 for a program to assist senior citizens.

Secretary of the Art and Facts project, Mrs. Gladys Raper of 6278 Welch Rd., said the grant will be used to get a proper workshop and tools for the men.

The group has been fixing up old threshing machines, steam engines, farm vehicles and horse-drawn vehicles for seven or eight years, said Mrs. Raper. They were reluctant to apply for the federal grant themselves, so she and her husband Edward, a dairy farmer, did it for them.

"At that age they just will not believe someone will give them $15,000," said Mrs. Raper. "We sort of pushed them."

City Woman New Director

Kathleen Ruff, defeated NDP candidate for Victoria in the last provincial election, and past president of the Victoria Status of Women Action Group, has been appointed director of the Human Rights Act, it was announced today.

She succeeds Jack Sherlock, who retired recently.

Announcing the appointment today in a press release, Labor Minister William King said "Ms. Ruff has wide and varied experience in the human rights field. In her new position she will be in an excellent position to advance human rights in this province."

The statement says for the past year Ms. Ruff has acted as "an unofficial ombudsman" in dealing with many complaints concerning discrimination in employment and in housing.

She has submitted briefs to federal and provincial agencies, the Victoria Police Commission and a number of private corporations.

After receiving her early education in Europe, and an honors bachelor of arts degree in languages from the University of Southampton, Ms. Ruff obtained her bachelor of education from the University of New Brunswick and her master of arts degree from the University of B.C., specializing in French.

After working in the teacher training field in New Brunswick and Montreal, she was employed as an English instructor at the University of Montreal and later as a French instructor at the University of Victoria.

A three-year resident of Victoria, Ruff was the first president of SWAG when it formed here in 1971. In June of last year she organized an "ombudsman" through SWAG to investigate discrimination of the basis of sex and marital status.

New Hospital Due to Start In 10 Days

Construction on a new hospital for the Saanich Peninsula — the first in 60 years — will start in about 10 days.

That will be the good news delivered at the first annual meeting of the Saanich Peninsula Hospital Society tonight.

Health Minister Dennis Cocke announced Tuesday that the government has approved letting the contract to the low bidder, Dura Construction Ltd. of Saanichton, at $935,980.

It took the provincial government just four days to approve the recommendation of the hospital board on awarding the contract, a contrast with the speed of the former government which was noted at $935,980.

Mrs. Murney's Taffy Pulls Wings to Win

By The Canadian Press
Detroit Red Wings may have found the edge they need to wrap up fourth place in the National Hockey League's East Division.

It's called Sucker Power. Jean Murney, a neighbor of Mickey Redmond's parents in Peterborough, Ont., knew Redmond liked the taffy suckers she made from an old English recipe when he was a boy.

So when Mrs. Murney found Redmond's parents would be at Maple Leaf Gardens to watch Detroit take on Toronto, she sent the suckers along.

Redmond and some of his team-mates gobbled up the candy, then went out and licked the Leafs 8-1 while Redmond became the seventh NHL player and the first Red Wing to enjoy a 30-goal season.

Meanwhile, Buffalo Sabres had to hang on to edge the stubborn Islanders 3-2 at New York and Minnesota North Stars moved ahead of Philadelphia Flyers in the race for second in the West by nipping Vancouver Canucks 4-3 at Bloomington.

The results left the Sabres one point ahead of the Wings who have a game in hand. The North Stars are two points ahead of the Flyers who have four games left-and one of them is tonight at Buffalo.

"Nobody sent me any good in the dressing room after scoring his 50th and 51st goals 18 seconds apart late in the third period.

"My mom and dad were here before the game and they brought these candies from the lady who lives across the backyard.

"She had made some for her son's bantam team after they had some trouble and after they ate up the suckers they went on to win their tournament and her son, the goaltender, was the most valuable player."

Redmond wore a derby with the figure 50 inscribed on it that someone had thrown from the stands.

"I guess they didn't have time to put 51 on it," cracked Redmond who joined Maurice (Rocket) Richard, Bob Hull, Bernie Geoffrion, Phil Esposito, Johnny Bucyk and Vic Hadfield who also broke the 50-goal barrier.

The Sabres didn't have Mrs. Murney's taffy but got two goals from left winger Richard Martin, then held off the Islanders who stormed the Buffalo zone with their goalie pulled in the final minute.

At Minnesota, Lou Nanne's second goal of the third period gave the North Stars the verdict over the Canucks who knotted the contest twice during the final 20 minutes.

Hockey: Here They Are —First Round Winners

Well, it's that time of the year again, almost, and lest the moment escape, fear not. Here's your handy ready reckoner for the first round of the Stanley Cup playoffs.

First, to recap briefly, it was said here earlier that Montreal, Boston, New York and Buffalo would prevail in the East in that order, and Chicago, Minnesota, St. Louis and Los Angeles would get the best job done in the West.

Close in the East, but no cigar. Not yet. In the West, Philadelphia has been the big surprise and may be amazing in the playoffs too.

So starting next week, it's down to cases. The glamor division, the East, takes the spotlight first because it has the three best teams, Montreal, Boston and New York.

The Canadiens, who have been up there all year, may not be the best of all Montreal clubs but they are good, can skate, and given good goalkeeping, may just turn out to be the best. With so many rookies, good as they are, in the lineup, Ken Dryden, their goalkeeper is the key. As Dryden goes so will the Habs, and they should have no trouble in getting by either Buffalo or Detroit, whichever team finishes fourth.

The big series, of course, will likely be between Boston and New York, and as the season nears its windup the club which finishes second should have the playoff edge. That looks like Boston. The Bruins were late getting started this year, but have been coming on like gangbusters in the last two months.

Orr and Espo a Tough Combo

Bobby Orr may not be at his absolute peak but he's still good enough to be the league's best defenceman. Phil Esposito is over three 50-goal mark again, and by acquiring Jacques Plante, the Bruins did nothing to hurt their chances.

The Rangers, bless them, are up to their old tricks — coming up cold at playoff time — and in the past month or so have frittered away first place, and now, apparently, second.

Besides they have been hit by several injuries, Ed Giacomin being the latest, and it won't be a fit crew that faces Boston in the opening round. Motivation could be a key force, however, and it will be interesting to see if coach Emil Francis can get them up for the series. That first game could be the tell-all.

Out West, the final placings are still to be determined, but on the basis of what has happened so far this season, it shouldn't really matter in Chicago.

The Black Hawks are still supreme, even though they have had their bad moments this spring. But now with Stan Mikita back in harness, the Hawks should prevail against either St. Louis or Los Angeles whoever gets that final playoff berth.

St. Louis didn't impress in either of two weekend games, and L.A. has been faltering badly the last month. In addition, the Hawks have much the best in goalkeeping, Tony Esposito and Gary Smith, perhaps the best one-two combination in the league.

Rough, Tough, Maybe Ready

In the other semi-final it will be Minnesota against Philadelphia with the final placings to decide where the extra game will be played. This could be highly interesting.

Minnesota has a veteran team that might prove to be more solid in the long run. But the Flyers are red hot, hitting everybody in sight, and if they can survive the penalty parade might just have enough momentum to get by the North Stars.

If they've taken over from the Big Bad Bruins, as the Ferocious Flyers

If they've taken over from the "Big Bad Bruins," as the "Ferocious Flyers," "The Meat Grinders," or other similar titles, the combination of rough play, and some excellent shooters, Rick MacLeish, Bill Flett and Bobby Clarke, seems to be paying dividends.

Intimidation is the name of the Philadelphia game, and it's the same name of the game the Bruins used successfully for the past two seasons. But with one basic difference, Boston was a better team.

Still, there has to be a pick. So Philadelphia it is, in six over Minnesota and Chicago in five or less over St. Louis or L.A.

In the East, Montreal might get by in four straight over Buffalo or St. Louis. But in that other set-to, it looks like a full series of seven. If the sentimental favorite is New York, the betting choice has to be Boston.

There now, that wasn't too tough, was it? Later, the Cup finalists.

Hotelmen in Hoop Final

Hotel Douglas chilled a last-minute surge to down Restoration Services 66-60 in a Victoria Senior Men's Basketball League sudden-death semi-final game at Cedar Hill Senior High School Tuesday.

Jack Lusk led Hotel Douglas' 19 points with 19 assists. Hotelmen will play the winner of Thursday's game between league-champion London Boxing Club and YMCA in the championship game Monday.

Hotelmen will play the winner of Thursday's game between league-champion London Boxing Club and YMCA in the pre-midget titles at Victoria and District Amateur Basketball Association, play-off games at Central Junior High School.

Ravens defeated First United Beavers 33-18 to capture the girls' title in the final of a three-team, double-loss elimination championship. Karen McComber paced Ravens with 14 points.

Hampton collected the boys' title by edging Evening Optimists 12-10 in the final of a PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. — Lee Brice's Victoria rink had a hot time Tuesday at the Canadian Firefighters' curling championships, scoring a three-game sweep to move into sole possession of first place.

Brice, who has Lon Restell, Stan Thame and Al Hayton with him, edged New Brunswick 7-6, Saskatchewan 9-8 and North West Territories 10-5 to run his record to 4-0 in the round-robin event which concludes Thursday.

Saskatchewan is 4-1 and Ontario and Alberta, both 3-1, are Brice's closest rivals.

Brice gave up two on the ninth which enabled New Brunswick to tie their third-round match, but counted the winner on the 10th. The Victoria foursome needed an extra end in the next round to subdue Saskatchewan, which was skipped by Clyde Walters.

Brice counted four on the fourth and stole another on the fifth for a 7-3 lead, but Walters scored twice on the seventh and ninth and stole one on the 10th to tie.

The Saskatchewan rink could have won it on the 10th but Brice took out one of two Walters counters with his last rock. Brice won on the 11th by removing an opposing rock and staying at the back of the eight-foot ring.

Brice was scheduled to play Ontario and Manitoba today and Thursday finishes against Alberta and Northern Ontario.

Success Visibly Evident In Fry Feeding Program

Visual evidence alone bears out the theory that supplementary feeding of salmon fry during the summer months can be useful and low-cost method of boosting the productivity of many streams in British Columbia.

Obviously, as indicated in the photograph below, the fed fish are in better shape than the unfed fry.

Dr. David Groves of Aquafarm Consultants Ltd., who served as a co-ordinator to the Amalgamated Conservation Society feeding program on De Mamiel and Tugwell Creeks in Sooke as well as the Goldstream during 1972, recently released his report on the project.

And the conclusions indicate this method of fish propagation could be a good alternative or complement to the costly business of building hatcheries.

But first a little review of background might be in order.

The ACS fry feeding program started in the Sooke creeks during 1971 as an Opportunities For Youth project. During 1972, after application for another OFY grant fell through, three students continued feeding and fry salvage in the Sooke area under funding from the fish and wildlife branch. Members of the Pacific Trollers Association continued feeding in the area after the students had returned to school.

In Goldstream, feeding was carried out on a volunteer basis by members of various clubs within ACS, which also provided the funding.

Feeding in both the Sooke and Goldstream systems began in early June and finished Nov. 1.

"Apart from feeding and counting fish, Tugwell Creek was not studied intensively," said Groves.

"On both Goldstream and De Mamiel creeks, control areas were established so that comparisons could be made between fed and unfed fish."

One of the first things noted by feeders was the low density of fry in De Mamiel and Goldstream as a result of a severe flood March 10 which washed out a high proportion of eggs and developing alevin.

Ordinarily this would have meant a poor coho year in 1974—but perhaps the feeding might change that forecast to "fair."

Groves explained the methods of obtaining results from the project:

"Evaluation of the program was based on direct visual counts taken at intervals during the summer, sampling of fry at intervals for weighing and body composition determinations, and anaesthetizing additional large samples for length and depth measurements. Stream temperatures were recorded at intervals and approximate measurements of water flows were also made."

Toward the end of the program, fry were given feed marked with a mixture of strontium chloride and terramycin which will show up in scale analysis at any later stage.

Conclusions in the report included:

• Under high fry density conditions, supplementary feeding reduces summer mortality and increases size and condition of fry.

• Under low density conditions, supplementary feeding primarily increases winter survival potential on the basis of increased fry weight and condition.

• For maximum effectiveness, feeding must be carried on as far as possible into the fall, although low density situations might indicate a reduction of effort in the early part of the summer.

• Under low density years, feeding should be limited to frequent feeding of short segments of the stream... under high density conditions, feeding should be extended to cover as much of the stream as possible.

• Under certain stream conditions, trout also benefit from the feeding.

• Doubling of weight in fry gives approximate doubling in survival.

• A doubling of the survival rate would provide an additional 500 to 1,000 spawners to the Goldstream and 2,000-3,000 spawners to De Mamiel—depending on the efficiency of commercial and sport fishing.

Apart from the benefits to people through increased numbers of salmon, there also is a direct feedback.

There were 95 local people actively involved in the project—three hired students and 92 volunteer feeders (30 commercial fishers, 52 sports fishermen, 10 team managers and co-ordinators). In addition, personnel from both the fish and wildlife branch and federal fisheries department provided input.

As Groves finalized:

"Considerable exchange of information took place between the provincial and federal personnel and the volunteers and will continue. These factors appear to be significant benefits at a time when increased awareness of environmental values is so critical to the future welfare of life."

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Detroit Tigers have the Perry brother "who doesn't cheat" and, for the first time in his three years as manager, Billy Martin's got four solid starting pitchers.

"We think he can help us win the pennant," Martin said Tuesday of Detroit's acquisition of former Cy Young Award winner Jim Perry from the Minnesota Twins.

To get the 36-year-old right-hander, the Tigers gave up promising minor league pitcher Dan Fife, 23, who had a 14-7 record and 3.10 earned run average last year at Montgomery of the Southern League.

It was a straight player deal. No cash was involved.

"For the first time since I've been here, I have four starters," said Martin, beaming. "At the end of last year was the first time I even had three. I don't think any other team in the league has four like that."

Detroit's other three starters are left-hander Mickie Lolich, right-hander Joe Coleman and southpaw Woodie Fryman—acquired from Philadelphia last August.

Perry, who drove to Lakeland from the Twins' Orlando camp Tuesday, said he couldn't be happier about the deal.

The 6-foot-4, 205-pounder from North Carolina became a 20-game winner for the first time in 1969 when Martin managed the Twins. He had a 20-6 record and 2.82 ERA. Then in 1970, he was 24-12 with a 3.00 ERA and was voted the Cy Young Award as best pitcher in the American League.

His brother, Gaylord, won the award last year with Cleveland. On more than one occasion last year, Martin verbally blasted Gaylord, claiming he threw illegal splitters.

"We got the non-cheating Perry," Martin said with a grin. "We've been scouting him... we think he can with Indianapolis of the American Association last year."

At Vero Beach, Los Angeles Dodgers sold catcher Dick Dietz to Atlanta Braves for an undisclosed amount of cash while at Daytona Beach, Montreal Expos announced they have asked waivers on 28-year-old outfielder Jim Fairey for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

In Miami, Baltimore Orioles acquired shortstop Frank Baker from New York Yankees and sent utility infielder Andy Kosco to Cincinnati Reds for pitcher Mel Behney, a lefthander who was 9-12 at Syracuse.

Rankin's Hot Display Cools Off Saskatoon

By The Canadian Press

Brandon Wheat Kings won when they had to while Flin Flon Bombers and Edmonton Oil Kings just continued to win in Western Canada Hockey League playoffs Tuesday night.

The Wheat Kings got stellar goaltending from Jim Rankin and goals from a pair of rookies to shutout Saskatoon Blades 2-0.

That cut Saskatoon's lead in the best-of-seven quarter final to 2-1.

In Flin Flon, the Bombers got three second-period goals were scored on power plays, but it was Stoughton who made the difference in the game. The graduating winger scored once in each period and shut down a Regina rally in the third period.

The Pats scored a pair of goals 17 seconds apart midway through the final period and were threatening to tie the game at 4-4 when Stoughton on cooled them off with his third goal of the night.

RAMSEY'S TRIAL GAME ALMOST EMBARRASSING

GLASGOW (Reuters) — Two goals by Mike Channon saved manager Sir Alf Ramsey from blushing and enabled the English League to hold the Scottish League to a 2-2 draw in their annual friendly soccer match Tuesday.

Sir Alf used Tuesday's match to try out a largely experimental England team.

But despite the five full internationals in the English League line-up, the Scottish League were able to avoid defeat for the first time in six years.

Channon put the English League ahead in the 19th minute before goals by John Duncan in the 38th and 46th minutes gave the Scots the advantage.

Channon popped up again 11 minutes from the end to snatch a draw against a skilful and entertaining Scottish League squad.

Clippers Flounder

By The Canadian Press

Ken Widmeyer scored three goals Tuesday night as Chilliwack Bruins defeated Nanaimo Clippers 8-4 to take a 3-1 lead in their B.C. Junior Hockey League best-of-seven semi-final series.

The fifth game is tonight in Nanaimo.

In the three games so far, Widmeyer has scored 10 goals.

Brian Creston got one goal for the Bruins and assisted on five others. Marcel Vandergraaf, Bob McNeice, Brian Schmyr and Al Cameron rounded out the Chilliwack scoring. Mel Bridgman scored twice for the Clippers with Al Hill and Bob Jeffrey getting the others.

Penticton Broncos scored their second straight win over the Okanagan Division champion Kamloops Rockets, 5-3, in Penticton, to square their best-of-seven semi-final series at two games apiece.

Chad Campbell sparked the Broncos with three goals. Doug Lawton and Mark Patterson also scored for Penticton. Bill Kelz scored for Kamloops.

Silver Foursome Remains on Top

Art Silver's perfect record was tarnished Tuesday in the B.C. seniors (over-60) championships at the Victoria Curling Club, but the host rink still leads the round-robin event which ends today.

Silver lost his only game to Frank Wortman of Courtenay 8-6 in Tuesday's first round, dropping into a temporary tie for the lead with Vancouver's Rudy Rudoski. However, in the afternoon draw Tom McDonnell of Creston downed Rudoski 11-7, enabling Silver to regain the lead alone.

Wortman, in a four-way tie for second with Rudoski, McDonnell and Ron Weeks of Kelowna, stole six points and four ends from Silver.

The Victoria rink took it out on Penticton's Stan Devonshire in the afternoon round, counting four on the fifth and stealing five on the sixth, three more on the seventh and three on the eighth for a 15-3 win in a match conceded after eight ends.

If there is a tie for first place after today's two rounds, a playoff will take place tonight. There is no national final.

'Best Actor' Brando Doesn't Show Up for Oscar

Times News Services

HOLLYWOOD — Cabaret pushed The Godfather aside in the Oscar awards Tuesday night but Marlon Brando won the best-actor Oscar and sent a young Apache princess along to say he would not accept it.

Cabaret, a musical about decadent pre-Nazi Berlin, won eight awards to three for The Godfather.

But The Godfather, biggest money-making film in history, won the crucial best-film prize. Brando played in the title role in The Godfather.

Second Time

Brando, turning down the award because of the United States government's treatment of Indians, became the second actor to do so in the academy's 45-year history. George C. Scott refused to accept his Oscar for Patton two years ago.

When his name was announced as best actor by Liv Ullmann, the cameras focused on a San Francisco Apache girl in full Indian dress.

She was identified as Sacheen Littlefeather. Her speech on Brando's behalf was greeted by mixed catcalls and applause.

In a statement issued later by Miss Littlefeather, Brando said he did not want to "offend or diminish this occasion but I do not feel that I can, as a citizen of the United States, accept this or any award."

"You are probably saying: 'What the hell does this have to do with the academy awards?' The answer is that the motion picture community as much as anyone has been responsible for degrading the Indian."

Not Appreciated

Brando's disclaimer was not appreciated by other participants in the show. Raquel Welch, who presented the best actress award, said, before announcing the winner, "I hope the winner doesn't have a cause."

Clint Eastwood, announcing the best picture of the year, prefaced his remarks with: "I hope I don't have to present this award to all the cowboys shot in John Ford westerns."

"Cabaret" unexpectedly far outdistanced the favored "Godfather" in the Oscar sweepstakes.

Joel Grey won the best supporting actor Oscar for his role as a decadent master of ceremonies in the cabaret. Bob Fosse won for directing it and movie garnered awards for best film editing, sound, art direction, set decoration, scoring and cinematography.

Also Tony

It was quite a week for Fosse, who won a Tony award Sunday for his Broadway hit musical play, "Pippin."

Comedian Charlie Chaplin, 83, won his first professional academy award for the musical score of Limelight, a picture he made more than 20 years ago.

Chaplin is recipient of two honorary awards.

The film, withdrawn from U.S. movie theatres in the bitter controversy over Chaplin's political views and private life, qualified by being released for the first time in Los Angeles last year.

Master of ceremonies Charlton Heston, who arrived late because he got a flat tire years ago.

Robinson died of cancer late January at the age of 73.

Award for Charity

Frank Sinatra presented an honorary award to veteran actress Rosalind Russell for her charitable work.

The Oscar for best supporting actress went to Broadway veteran Eileen Heckart for her role as the mother of the blind boy in Butterflies Are Free, which she played both on Broadway and in the movie.

The award for the best foreign-language film went to The Discreet Charm of The Bourgeoisie, a French film made by Spanish film-maker Louis Bunuel.

Miss Minnelli said after the awards she was thinking of her mother, the late Judy Garland, when she accepted the Oscar.

"I think she would have been pleased," Miss Minnelli said.

British costume designer Anthony Powell won the costume design Oscar for his work in Travels With My Aunt.

Best Song

The Oscar for best original song went to The Morning

Aller from The Poseidon Adventure.

The Godfather's third award was for its script by author Mario Puzo and the film's director Francis Ford Coppola.

The best documentary production award went to Marjoe, a film about a young American evangelist.

Jeremy Larner won the Oscar for best original screenplay for The Candidate, a look at politics in the raw.

Youthful Christians Worry Their Elders

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — American church authorities are taking a harder look at the youthful Jesus movement and find some of its methods shallow, devious and potentially harmful. Its energies also seem to be running out in some areas.

"The danger is that many young people may be so scarred by their experience that they will be 'burnt out' as far as future religious experience goes," concluded Rev. Laurence Murphy, a Roman Catholic, after a special study of the movement.

"The last state will be much worse than the first."

Another critique came from a Protestant theologian, Rev. Walter R. Beach, of Washington, D.C., who pointed out that the "Jesus people," in shunning the organized church, are ignoring a key teaching of Jesus himself.

Jesus stressed the importance of the church, Dr. Beach said, adding: "Apart from his intention to form a church, the events recorded in the biblical Book of Acts are unintelligible." That book describes formation of the church.

Father Murphy, director of the U.S. Catholic Conference's division of higher education in Washington, said the movement is "frequently antiauthoritarian," "frequently very manipulative," and "often utterly naive."

A "very simplistic mentality" is found throughout much of the movement, he said, suggesting that it is "easy to be saved if you love Jesus, clap your hands or honk your horn." The focus is on "feelings, emotions, experiences." Some "charismatic" leaders use techniques to persuade and even to coerce young people," he added. "They manipulate their emotional needs... and at times quite knowingly use the Bible dishonestly."

Some "charismatic" leaders use techniques to persuade and even to coerce young people," he added. "They manipulate their emotional needs... and at times quite knowingly use the Bible dishonestly."

That, incidentally, was also a pattern followed by Jesus' early church.

Nevertheless, Dr. Beach said that organized Christianity might well follow one example of the Jesus people in going "into the market place, into the arena of the world's activity, where people are."

That, incidentally, was also

early church.

Soft Drug Reform Holds

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang reaffirmed Tuesday the government's intention of removing marijuana and other soft drugs from the Narcotics Control Act.

The effect would be lesser penalties for offences connected with these drugs.

Mr. Lang repeated the government committee's first announced last July to the Commons justice committee—after Eldon Woollams (PC—Calgary North) said that it was barbaric that young people were being sentenced to harsh jail terms for marijuana offences. Under the Narcotics Contract Act, the minimum sentence for importing drugs named in the Act in seven years.

Mr. Woollams, a lawyer, asked Mr. Lang to instruct his staff that young people accused of mere possession or trafficking where soft drugs are concerned rather than the more serious crime of importing drugs.

He said there was a case pending in Calgary of importing that was causing much anxiety among parents and others.

Mr. Lang said Mr. Woollams' statements were "along the lines of government thinking." It was the intention of the government to remedy such situations.

A Canadian Obsession

OTTAWA (CP) — The subject of work is an obsession among Canadians and has "more sex appeal than the subject of sex itself," says the executive director of the Canadian Council on Social Development.

Opening a two-day "informal brainstorming session" on changing concepts of work,

Diet Over Dialysis

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Johns Hopkins University medical researcher he says could replace or reduce the need for dialysis in patients suffering severe kidney disease.

The procedure sharply cuts proteins in a patient's diet and substitutes for them keto acids—the components left when nitrogen is removed from proteins.

Although the body's protein needs continue to be met, says Dr. Mackenzie Walser, the combination of a strictly meatless diet and keto acids does not produce the toxic blood wastes that must currently be removed by blood-cleansing dialysis.

For some patients the regimen could eventually reduce or replace costly dialysis and high risk organ transplants, Dr. Walser said Monday.

Dr. Walser said the cost of a daily keto acid dose could be less than 10 dollars a week if they were commercially produced, compared with $300 a week for two or three dialysis treatments.

MORE STUDY NEEDED

While the system still requires considerable research before it can be widely applied, the pharmacology and experimental therapeutics professor said, "It is clear that for patients with certain levels of severity, the treatment can replace dialysis."

Dr. Walser said patients whose kidneys function at two to 10 per cent of the normal level appear to be the most suitable candidates for the dietary regimen. The treatment does not prevent deterioration of kidney function, he emphasized.

A report on Dr. Walser's findings in the current edition of the Journal of Clinical Investigation indicates the substitution of keto acids allowed six of 10 volunteers to go without dialysis up to nine months at a time.

MORE ART THEFTS IN ITALY

SAN BENEDETTO DEL TRONTO, Italy (AP) — Thieves stole works of art valued at $510,000 from the municipal museum of the nearby village of Ripatransone Tuesday night.

Police said the robbers broke through a window. The loot included five 14th-century paintings by Venetian masters. In Venice, robbers recovered a heavy 16th-century marble bas relief of St. George and the dragon that had been stolen from an island in the lagoon 10 days ago. The thieves dropped it into the Grand Canal.

Police Catch Woman Escaper From Oakalla

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Mississauga police Tuesday arrested Darlene Orleski, 20, who escaped last May from Oakalla Prison.

Miss Orleski, of no fixed address, was arrested with Mary Elizabeth Crowell, 21, of Reno, Nev., after they booked into a motel as mother and daughter in this town just west of Toronto.

Miss Orleski, who had served only one month of a 27-month sentence for soliciting and possession of narcotics, was charged with escaping custody and being unlawfully at large. Miss Crowell was charged with being an accessory.

CANADA'S CUP OF TEA

Canada Cup Reserve is a new 6 year old Canadian whisky.

It is made by Canadian Schenley.

Over the last 28 years Schenley has built a reputation on quality. So Schenley puts its name on the line every time that name goes on a bottle.

To simply call Canada Cup Reserve "Canadian" isn't enough for Schenley. It must measure up to their standards of a Canadian whisky. Smoothness, lightness and a rich Canadian taste.

Under the supervision of Schenley's master distiller, over 12 different blends were developed and put through extensive taste tests. Only 6 years aged whiskies from hand charred white oak casks were tested.

Only men skilled in the distilling art made the decisions. This wasn't a popularity contest but a careful search for supreme quality. Schenley Canadian Quality.

Finally a blend was chosen, one that could truly bear the name—Canada Cup.

Try new Canada Cup Reserve. Sip it slowly as a taster would.

Medicor Hit by Lack of Cash, Took Out Loan

VANCOUVER (CP) — A former employee of Medicor Investment Corp. Ltd. (Medicor) of Minneapolis testified Tuesday that the company had taken out a $3 million loan at a high rate of interest in order to purchase a franchise in the National Hockey League.

The testimony came in the second day of the British Columbia Supreme Court trial of Thomas Scallen and Lynn Walters. Scallen is charged with theft of $3 million by converting assets of Northwest Sports Enterprises Ltd. to the use of Medicor. Northwest Sports operate Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League and Medicor controls Northwest Sports through a 60-per-cent holding.

Scallen, president of both companies, and Walters, the companies' vice-president, also are charged with issuing a false prospectus in 1970 with intent to induce the public to purchase share in Northwest Sports.

Dean A. Hiserodt, who was vice-president and controller of Medicor until August of 1970, characterized Medicor in the summer of 1970 as a company with "severe cash-flow problems."

He said the company, which owns various business, including the Ice Follies show, was being pressed to pay some of its bills and in one case, payroll cheques written on the Ice Follies account were not honored by the bank.

He also said one of the problems Medicor had was a loan of $3 million obtained from Walter Heilier and Co., a Chicago commercial loan company.

DISCUSSED FUNDS

Hiserodt said interest on the loan, when totalled, amounted to "from 30 to 35 per cent per annum."

He said he had a number of discussions with Scallen on how to raise money to pay back the loan, and among the alternatives discussed was a sale of some Northwest Sports shares and then the transfer of the money gained to Medicor.

Other alternatives included sale of other Medicor assets, sale of Ice Follies stock to Northwest Sports, or sale of some of Medicor's holdings in Northwest Sports.

Hiserodt said he had a discussion with Scallen on whether it would be legal to take the money earned through sale of shares in Northwest Sports from Canada to Medicor.

He was instructed by Scallen, he testified, not to disclose the discussion to any underwriters of a stock issue of Northwest Sports because "what they don't know, won't hurt them."

Under cross-examination by Peter Butler, one of the lawyers representing Walters, Hiserodt said he had never read any British Columbia securities regulations, so could not say for sure whether Medicor was doing anything illegal.

He also admitted that he left the company before a prospectus for the offering of Northwest Sports shares to the public was prepared.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A $277 shoplifting spree resulted in a two-month jail term for a 25-year-old Victoria man, sentenced by Judge William Ostler in provincial court Tuesday.

Barry T. Bruce, 1125 Oxford, pleaded guilty to a five-count charge of theft under $200.

Prosecutor John MacIntyre told the court Bruce was seen about 5 p.m. on March 23, struggling with two other men on the sidewalk in the 1200-block Douglas.

He was taken to Victoria police station where he admitted stealing a cassette tape player, worth $59.88, from Miller Sound Centre, 726 Yates.

After stealing the player he fled on foot, followed by an employee and a customer.

At the time of his arrest Bruce had a quadraphonic adapter, valued at $14.50, which he admitted stealing from Fleetwood Corp., 845 Yates.

He admitted to police stealing an amplifier, worth $89.95, from Kents Ltd., 742 Fort, on March 20; a reverberation unit, worth $22.95, from Hygrade Radio Ltd., 815 View, on March 23; and another amplifier, valued at $89.95, on March 23, from D. S. Young Ltd., 794 Fort.

Two of the items had been pawned for $20 each at Old Vic's Pawn Shop, 555 Johnson, said MacIntyre.

Before sentence Bruce told the judge he had an opportunity to work up north.

"I can't understand why you did this if you had an opportunity to go to work," said Ostler.

Before ordering the prison term Ostler said, "Well, I'm prepared to be lenient with you in this case."

An 18-year-old youth was fined $150 after he pleaded guilty to assaulting a police officer Dec. 29.

Stephen John Rawlings, 18, of Laketell Lane, admitted hitting Const. Ron Coste twice after the officer was called to the youth's former residence at 1-1234 Pandora, to help break up a domestic quarrel between Rawlings and his father, Ernest.

Const. A. W. Cooper, who accompanied Coste to the apartment, told court Coste was punched twice in the face when he tried to restrain Rawlings from heading towards his father.

Coste suffered minor face injuries.

James A. Condon, 20, of Port Hardy, was fined $75 after he was convicted of possession of marijuana.

Const. Christopher Smith told the court Condon, formerly of Victoria, was found to have a portion of the narcotic on his person when he was stopped by police Dec. 27 on 700-block Market Street.

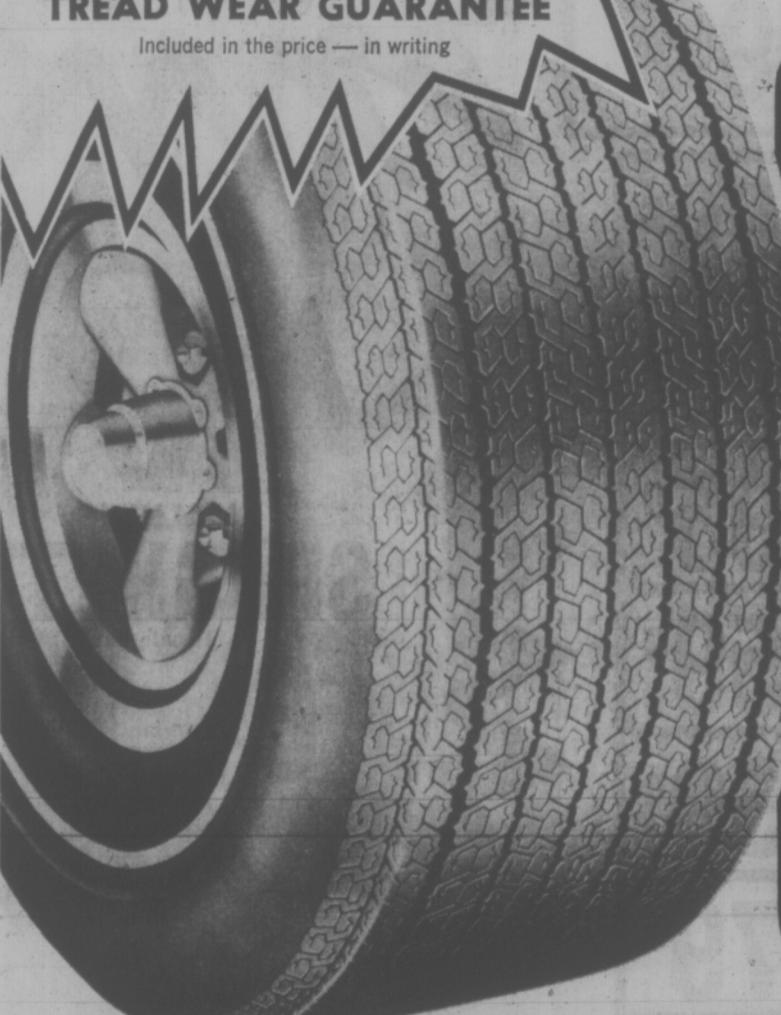

Well Explosion Injures 11 Men

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP) — Eleven men were flown to hospital in Edmonton Monday for treatment of first- and second-degree burns suffered in an oilfield explosion 55 miles north of here.

The men were taken to hospital here for initial treatment after an oil well exploded Sunday while gas, found at 3,000 feet, was being brought under control. Exploration is being done by the Gulf, Imperial and Shell Oil companies.

Library Board Seeks Branch Library Defended Regionalized Service

The Greater Victoria Library Board will ask the Capital Regional Board to regionalize library services as soon as possible.

Library director Donald Miller and Brian Tobin will attend the next CRDB meeting to present and explain a draft proposal on regionalization.

The draft suggests that administration be revamped.

The reorganized Greater Victoria Public Library would be administered by a library board appointed under part III and section 56A of the Public Libraries Act. The board would be composed of the chairman of the CRDB (or a member of the board) and other members chosen by the regional board or employees of the regional district.

It recommends that the library board be required to present to the CRDB a detailed estimate of the money required to operate the library system for the current year with the CRDB having the authority to either approve or disapprove the budget.

The draft states that the CRDB should apply for supplementary letters patent to assume the responsibility for provision of library services to Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Central Saanich and View Royal.

Before doing this, however, the draft says "consent of the municipalities would be required" and a referendum would be needed in View Royal.

Also, a decision would have to be made regarding ownership of library buildings, materials, furniture and fixtures. (At present the Oak Bay branch belongs to the municipality and the Saanich-Victoria branch to Saanich.)

The main library belongs to the "citizens of Greater Victoria" but the land is the property of the city.

Stating that regionalization would permit long-range planning and extension of services to View Royal, the draft notes:

"If it had not been for federal and provincial grants in 1971, there might still not be a branch library in Oak Bay and the Saanich branch might still be operating from inadequate rented quarters. The centennial branches should have been established years ago and it is likely they would have been if the library had been organized as a regional service."

Central Saanich Ald. Zachary Hamilton said regionalization of library services "would be just another spike in the regionalization thing".

He said the CRDB was "taking letters patent for everything under the sun. We (people in the rural areas) are looking askance at that."

His comments followed a report by Miller that "negative responses" had been received from the Vancouver Island Regional Library Board on suggestions for forming a Vancouver Island Public Library Action Group, use of the GVPL's reference department and co-operation in other fields.

The attitude seems to be we want to play the game our way. My response is that's fine, let's try it."

He said the VRL board is unwilling to discuss their services on the southern part of Vancouver Island without discussing their entire system.

The board, with the exception of Saanich Ald. Alan Newberry, voted to accept the invitation of VRL executive director Fred White for librarians from the Greater Victoria Public Library to meet those of the VRL for a workshop, to be held at the Island Hall April 14 and 15.

Miller said it would cost be-

Children
Now Blind

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — An emergency campaign is under way in Bangladesh to save a generation from going blind. It means giving every child under 6 a dose of high-potency vitamin A, and Dr. Wedie Kamel says it is succeeding.

Dr. Kamel, a public health specialist, estimates that 150,000 Bangladeshi children went blind from malnutrition in 1972.

Food distribution and health services were crippled by a cyclone in 1970, followed by the Pakistan-Indian war of December, 1971. Creation of the new country of Bangladesh resulted from the war.

The United Nations Children's Fund sent Dr. Kamel to Bangladesh last November to tackle the problem.

tween $400 and $450 to send 15 librarians to the workshop.

Newberry observed, "Here they say come up to Parksville for a weekend. I can't see it. Why should we send 15 librarians up to Parksville for a weekend?"

Miller said, "I tend to feel that maybe nothing (productive) would happen but I think we should give it a try."

In other business:

The board was told that staff members of Local 410, Canadian Union of Public Employees, had applied for mediation in their contract negotiations and mediator Clark Gilmour would start Friday.

The board asked Miller to produce a full analysis of three possible locations for a second branch in Saanich, giving rentals, renovations that would be needed and the space available.

One of them is in the University Heights shopping centre.

Newberry said, "I would suspect University Heights would be prepared to negotiate — they admitted that."

He suggested Miller contact the centre and ask what their bottom price would be. They are asking $5 a square foot, in addition to 40 cents a square foot for maintenance. The library would also have to cover costs for such things as floor coverings and light fixtures.

City representative Malcolm Anderson said he could not vote for this because it would be "putting the cart before the horse" when the city council had raised formal objections to the establishment of another branch in Saanich.

The entire board of the Greater Victoria Public Library will ask to appear before Victoria city council in an attempt to get aldermen to drop their objections to a new branch library in the Gordon Head area of Saanich.

At its meeting library director Donald Miller read a letter to the board in which the city council stated it "formally objected" to the $55,253 included in the budget for the new branch, stating that its objection was based on the need "to stabilize the operating budget for at least two years."

Board member Brian Tobin reported that, as in the past two years, he and other representatives had met with the city council's finance committee to explain the budget, rather than the entire council.

Saanich Ald. Alan Newberry said: "We should meet with city council as a whole. I understand that city council was not unanimous."

Noting that the original plans were to build the Victoria-Saanich centennial branch as a replacement for quarters formerly rented in the Shelbourne shopping centre, and add an additional branch in the Gordon Head area later, Newberry added:

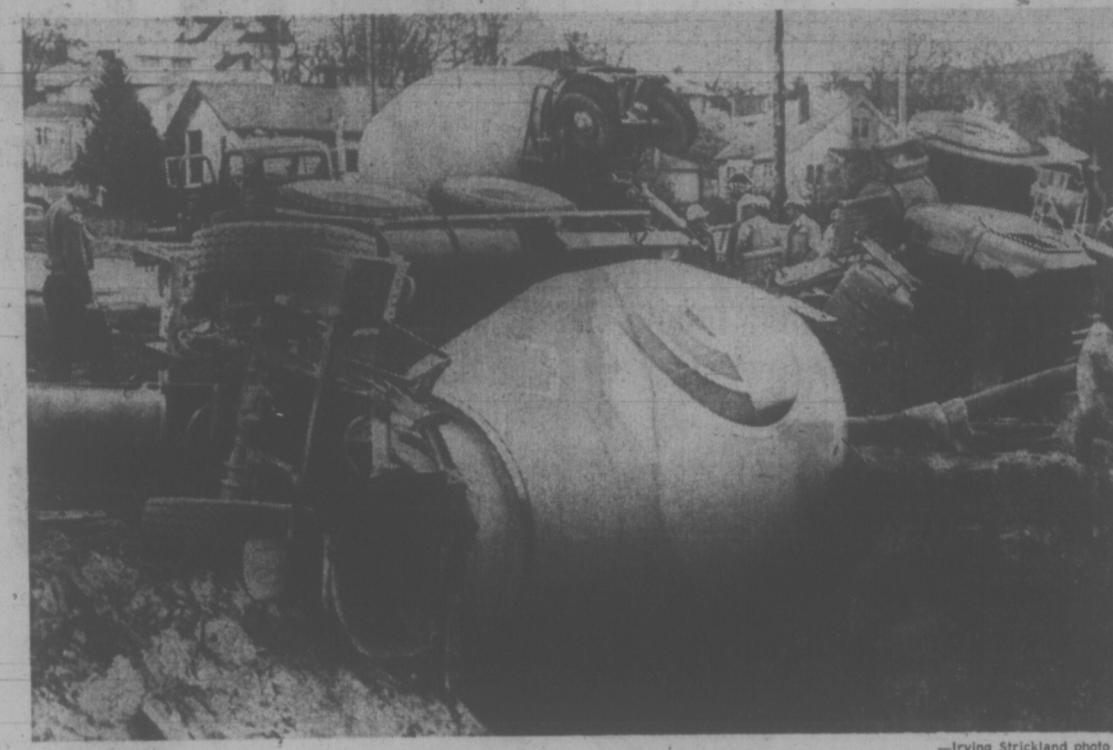

"I'm wondering whether they're saying they're now going back on their word. There's been some misunderstanding and misconception."

Miller said it was important that a decision on the library's proposed budget be made soon.

"We're a quarter way through the year. If the branch is not approved we should stop buying books for

Newberry said: "I make this motion (to meet with city council) in a great deal of hope. I'm quite confident that city council will reconsider its decision — we should hang in there."

It was assumed that the board would be able to meet with council at the council meeting scheduled for Thursday, April 5.

WHEN REAR WHEELS of 25-ton cement mixer driven by Arthur Brethour backed into soft fill Tuesday afternoon, mighty machine toppled into rerouted creek bed alongside apartment construction site at Shelbourne and Christmas. Crane later hoisted it out. While company spokesman had no damage estimate today, he said hardened concrete will be removed from giant mixer.

B.C. Rail Changes

Premier Barrett, president of the B.C. Railway, Tuesday announced two administrative changes in the management of the railway.

J. S. Broadbent, who has been vice-president of the railway, becomes vice-president in charge of development and research.

M. C. Norris, who has been general manager, becomes vice-president in charge of operations.

Barrett said of the move: "This administrative change will allow us to keep up with the expanded development demands of our railway."

Rocky Road Frosting

4 tablespoons Butter or margarine
2 tablespoons Rogers' Golden Syrup
1 ounce unsweetened chocolate
1/2 cup golden brown sugar, sifted
1/2 cup miniature marshmallows (or cut-up large marshmallows)

Place butter, chocolate, brown sugar, Rogers' Golden Syrup and cream in a saucepan. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly; boil hard 2 minutes (until bubbles are large and glossy). Remove from heat and mix in icing sugar and marshmallows, stirring until melted. Immediately spread over top of cake, letting it drip down sides. Garnish with pecan or walnut halves. This is enough frosting for the top of an 8" or 9" layer cake or square cake; or a cake baked in a 10" tube pan.

Tax, Insurance Cuts Lead Manitobans to Polls

WINNIPEG (CP) — Substantial relief for virtually every member of the tax-paying public, including elimination of health insurance premiums, was promised Tuesday night in a pre-election budget brought down in the Manitoba legislature.

Included in the budget of the New Democratic Party government were $78 million in tax and premium reductions for the new fiscal year beginning April 1.

They will be financed in part from a current revenue surplus of $43 million. A year ago, the government had predicted a $2.7-million deficit, but a buoyant provincial economy and revised equalization grants from the federal treasury changed the picture.

All health insurance premiums are to be eliminated beginning June 1, saving families $99.60 a year, and single persons $49.80.

The government's education property tax credit plan, in effect for the first time this year, is to be expanded to provide tax rebates of between $100 and $200 on 1973 income tax returns filed next year.

The plan will benefit both homeowners and renters, but homeowners will have the added advantage of being able to take the minimum $100 rebate as a credit on their 1973 municipal tax bills.

Premier Ed Schreyer, who is also the province's finance minister estimated that the next property tax plan would give taxpayers an additional tax break of about $60 over the current plan.

The budget also contains the beginning of a revenue-sharing plan to give municipalities five per cent of the province's total personal and corporate income tax yields starting with $2 million in additional grants.

An additional $14 million is to support primary and secondary education.

Premier Schreyer said one result of his budget will be that municipalities will be able to hold the line on taxes or even offer tax cuts; while some school divisions may not have to levy any extra money from local property taxes.

The budget is expected to be the last before a provincial election later this year, and the premier devoted much of his attention in the budget speech to his government's efforts at reducing tax burdens over the last four years.

Virtually every Manitoba taxpayer is paying less in combined personal income taxes and health insurance premiums than he paid in 1969 under the previous Conservative government, he said, and these taxes now are among the lowest in Canada.

Seat Belts Eyed On School Buses

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government is studying the possibility of making seat belts mandatory on school buses. Highways Minister Clarence Copithorne said Tuesday.

He told the legislature however, seat belts on school buses are not mandatory under regulations of the Canadian Safety Standards Association. The initiative to make them mandatory would probably have to come from the association.

"I might also add that there are other factors that are probably more critical for the safety of children in school buses."

One of them, he said, is the type of seat installed.

Copithorne reiterated that on some occasions, drivers of school buses are examined for their licenses in vehicles other than school buses.

There are many things that go into licensing a school bus driver for safety he said. One of the things that is probably most prevalent and important is his attitude towards the children which is pretty hard for an examiner with an empty bus to appraise."

Loan Supported

EDMONTON (CP) — Agriculture Minister Hugh Horner said Tuesday he will probably support a British Columbia proposal for an interest-free loan by the federal government of $10 an acre for farmers whose crops have been damaged.

The minister said he has received no direct communication from the B.C. government about the proposal concerning a maximum of 400 acres per farm.

Farmers Fined

LACOMBE, Alta. (CP) — Fines ranging from $50 to $600 were levied Tuesday against 17 farmers from the Bentley area in central Alberta who pleaded guilty to over-delivery of grain to an elevator.

Twelve other farmers facing similar charges who pleaded not guilty and three who reserved plea were remanded to April 3. One farmer, Fred Binning, pleaded not guilty but was convicted on one count of over-delivery and fined $50.

NDP 'Pigeonicide'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Wally McKenzie (PC-Roblin) accused the NDP government Tuesday of practising "pigeonicide."

He drew attention to the grain laced with poison left for pigeons on the legislature's outside steps.

Public Works Minister Russell Doern acknowledged that poisoned grain is sometimes left for pigeons.

He said the practice has been followed for years.

CANADIAN UNION'S BID REJECTED BY LABOR BOARD

TRAIL (CP) — The British Columbia Labor Relations Board Tuesday rejected an application by the Canadian Workers Union (CWU) for a certification vote among 3,900 Cominco workers in Trail, Salmo and Kimberley who currently are represented by the United Steelworkers Union.

The board ruled that the CWU is not a trade union within the meaning of the B.C. Labor Relations Act.

It also said there were people at the union's founding convention in September who were not members of the CWU but who voted for its officers.

The board said at least four officers of CWU Local One in Trail were not members of the union when they were elected and none of those elected as officers of Local Two in Kimberley were members of CWU.

Bob Keiver, president of United Steelworkers Union Local 480, said he had "always felt that the CWU's application was irregular."

"Now the decision has been made, I would hope the local can get back to its proper perspective and continue to do the job it has been doing to represent our members on the many problems we are now facing with management," he said.

Archie McKinnon, financial secretary of CWU Local One, said the union will hold an executive meeting tonight to decide on a course of action to recommend to the membership.

Opposition leader W. A. C. Bennett sent a telegram Tuesday night to CWU officials saying he will appeal to the government to allow a vote to be taken on union preference at the Cominco plant in that town.

Bennett said the board made its decision on a minor technicality.

Broadcaster Slate

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS (CP) — The British Columbia Association of Broadcasters Tuesday named Bob Hall of CKXR Salmon Arm as its new president, replacing Dalt Elton of CKWX Vancouver.

Mel Cooper of CKNW New Westminster was chosen vice-president.

Fined for Pollution

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Shil-Burn Trailer Park and owner C. E. Strasdin were fined $350 for discharging untreated sewage into a creek. Charges were laid Jan. 3 after the local Pollution Control Board branch investigated complaints from area residents.

Budget Adopted

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — City council adopted a budget of $13.2 million for the city in 1973. The budget is $752,000 higher than last year's but the mill rate will remain the same because per capita grants, a $200,000-plus from last year's budget, and taxes from construction have added to the city's coffers.

Mother Remanded

SURREY (CP) — Diane May Yaciew, 22, of Surrey, was remanded for one week Tuesday when she appeared on a non-capital murder charge arising from the death ### of her young daughter in hospital.

Cheques Taken

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police said cheques and cash worth $28,250 were stolen from the dispatch office of Canadian Courier Services Ltd.

Byelection

DELTA (CP) — Council set a May 12 date for byelection to replace Ald. Bernard Moore who resigned last week rather than reveal his assets as required under the provincial government's proposed Disclosure Act. The nomination date is April 20.

Jericho Takeover

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Art Phillips announced Tuesday that Vancouver will officially take over 72 acres of land at Jericho Beach from the federal government on Friday. He said the city is still seeking an additional 38 acres of federal land and 400 one-ounce packages of MDA.

Delay Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Board of Trade Tuesday urged the provincial government to delay action on the proposed Land Commission Act until what the board called "serious deficiencies" in the bill are corrected.

Be-In to Be Held

VANCOUVER (CP) — The parks board again rejected an annual request for the annual Easter Sunday be-in to be held in Stanley Park, but the

Individual Investor On Decline

NEW YORK (AP) — Chairman James J. Needham of the New York Stock Exchange reported today that the number of individual shareholders in the United States declined last year by 800,000, or 2.5 per cent, to an estimated 31.7 million.

Needham, in the exchange's annual estimate of shareowners, said the entire securities industry "has been aware for some time that the small investor has been out of the market."

Needham said the decline in individual shareholders from the estimated 32.5 million in early 1972 was partly due to a 300,000 drop in the number of mutual fund shareowners during the year.

He said a package of tax proposals he presented last week to the ways and means committee of the House of Representatives is one way deduction against ordinary income; permitting limited tax deductions for retirement savings; encouraging voluntary employee contributions to employer-sponsored stock plans, and a sliding-scale system that would reduce the percentage of capital gains subject to taxes to 20 per cent from 30 per cent over a 30-year period.

Most L.I.P. For Que.

By PAUL JACKSON
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The province of Quebec received more federal money in grants under the Local Initiatives Program in 1972 than the entire four Western provinces and two Northern territories combined.

According to information supplied to Saskatchewan MP Stan Korchinski (PC—McKenzie), Quebec received more than $77 million in LIP grants last year while the four Western provinces and two territories got a combined $43 million.

Some 2,377 grant applications were approved for Quebec, while applications approved for the four Western provinces and two territories totalled 1,787.

The information, given to the Western Opposition MP in a written reply, was personally signed by Mark MacGuigan, parliamentary secretary to Manpower and Immigration Minister Robert Andras. Andras' department is in charge of the Local Initiatives Program, and MacGuigan is MP for Windsor Walkerville, Ont.

Only $18.8M for B.C.

In the West, British Columbia received the largest amount of money at $18,880,301. The province had $15 applications for grants approved.

Alberta came second in the West with 410 grant approvals bringing in just under $10 million.

Manitoba had 278 grant approvals for $7,325,244. Some 224 grants were approved from Saskatchewan worth $5,259,863.

MARKET JOBS THREATENED

TORONTO (CP) — The use of computerized check-out counters could eliminate roughly 2,000 to 3,000 jobs or about one-third of the work force in Canadian supermarkets, Theodore Kehoe, special assistant to the Canadian director of the Retail Clerks Union, said today.

He was commenting on statements made by industry representatives attending the annual meeting here of the Grocery Products Manufacturers of Canada.

They said the food industry is experimenting with computerized check-out systems that would eliminate the jobs of the price stamper, checker and stocktaker. The system could be in supermarkets by 1975.

Mr. Kehoe said the only thing the union can do by negotiation is to try to ensure no jobs are lost in the process. He said some people may call this "featherbedding," but society shouldn't come to the point where governments have to subsidize people because their jobs have been replaced by computers.

Under the system, cans and packages no longer would be price-stamped, but instead coded at the factory. The prices would be marked on shelves.

The customer would pass the product under a computer terminal which scans the code and calculates the cost directly on the cash register tape while at the same time adjusting inventory.

Blood Testing

OTTAWA (CP) — Blood tests should replace breath analysis to provide a tougher deterrent against impaired driving, the Canadian Automobile Association said today.

Great Britain, Denmark and Sweden have found blood tests effective in curbing alcohol-related accidents, the association said in a brief to the federal cabinet.

"Blood (testing) provides a certain means of determining precise alcohol-blood ratio," said the brief.

The association also recommended that the government delay implementing exhaust emission standards, enact automobile warranty legislation and help the provinces devise minimum emergency highway medical standards.

Breath analysis has not been as strong a deterrent against drunk driving as anticipated, said the brief. A number of factors, many unforeseen, had weakened breath analysis legislation.

The association would have blood taken from suspected impaired drivers by trained technicians and doctors. Refusal to submit to a blood test would be an offence, the same as refusing breath analysis.

The rights of accused persons would be protected by blood samples for independent analysis.

TIME FOR RESEARCH
The association, representing 1.1 million Canadian motorists, said delaying proposed automobile pollution standards until 1980 would allow more time for research.

Government-assisted research into alternate fuels and engines might solve pollution problems at an acceptable cost.

"We are led to believe that the rigid standards that have been proposed will add substantially to the cost of purchasing and operating automobiles."

Proposed government standards call for reduction of exhaust emissions by 90 per cent in 1976.

PRICES UP

Automobile prices could rise an estimated $350 in 1976 because of pollution control devices, said the brief. Fuel consumption could increase 25 per cent because of allegedly inferior gasoline mileage on vehicles equipped with anti-pollution devices.

Warranties, said the brief, are a continuing source of irritation to motorists. Minimum warranty standards were needed on all new automobiles sold in Canada, forcing manufacturers to repair or replace defective workmanship or materials at no cost to the purchaser.

The association also recommended:

—Acceptable automobile child restraints carry approved labels;

—Compulsory vehicle inspection under government supervision;

—Improved vehicle lighting for night driving;

—Unlimited Sunday trucking not be allowed.

In the mall the other day there came an interesting folder, bright colored and easy to read.

The front cover shows a smiling man, right hand outstretched. He's dressed western style, with wide brimmed hat, check suit, flamboyant tie and he's holding a big, fat cigar in his left hand.

The smile is still there, the right hand is still out. Instead of a cigar, the left hand now holds a golf club.

DESIGNERS WEASEL OUT

FLORENCE, Italy (UPI) — Designers avoided arguments with ecologists by using weasel instead of seal in their fur collections for fall and winter.

Dyed tobacco brown, red or green, lined with tweed or mixed with opossum, weasel looks smooth, luxurious, warm and more elegant than rabbit.

Fendi of Rome won round after round of applause from the 500 fashion writers attending this week's ready-to-wear show with his coats and jackets of weasel, opossum and fox. It was the most enthusiastic reception for any designer so far.

The Roman furrier showed loose or belted three-quarter coats and jackets in wide brown and mustard horizontal stripes of dyed weasel, revering to a narrower horizontal stripe or, from horizontal to vertical. He made similar jackets one shade lighter than navy blue on one side, dark brown on the other.

He Has a Fine Line to Follow

was Stewart Gordon, brother-in-law of Hayes Reed, then superintendent of CPR hotels.

Mrs. Reed and her sister Mrs. Gordon, master-minded plans for interior decorations and furnishings throughout the new hotel. And while there may have been misgivings in those far-away days as to the ability of women to spear-head such an ambitious project, the result, when the hotel opened on January 20, 1908, brought nothing but praise.

Next nine managers, whose terms of office covered 23 years, were Col. B. M. Humble, H. Jackson, A. Benaglia, T. Coles, W. Windross, B. F. Quail, again Col. Humble for a second time in 1919, then H. J. Wilson and in June, 1931, Kirk Hodges.

During those years the Empress was known for the dignity of its surroundings and the quiet elegance of its social events.

There were Wednesday and Saturday afternoon tea dances and evening musical soirees and the ballroom. The Prince of Wales (later to be Duke of Windsor) danced there. Elaborate banquets and dinners were held. And the elite of Victoria accepted the Empress Hotel as its own.

When Hodges stepped up from being the hotel's assistant manager to the top position, a new era was ushered in. One that welcomed increased numbers of Victorians.

He was manager for 21 years — a record still to be broken. And in that time many innovations were introduced.

Local organizations sponsored popular annual events such as the Snow Ball on Boxing Night (Dec. 26), the Spinsters' Ball at Valentine time, the children's fancy dress party shortly before Christmas and the United Services Institution Ball, to mention only a few.

The still popular Empress Golf Week was inaugurated in Hodges' time with a wind-up night featuring cabaret numbers planned and organized by Mrs. Charles (Dolly) Wilson.

In 1953, Tom Chester, with his twinkling smile and his standard welcoming word "cheerio" took the manager's chair for a brief two years.

Next came Cyril Chapman for an eight year stint in which he nudged "the old girl" as he lovingly labeled the Empress to "kicking up her heels a bit."

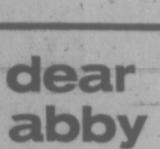

Modern touches he inaugurated included opening a wing of the hotel as a motor lodge (now closed down) and putting a large sign at the front entrance (that still flashes a welcome).

Les Parkinson took over in 1963 and while he was manager "Operation Teacup" a renovation scheme that covered the hotel from roof to basement was in full swing.

When Parkinson retired, Louis Finamore came in. He completed the face-lifting by changing the Coronet Room, a quietly dignified cocktail lounge into a swinging, psychedelic Bengal Tiger Room and opening the Paint Cellar, a cabaret in the basement.

Now comes Bill Gray to escort "the old girl" into what we are told will be a new and even more exciting era.

We shake his outstretched hand and we wish him well!

Price Tags Are Flying As Parliament Looks

By ART JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The way the price tags were flying, it was as though every big department store and small shop in Canada had decided to have a fire sale on the same day.

Roy Goebel, who works for Woodward Stores Ltd. in Edmonton, says it was "one of the worst hub-bubs I've ever seen."

Some stores, like Woodward's, where Goebel is assistant merchandise manager in softwares, didn't get all their labels changed for two weeks.

Customers were given a reduced price as they paid for their purchase at the cash register.

It was Feb. 20, the day after Finance Minister John Turner introduced the federal budget.

He announced immediate removal at the factory level of the 12-per-cent sales tax on children's clothing and footwear and the sales tax on near-food items, including candy and soft drinks.

Turner also removed the special 10-per-cent excise tax on toilet articles and cosmetics and the excise tax on timepieces worth less than $50 at the factory level.

WILL BE WATCHING

"Parliament will be watching for results," Turner said, "and I expect that Canadian consumers will, as well."

A spokesman for Jack and Jill Ltd., in Edmonton, a children's shoe retailer, said the results were immediate, and for the small shopkeeper, disastrous.

"We lost our shirts on merchandise on the shelf and in transit," the spokesman said, because prices were reduced although tax already had been paid.

A cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows that both retailers and consumer groups believe the budget measures have lowered prices. But some consumer advocates are waiting to see how long the effects will last.

Frances Ball, executive secretary of the Consumers' Association of Canada, says some stores which immediately offered reduced prices are suffering a loss for the sake of public relations.

She says some manufacturers are "already making excuses for not reducing prices on children's clothing and footwear by claiming that the budget moves will merely delay inevitable price increases."

The CAC, with the help of information gathered by Statistics Canada, will study prices over the next six months to see if the budget moves had any lasting effect.

The Retail Council of Canada says that at the very least, removal of the tax should delay some price increases.

Price reduction probably will average out at about four to six per cent — or about half the tax that formerly was levied at the wholesale level, the council says.

Here is a look at the situation in some provinces:

Nova Scotia: In Halifax, Jannet Murray, president of the local branch of the Canadian Consumers Association, says she has noticed savings on children's clothing.

She said removal of the tax could be an advantage but prices may rise again in a couple of months because of inflation.

Quebec: In Quebec City, some retailers say they have lost money because of the budget provisions.

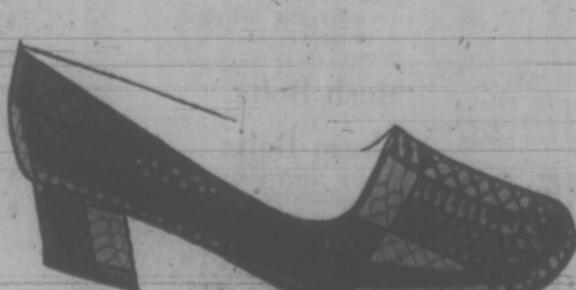

Ontario: Helen Rheame, first and only officer of Contact, a consumer aid group set up by Nepean township near Ottawa, and funded by the municipality, says the budget "hasn't affected the amount of money I'm spending on food."

As for the tax cuts on children's clothing, says Mrs. Rheame, mother of five, "It's only children's wear and once you get past children's sizes, it gets very expensive."

Manitoba: Winnipeg-area retailers passed on the savings

Deafness: Unseen and Ignored

TORONTO (CP) — The needs of the 50,000 deaf persons in Canada are being ignored because their handicap is invisible, Dr. Graeme Wallace, a Toronto psychologist, said Friday in a report commissioned by the federal health and welfare department.

Wallace who conducted a 10-month study, said the deaf get inadequate schooling, dead-end jobs and scant sympathy from federal and provincial governments.

His 88-page report cost $50,000 and 1966 Ottawa allocated less than $1.7 million to help the deaf while almost $53 million was spent on the mentally ill and more than $31 million on the blind. The deaf were behind every group except those who could not speak.

According to Statistics Canada there are 27,000 blind persons and 60,000 receiving treatment for mental illness.

Wallace, who works for the Canadian Rehabilitation Council for the Disabled, said 3,410 deaf children are "isolated" in 12 special schools across Canada that deny parental, professional and community involvement.

When the deaf leave the special schools they are "forced into society where they are emotionally, psychologically and linguistically ill prepared."

He said many schools discourage outside involvement as an "encroachment of authority."

He said those who leave the schools cannot read as well as normal elementary school children, only 12 per cent can speak properly and only four per cent are proficient in lip reading.

He found no province which has an early screening program to detect deafness in pre-schoolers and, if deafness is determined, there is no supportive service for parents, Wallace said.

BURSARIES FOR FRENCH

Federal bursaries will be awarded to 437 British Columbia students to study the French language and Quebec culture this summer.

The bursaries are part of the nationwide Summer Language Bursary Program, now in its third year, which is administered by the Council of Ministers of Education of Canada.

Students will attend an educational institution in Quebec for six or seven weeks to become immersed in the French language and Quebec environment. A similar number of French-speaking students will come to B.C. to learn English.

To qualify, students must have been at least 17 by last December 31 and must have enrolled as full-time post-secondary students during 1972-3, or be able to verify secondary school graduation by June 1973.

"All removal of the tax will do is hold inflation down six months," he said.

Alberta: Ruth Woods, president of the Edmonton branch, CAC, says she is disappointed that the tax removal came at the factory, rather than the retail level.

She says "we're always happy to see cuts made when the consumers will share the benefits." She cautions shoppers to watch prices closely, and to question store managers if they don't think price reductions are being passed on.

British Columbia: Ruth Lotzkar of Vancouver wrote Mr. Turner immediately after he announced his budget, asking for a list of specific items affected by the tax reductions. "We're still waiting for a reply," says Mrs. Lotzkar, president of the Consumers Association of B.C.

OTTAWA (CP) — If architects, city planners and politicians had to spend a little time in wheelchairs, they would build buildings and plan cities that would be easier for everyone, says Tony Mann of Winnipeg, executive director of the Canadian Paraplegic Association.

A "totally accessible community" need not cost more if the planning for wheelchairs is considered from the first stages of any new development, he said in a recent interview.

And the same conveniences that help an individual in a wheelchair also aid people with cardiac conditions, mothers pushing baby carriages, the elderly pulling grocery carts and thousands of Canadians who are marginally handicapped and need canes or are slightly insecure on their feet.

"Even the completely fit person is inclined to walk up a wheelchair ramp rather than climb the stairs."

CODE UNOBSERVED
Mann, who was in Ottawa to attend a national conference on technology and the disabled, said there is a national building code with provisions that ensure that the rights of the handicapped are considered. But although these have been approved for years, many areas do not use them.

The conference recommended that the code be enforced for all new federal buildings and accepted by provincial governments for provincial buildings.

Mann, who has been confined to a wheelchair since a war injury in 1945, said architects and planners seem to love split levels.

"They'll put a ramp up the side of a building, then just inside the door there will be three steps. The person in a wheelchair will have to have help."

HOTELS CRITICIZED
Such little things rob a wheelchair person of his independence, he said. Although he may be capable of getting around on his own, he may be prevented from working in many offices, for example, because the doorways aren't wide enough for him to go through.

Hotels have been criticized by paraplegics because they are poorly planned to accommodate wheelchairs. A recent visitor to Ottawa complained that in one hotel which advertised "wheelchair facilities" — meaning the doors were wide and the bathrooms large enough to admit wheelchairs easily — she had to enter through the kitchen to get to an elevator that was not blocked by steps.

Mann said the bellhops at that hotel, who must be forced to haul trunk carts up and down steps, also should complain.

"That's bad architectural planning."

If an individual in a wheelchair could use public transport and manoeuvre himself to hospital, it would save the time and expense of a second person. And most paraplegics need regular visits to hospitals, Mann says.

"As it is, a spouse often must take a day off work. And this makes the individual feel more and more like a dependent cripple."

Public Help Asked in Hunt

DUNCAN — Duncan RCMP have asked the public to help them locate a vehicle, believed to be a Dodge station wagon, which was driven by a masked man who tried to attack a girl March 19 in a washroom of Cowichan High School.

Police believe it is a 1961 or 1962 model, oxidized reddish maroon, with round taillights and several chrome strips running vertically on the tailgate door.

Anyone with information concerning a similar type of vehicle should contact the RCMP.

New Treatment for Retarded Praised

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario has announced a new direction in dealing with its retarded, easing the way for their return to the community from the hospital schools. And authorities on mental retardation have praised the plan.

"You have brought us a silver lining," was the way Dolly Tarsis, president of the Toronto Association for the Mentally Retarded, greeted a white paper on the plans.

Dr. Donald Zarfas, director of the province's services for the mentally retarded, said environment plays a much larger role in retardation than has been given recognition and it is a factor that may be manipulated and reversed.

He said large institutions have tended to add to the problem of retardation but early diagnosis, counselling family and placement of the retarded in the community "will go a tremendous distance to minimize the handicap."

The province has hospital schools at Smiths Falls and Orillia holding more than 1,500 each.

Dr. G. Allan Roehrer, director of the National Institute on Mental Retardation at York University, said he was delighted with the proposal.

"We know that if the mildly and even the moderately retarded are well placed and trained in both job skills and social skills they tend to stay on the job longer than the average employee. They're usually steady and reliable."

"It's just amazing what these people can do if there is a genuine willingness to give them an opportunity."

Dr. Roehrer said that of the 500,000 retarded people in Canada — 70,000 in Ontario — about 80 per cent are considered mildly retarded and 15 per cent are moderately retarded.

Most in the larger group can work successfully on assembly lines and many in the smaller group — with intelligence quotas of 35 to 50 compared to the normal of 100 — can work on the open market "if you give these people sound stimulation programs in early infancy and preschool enrichment."

The government's policy paper noted that Ontario firms are allowed to pay retarded workers less than the $1.80 minimum wage in view of the low productivity of the retarded employee and resultant higher net cost of employing him.

"One option would be to give the company $175 a month — the cost of subsidizing the retarded at sheltered workshop and disability allowance — if the company agrees to pay the person anything over that."

Another opinion suggests the government provide grants to firms hiring retarded people at the minimum wage of $1.80 an hour.

REDUCTION POSSIBLE

Dr. Roehrer said society has enough knowledge of preventive and rehabilitative measures to cut the problem of mental retardation by half but the goal probably won't be reached for up to twenty years.

He said as long as the retarded function usefully and have a degree of happiness then the question whether they have an IQ of 70 becomes irrelevant.

If normal people with an IQ of 100 live in a slum, work at dull jobs in factories and never have an original thought, they'll ultimately function at an IQ of 50.

"... More often than not retarded people don't fall for lack of job skills but because they lack social skills, all of which can be taught."

Dr. Zarfas said one preventive measure would be registration of high-risk people who have a retarded person in the family.

There are about 50 conditions leading to retardation that can be detected before birth, he said. This gives the family an opportunity to decide whether to have an abortion.

There has also been leadership and counselling in slums and high-level apartment buildings where the chance of cultural retardation is high he said.

China Missiles Noted by U.S.

WASHINGTON (WP) — Calling attention to the emergence of China as "a major nuclear power in its region." Calling attention to the emergence of China as "a major nuclear power in its region." U.S. Defense Secretary Elliot L. Richardson has reported to congress that "China's nuclear reach will soon extend to all of the Soviet Union."

Richardson appeared to be referring to indications that China would soon deploy a new 3,500-mile range missile able to reach many of Russia's main cities west of the Urals, including Moscow.

While the Pentagon, in its previous reports to congress each year at budget time, has reported what was known about Chinese missile developments, Richardson's statement marked the first time the Pentagon has clearly spelled out the potential nuclear threat that China poses to the Soviet Union.

In the past, most attention has been focused on when a Chinese missile could span 6,000 and 7,000 miles and reach the U.S.

Richardson did say that China's nuclear reach also could extend to the U.S. by the end of this decade. But the reference to Russia as a potential target comes at a time of considerable speculation among defence and foreign policy specialists about whether the Soviets were ever, or are now, planning a surprise strike against China to wipe out its budding nuclear arsenals, and how much the fear of such a strike may have pushed China toward a greater accommodation of their present and future military capabilities."

Currently, U.S. officials say

China has about 50 medium and intermediate range missiles deployed in above ground and able to reach targets 600 to 1,500 miles away.

These missiles could hit some Siberian cities but now the Soviet heartland.

Thus, despite the opening of more normal relations with both communist powers, Richardson said "regardless of what we hope the ultimate intentions of the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China may be, we must keep before us a clear-eyed calculation of their present and future military capabilities."

Richardson also called attention to continuing Soviet tests of three new versions of existing long-range missiles.

'Anti-Doggy' Chief Wants Leashes in Park

Dogs, mini-bikes and over indulgent parents were criticized by Chief John Green Tuesday night at Oak Bay council's parks and recreation committee meeting.

Green made his feelings known after discussion of letters received, objecting to an order that dogs be leashed in Uplands Park during the birds' nesting season.

Mrs. Nancy Craven of 2666 Dewdney said any trouble was not caused by dogs but by boys with pellet guns and mini-bikes.

Tahsis Road Upgrading Discussed

Negotiations between the Tahsis Company and the provincial department of highways are under way to provide for government participation in improvements of the Gold River-Tahsis road.

The announcement came Tuesday from Bob Skelly, NDP MLA from Alberni. He said he is hopeful that the road can be extended to Zeballos and Fair Harbor.

The existing road came about partly through creation of a logging access road and partly through a right-of-way for B.C. Hydro power lines.

Skelly said residents of Tahsis have requested that the road be improved for use by private automobiles and freight trucks.

Alaskan Cruise Finally Set For Project Quest Students

Project Quest, a five-day field study cruise which will take 300 high school students to Alaska and back, will probably be repeated next spring, said Rick Warrington, one of the trip's organizers.

"There's no way, with the amount of time we've spent on this, we'll do it only once," said Warrington, a teacher at Sooke school district's Elizabeth Fisher Junior High School.

The Grade 11 and 12 students, who are coming from across Western Canada, will leave Victoria May 2 on the CP ferry Princess Patricia, along with teachers and university faculty members.

Warrington said there is still room for 40 students. In an effort to get more Greater Green, who said he had no dog, emphasized that he was only concerned about the birds and nuisance dogs caused to neighbors.

"Dogs," he said, "don't need a place to run in that sense. They don't need exercise as these people maintain they do."

"A dog gets all the exercise he needs by walking around his own backyard if there is a fence around."

"A lot of damn nonsense" was Green's reaction to a suggestion that nesting birds

Polling Stations In Schools

Royal Oak, Cordova Bay and Prospect Lake elementary schools will be used as polling stations Saturday for Saanich's by-election to name a school trustee for school District 63.

Five candidates have declared their willingness to stand for the position.

They are: Mrs. Margaret Protopappas, 4965 Lochside; D. A. Grafton, 4923 Townsend; F. R. Machin, 985 Abbey; Dr. Ron Tinney, 5060 Cordova Bay; S. G. Watson, 1670 Pear.

While Education Minister Eileen Daily has the power under the Public School Act to appoint a trustee, Mrs. Daily suggested a by-election to fill the vacancy.

The post was left vacant after the December municipal elections when John Pennington decided not to run for re-election and the only other candidate was disqualified on a technicality.

Hoax Delays CP Airliner

TEL AVIV (AP) — A bomb threat from an anonymous caller delayed a Canadian Pacific airliner for 90 minutes, but the call proved to be a hoax, police said today.

Passengers disembarked from the CPA flight to Rome and Montreal, and the plane was moved to a far corner of Lodi International Airport for a thorough search, a police announcement said. No bomb was found.

Water Pollution 'Emergency'

George Smith, president of the B.C. Wildlife Federation, today called on senior government to treat the pollution of Kamloops Lake and the Thompson River as a "major emergency."

"It should be given top priority by federal and provincial governments," he said. "If steps are not taken to control the pollution, it is death to the river and lake."

Federal and provincial fisheries services are investigating the cause of widespread algae, foam and green slime on the 17-mile long lake and a 60-mile stretch of the Thompson River.

Ed Vernon, provincial fisheries biologist, said Tuesday traces of pulp mill effluent have been found in the water, plus nutrients from human waste.

Smith, in a telephone conversation from Kamloops, said the river which once ran clear is now murky and resi-nts complain of smell from the water. There has also been a marked decrease in fishery.

He felt certain that human effluent is contributing to the pollution.

"In England they are cleaning up their pollution by establishing tertiary treatment plants for sewage," he said. "In B.C. we appear to be allowing the pollution of one river after another."

"I hope the change in government will result in improving the use of our resources," he said. "People are concerned about their environment in this area."

VANCOUVER — The expected provincial government statement on its natural gas policy at the National Energy Board hearing Tuesday was put off until today.

The hearing, which the NEB representatives had hoped would be completed from northern B.C. to the United States border, where it connects with a pipeline owned by El Paso Natural Gas Co. of Texas.

The additional pipeline, all within British Columbia, would be in the form of loops to the company's 866-mile mainline, which stretches from law firm. Taylor is representing the attorney general's office.

Barrett said last week that the government would make its views on natural gas pricing known at the NEB hearing.

Energy Statement Expected Today

COBBLE HILL — Highways Minister Robert Strachan said Monday he would resign and join the opposition if one piece of land is confiscated under the government's controversial Bill 42.

The minister said he would not be standing before a group of 150 Cobble Hill residents, the majority farmers, if the bill allowed confiscation.

"If there is any land confiscated after passage of that bill, I will cross the floor," he said.

"I am not playing politics with the bill," he said, "I'm looking at it as it is."

He said a brief delivered by the B.C. Federation of Agriculture in 1969 asked the former government to do something to preserve farmland and it was worded more strongly than the proposed legislation.

Quoting from the brief he said the federation requested the government to establish an agency or commission to determine optimum land use and to be authorized to enforce its recommendations.

"That's tougher language than there is in this legislation," he said.

LAND SOUGHT FOR PLOTS

Apartment-dwellers who want to raise flowers or vegetables on an allotment plot in Saanich may have to use surplus school property, council's land committee was told Tuesday.

The subject was referred to staff for study after garden consultant Hilda Beastall suggested vacant municipal land might be made available for a nominal sum to those wanting to have a garden for raising food or to give them a useful activity.

She said a special-plan operates in Ottawa where land accumulated for future use is divided into allotments for people living in the urban core. A $10 seasonal fee pays for the water piped in to each group of plots.

Municipal administrator W. M. Tremayne said there was no municipal land available that could be easily serviced or located on bus routes, but school-property not yet developed could be found closer in.

The committee was told 25 persons wrote in supporting the idea of allotments. They represented widely separated parts of the capital region from Dallas Road to Florence Lake.

"I don't like the idea of telling Mrs. Beastall, 'go and see the school board,'" said Ald. Edith Gunning.

She recommended the staff consult with the school board and suggested that some privately-held land might also be made available.

Land commissioner Frank Harris said school property on Gianford might be used.

Ald. Frank Waring said he was not happy with the staff report and suggested a closer look be given to Swan Lake property owned by Saanich.

Neighbor Charges Playground Mess

Funerals and weddings outside his window are tolerable, but Queenswood resident Gerald R. Johns draws the line at playgrounds with a junk car as part of the furnishings.

In a letter to the mayor and Saanich council, Johns, of 2351 Queenswood, complained of the House of Studies kindergarten operated by the Sisters of St. Ann at 2494 Arbutus, which includes, besides the old car body, "a blue wooden structure with a flag sticking out of it."

The objects are out of keeping with the natural surroundings, and there was "no reason for such desecration of the land," Johns wrote.

He said he had tried to get the owners to tidy up or move the playground equipment to another part of the property.

Obscenity Inquiry Launched in U.S.

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. Federal Communications Commission announced Tuesday it was launching a "non-public" inquiry into obscenity on television, radio and over cable TV.

The decision followed increasing congressional and public pressure on the FCC. It reached a peak last month when the commission received 1,678 complaints about alleged obscene programming. Since December, the FCC has received more than 3,000 such complaints.

In recent appearances in Washington, the commissioners also heard from Sen. John Pastore (D-R.I.) and Rep. Torbert MacDonald (D-Mass.) among others who pressed the issue, which was reflected in a growing volume of mail to congress on the subject.

Design Service Offered

An offer of design consulting service by area architects was referred Tuesday by Saanich planning committee to the Advisory Planning Commission.

Frank H. Russell, president of the Victoria chapter of Architectural Institute of B.C., volunteered the help of members in forming a design advisory panel to consider new developments from the standpoint of harmony with their surroundings.

Municipal planner Tom Loney said discussion of the subject dates back to 1969.

There were both advantages and disadvantages, Loney felt.

"On balance, I favor design panels in the sense that . . . it is possible to avoid the very, very bad. You can reach a consensus on what is terrible," Loney said, even though it may be hard to agree on what is good design.

He said it might be worthwhile for the committee to ask the architects to meet and discuss design panel ideas.

"I don't quite understand their great desire to come in and advise with a design panel," remarked Ald. William Campbell. He said, "90 percent of the designs we get are from architects."

Campbell was concerned that a design panel might be another stumbling block to overcome for a builder seeking approval of a construction plan.

Ald. Frank Waring said the council has no design authority for ordinary rezoning matters, but it would be useful in planning land-use contracts. A design panel to serve the Greater Victoria area would be better than one for Saanich alone, he said.

He said it will be the first time since 1786 that no seals

West Talks Minus MPs 'Sham'

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Alberta MP Doug Roche warned Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau in the House of Commons Tuesday night that the federal government would be committing the "ultimate sham" if it held the much-championed western economic conference behind closed doors.

Roche (PC-Edmonton-Strathcona) told the Commons he was "shocked" to learn that Members of Parliament would have no part to play — not even as observers — in the historic federal-provincial conference scheduled for this summer.

Roche said that, nevertheless, he hopes the conference will be a vehicle to move the country ahead in a positive manner and that the federal Liberal government will listen to western ideas on taxation, energy, agriculture, distribution of powers, transportation, and the development of manufacturing industries.

However, he indicated he was cautious about being optimistic in his hope to see federal bureaucracy stabilized and decentralized.

He said the public works program for 1973-74 showed that no matter how "beautiful the words" the west still has a long way to go in its fight for equity.

"With every passing day as a member of Parliament in Ottawa I become more convinced that the federal government is too big, too dominant, too expensive and imposes itself too much in people's lives."

"Will this bureaucracy ever be limited? Obviously not this year. For the public works department is rushing along on a spending program for Ottawa that exceeds the total amount of public works spending in the four western provinces and two northern territories combined."

The 1973-74 estimates show that the department is working on 22 major projects in the city of Ottawa at a cost of $26 million. In the entire west and north the department will spend just $28 million on new projects."

Seal Hunt Curbed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Frederick Bent announced Tuesday an international agreement to suspend the harvest of fur seals on St. George

Island in the Pacific Ocean island chain off Alaska.

He said it will be the first time since 1786 that no seals have been commercially harvested on St. George. The harvest of seals on a second island, St. Paul, will not be interrupted.

Last year 4,220 seals were taken from St. George and 33,615 from St. Paul. At that time there was some public criticism of the club-and-knife slaughtering method.

Unions Only Rule Hit

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association said Tuesday a bill which states that the provincial government will give public works contracts only to unionized companies is both punitive and offensive in a democratic society.

Under the Public Works Fair Employment Act introduced Monday by Labour Minister Bill King, a contractor doing work for the government, must have a collective agreement with those employees doing the public work.

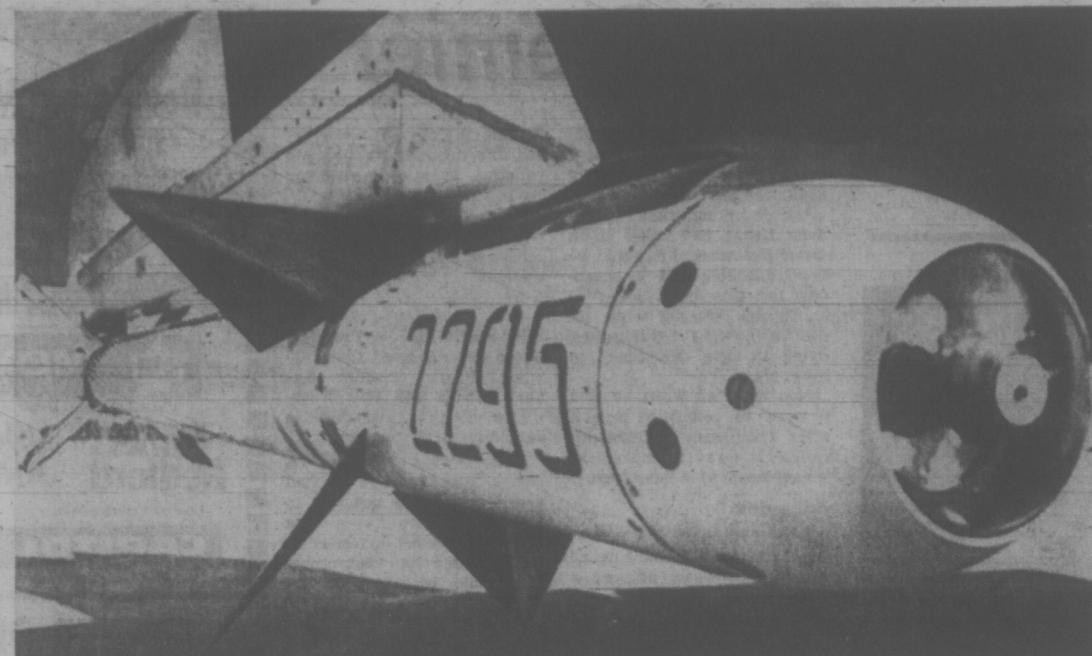

The requirement does not apply to the purchase of materials, equipment or supplies used in public works projects.

In a statement, the CMA Division said the only basis for the B.C. government's purchasing policy should be consideration of quality, cost and delivery, not union affiliation or non-affiliation.

"The question of whether employees of a supplier to the government have chosen to be represented by a union is, we suggest, quite irrelevant."

The statement said to pursue a policy of contracting only with companies having union employees is in itself discrimination against the almost 60 per cent of (B.C.'s) working population which does not choose to be represented by a union. "The Labor Relations Act of this province provides the rules under which employees obtain certification of a union as their bargaining agent, and employers are prohibited from interfering with their employees' wishes.

"The overriding public policy, as expressed in the act, is one of neutrality."

Sharp Calls NDP Bluff and Wins

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp stymied a demand from the New Democratic Party that Parliament be permitted to approve the Vietnam policy by suggesting that if the NDP did not like the decision all it had to do was withdraw its support of the minority government.

Sharp's challenge to the NDP came the day after David Lewis, national leader of the NDP, had hinted in the House that his party may keep the minority Liberal government in power for many months. It came as a shock to several NDP'ers.

Progressive Conservative and New Democrats had joined Tuesday in calling on the government to allow Parliament to debate the decision to continue Canada's participation in the International Commission for the Control and Supervision of the Vietnam truce.

T. C. Douglas, former leader of the NDP, spoke strongly in favor of Parliament being allowed to make a decision about Canadian forces being kept in Vietnam.

Claude Wagner, for the PC's said his party continued to protest the way in which the decision was made outside of Parliament to send soldiers there in the first place and now it has been made by cabinet to keep them there.

Douglas insisted that Sharp tell the House if he was prepared to give Parliament the opportunity to make the decision. Opposition members applauded vigorously.

Sharp was taken aback at the strength and unity of the demand. He pleaded that the cabinet decision was only a "tentative one."

He claimed that the government had not made a "final decision." He promised that at the time when a final decision is made — before May 31 — he would introduce a resolution to Parliament for the purpose of getting the approval of the house.

Douglas said the government could not escape the fact that it had made a decision whether it be a "tentative" decision or not.

"Surely Parliament ought to have a right to make the decision," he pleaded with the minister.

All opposition members applauded vigorously.

Sharp paused before rising to reply. Then he politely informed the House: "Quite clearly, Mr. Speaker the government can only act with the confidence of the House."

Progressive Conservatives MP's chuckled and shouted "oh, oh" as the NDP lapsed into silence.

The minister continued: "The House can, at any time of course, defeat the government. Of course this is the position on which we all stand on this side of the House."

Mobile Homes Face Curbs in Saanich

Saanich planning committee Tuesday recommended bylaws to control mobile homes on private lots to limit the size of townhouse developments.

Municipal planner Tom Loney was instructed to draft a bylaw dealing with the width-depth ratio of mobile homes to prevent the conventional 12-foot-wide type being placed on an ordinary lot.

He suggested a 1:2 or 1:3 ratio (one foot of width to two or three feet of depth) be adopted, which would also apply to homes built on-site or other prefabricated dwellings, but excepting mobile homes placed in mobile home parks.

UNSUITABLE

Loney noted that some 12-foot units are 60 feet long and are unsuitable for use in established neighborhoods.

Amendment of the Zoning Bylaw relating to townhouse projects was proposed as a result of opinions voiced by Gordon Head residents in a series of meetings with Saanich planners.

It has been found, Loney said, that large townhouse projects tend to be overpowering in scale and detract from the amenities of the neighbourhood. A maximum of 18-20 units would be desirable, he said.

DOMINATE

Beyond that size they tend to dominate the landscape and place a burden on such services as schools, Loney added.

Ald. Edith Gunning said she favored smaller developments: "Large ones become impersonal."

The planner said the subject was too important to be digested at one reading and urged his report to be circulated to council. The committee agreed, but gave its support to limit.

Loney also was asked to draw up a request to the Union of B.C. Municipalities for support of a proposed Municipal Act amendment permitting municipalities to exercise control over landscaping.

CLOSE STREET

The committee endorsed for a second time plans to close Rutledge Street at Cloverdale to permit construction of a neighborhood park and had little sympathy for residents opposed to the scheme.

Ald. Gunning said children of the area need the 1.29 acres that would be formed and could not agree that driving access to Cloverdale would be seriously impaired as five letter-writers claimed.

"Gee, that's tough," commented Ald. Frank Waring, who supported closure along with Ald. William Campbell.

Most Dangerous Place: The Home

By ADRIENNE FARRELL
GENEVA (Reuter) — Many more persons are hurt in accidents at home than on the roads, the World Health Organization W.H.O. reports.

In the United States, 20 million were injured in domestic accidents in a single year, five times the number injured on the roads.

The most likely victims of domestic accidents are children under four and people over 65, said the survey, published in the magazine World Health.

The accident pattern varies from country to country, depending on the standard of housing and facilities available.

In developing countries, medifalls are often due to poor lighting or badly-protected balconies. In developed countries they are often due to slippery stairs, highly-polished floors and unsteady ladders.

Overturned paraffin lamps are a frequent cause of burns in developing countries while in all countries, rich or poor, defective electrical installations are often to blame.

CHILDREN ENDANGERED

Most poisoning cases occur with children under five, particularly between 18 months and two years.

One-year-olds tend to swallow polishes, pesticides, petroleum products and dyes. With two-to-four-year-olds, medicines such as aspirin are the most frequent cause of poisoning.

Toys and other children's articles can also be a major cause of accidents.

Even today, rat bites are a fairly common cause of injury in the home. World Health reported that 14,000 persons in the United States are bitten by rats each year, while in the single city of Bombay, India, the figure was 20,000.

More knowledge, more self-discipline, and better sanitary and health inspection would help reduce home accidents the survey said.

Parents should not leave potentially dangerous articles such as knitting needles, sharp knives and medicines within reach of small children.

Parents should also teach their children how to handle sharp objects and materials that catch fire easily.

HANDGRIPS AID ELDERLY

For older persons, a ramp at the proper height, a hand-grip in the bathroom or better lighting may often prevent a serious accident.

Sometimes an epidemic of a certain type of accident may be dealt with by better industrial design.

In the United States for example, 100,000 persons were cut by glass doors in 1963, mostly through crashing into a door they thought was open. Glass manufacturers produced a more resistant door that does not produce jagged edges when broken, resulting in a sharp decline of this kind of accident in the U.S.

W. H. O. recommends the setting up of national bodies for the prevention of accidents in the home, on the same lines as those concerned with the prevention of road accidents.

A campaign to promote a safer, cheap lamp has helped cut down accidents.

LANGUAGE RIGHTS

Special to The Times

TORONTO — Legislation guaranteeing Franco-Ontarian students the right to an education in the language of their choice, will be introduced in the legislature within the next two months.

The legislation, in the form of a bill creating a languages of instruction commission, was promised last week in the speech from the Throne. It was a key proposal of the Symons Commission on French Language Secondary Education.

tires on the Lincoln and Mark IV means a $20 increase for those cars, and the Japanese-built Courier truck price will be boosted $286.

John B. Naughton, vice president of Ford's sales group, said the decision was made "with the hope that our labor force and suppliers will exercise similar restraint."

But at the same time, Ford said it is raising prices on its imported truck and three cars with components built overseas.

'Filibuster' Means A.M. Sittings

By PAUL MOSS
and BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

As another apparent filibuster by the official Social Credit Opposition ended the ninth day of debate on the NDP government's Land Commission Act, Premier Dave Barrett informed the legislature Tuesday night that the house would sit at 10 a.m. today — four hours earlier than the traditional 2 p.m. start.

Outside the house, Barrett told reporters the early sitting was necessary because "we have a great deal of work to do."

Barrett said he would "never" go past the 11 p.m. finishing hour for night sittings, but "we must work all day now." Sittings will be required — morning, afternoon and evening in future to catch up on the house's business, he indicated.

WEEKS BEHIND

"We are certainly weeks behind in rational debate, and days behind in terms of work that should be done," he added. But Barrett denied a reporter's suggestion that the opposition were being punished for prolonging debate on the principle of the bill.

Barrett said morning meetings of the legislature will continue, as speakers take their turn in the debate and absence from the house of certain MLAs will not affect house proceedings.

His announcement, which came at 10:50 p.m. after Ed Smith (SC-North Peace River) had adjourned debate after speaking for more than two hours, was a surprise to most opposition members.

A morning sitting at this stage of the session is considered highly unusual. However, the former Social Credit administration used the technique occasionally to conclude last-minute business before a set prorogation date.

Smith called on all the members of the government to resign because of remarks made in the house by Gary Lauk (NDP-Vancouver Centre) in which Lauk said the NDP caucus had discussed Bill 42 at length before it was introduced on the floor of the house.

Smith said with Bill 42 being a message bill — supposedly transmitted directly from the lieutenant-governor — it would be a breach of parliamentary practice for it to be discussed by the caucus before being introduced.

Smith also linked the burning down of a farmer's barn with the anti-Bill 42 demonstration held on the steps of the legislature several weeks ago. He said the farmer had gone to Victoria to participate in the demonstration and came back to his farm to find his barn burnt down.

Investigators of the fire suspect arson, Smith said.

COINCIDENCE

"I'm not suggesting anything," Smith said amid groans from the government side of the house, "but this is a little too much of a coincidence for a barn that is not being used to burn down on the same day that the farmer is taking part in a demonstration in Victoria."

Responding to charges raised last week by Harold Steves (NDP-Richmond) that anti-Bill 42 literature was posted on postage meters of real estate offices, Smith said one real estate office was broken into recently and the company's postage meter tampered with. He said it is conceivable that the break-in could have been committed by "someone who wanted to give the real estate industry a bad name."

PRIVILEGE ABUSED

Smith also accused the MP for Vancouver East, C. P. (Paddy) Neale (NDP), of abusing his privileges as a member of the House of Commons by using his franking privileges to mail out copies of a letter written by two UBC law professors who support Bill 42.

Neale was interfering in provincial rights by doing so, Smith said, and his actions constitute a "rip-off" of taxpayers, who have had to pay for his "propaganda."

Labor Minister Bill King followed up on Premier Barrett's attack Monday on the Social Credit party.

King said the Socreds have put on "a pretty cynical performance" in their opposition to Bill 42 by representing themselves as the "champions" of the rights of the individual.

The very same group, he said, was responsible for property expropriation from hundreds of people at the site of the Columbia River power project.

INCONSISTENT POSITION

"They pillaged land up and down that reservoir and now they portray themselves as defenders of right. That is a pretty shocking, inconsistent position to take."

The opposition parties' attacks on the government over Bill 42 have been "irrelevant, ineffective, shocking and lacking in content," King said. "It's a disgraceful point for the opposition to have sunk to the same day that the farmer is taking part in a demonstration in Victoria."

Alex Fraser (SC-Cariboo) said Barrett's Monday night speech had blown whatever trust the people of the province had in him.

Fraser said he was "incensed" at the invasion of rights of private citizens contained within the land legislation and its effect of taking away the powers of locally-elected members of municipal councils and regional boards.

Gerry Anderson (NDP-Kamloops) said the site of the Oak Hills subdivision in his riding, which suffered heavy flood damage last spring, is a good example of agricultural land being taken up by urban development in a poor manner.

Another proposed sub-

... cites barn burning

division call Cinnamon Ridge, which is not being allowed to proceed, would have had some of its houses at a level of 17 feet below the 1972 flood level, he said.

GRATEFUL

Peter Ralston (NDP-Dewdney) said the year 1973 will be remembered as the year "when we took stock of the land use situation in B.C." The residents of the province will be grateful for the government's action, he said.

Jim Chabot (SC-Columbia River) said the principle of the legislation is clear: "absolute overbearing and overpowering control of every square inch of land in the province of B.C."

"This is centralization and bureaucracy at its very worst. It's closed door legislation. Ask us no questions because you'll get no answers. Don't call us, we'll call you. Big brother government. We know best."

The government will not listen to the people over this legislation, because if they were listening, they would withdraw the bill," Chabot said.

PRESSES:

The Socreds suggested that the letter Barrett said was sent to him from Henry Block, president of Block Bros. real estate firm, in which Block apologized for his employees' use of company facilities to oppose Bill 42, was actually solicited by the government.

"Was there pressure brought against Block Bros. to have this letter written?" he asked.

"When they were in opposition, the NDP were their worst enemies," he said. "Now they're in bed with the real estate interests."

Chabot said at one point that the family of Harold Steves (NDP-Richmond), who had "viciously attacked" the real estate firm of David Dawson Agencies Ltd. in the house last week, had sold farmland for subdivision to that firm, and Steves had sold some of his own land in 1971.

"Most people in Richmond know that the sum involved to the official opposition seems to indicate they consider B.C. has an inexhaustible supply of land, especially agricultural Rising on a point of privilege, Steves said that statement was "entirely false." He said he wasn't aware what his parents' property was sold for, but the MLA's figures were 100 per cent off-base.

He said he had sold four lots from his own land at $4,000 each.

That brought a cry of "land speculator" from Patricia Jordan (SC-North Okanagan).

Mines Minister Leo Nimsich said the Socreds had captured the Socred boat had capsized in the provincial election, and its crew had been swimming around ever since looking for something to save them.

"The only thing wrong with the bill is it is 30 years too late," he said.

Douglas Kelly (NDP-Omineca) said the attitude of the official opposition seems to indicate they consider B.C.

has an inexhaustible supply of land, especially agricultural

TURNER CITES $ PROBLEMS

WASHINGTON (CP) — A new world monetary system was given some of its broad objectives Tuesday by financial leaders of the non-communist world, but Canadian Finance Minister John Turner said some "formidable" technical and political problems remain to be solved.

Negotiations on a long list of specific issues are to be speeded up, in hopes of producing a draft agreement on some of the major problems by the September annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund in Nairobi, but some of the major issues should be resolved.

The earlier work of the deputies has already indicated a "substantial measure of consensus," Turner said, and the committee now has tried to impress on its deputies the need to keep up momentum for the "urgent" work of reform.

The Committee of 20 will itself be meeting again before September, but no date or place was set.

Turner said he had stressed at the closed committee meetings that there are "some areas where it would be unwise to press for premature decisions."

Among these areas was the question of the convertibility of the dollar, suspended since 1971 when President Nixon ended the historic link between the dollar and gold, and the return of floating currencies to a fixed rate of exchange.

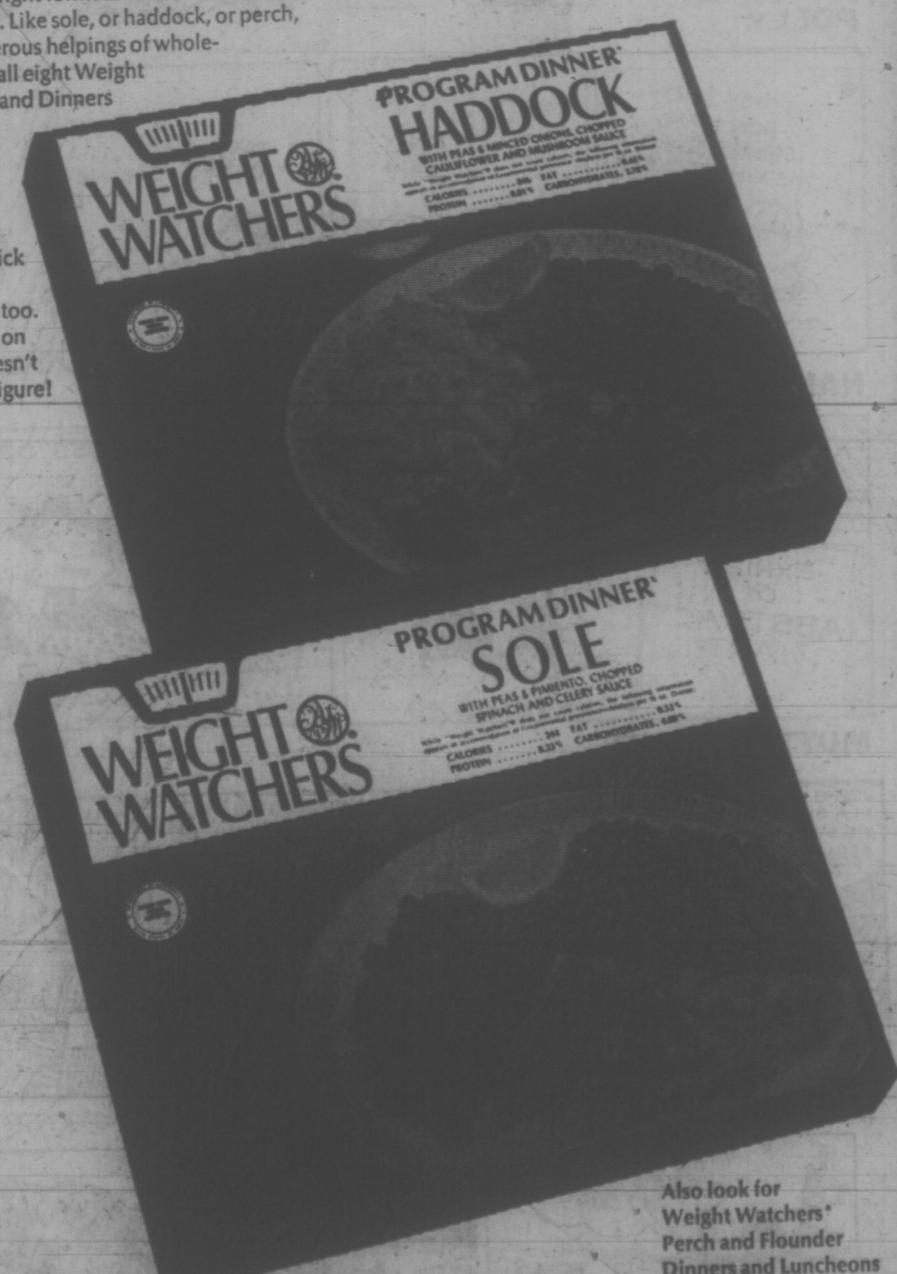

Canada, he said, "maintained the position that we won't return to fixed parity until there is stability" in world currency markets.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2	Pass	2	NT
3	Pass	3	NT
4	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♠.

After winning the opening trump lead, declarer cashed three more rounds of trumps, gathering in the outstanding pieces. East discarded three clubs.

It was readily apparent to declarer that the success of his contract depended on avoiding the loss of three spade tricks, since the loss of a diamond trick was inevitable. It was equally apparent that if the six adversely-held spades were divided 3-3, then his contract was in the bag: by giving away two spade tricks, declarer would promote his fourth spade into a winner. And of course declarer realized that the outstanding six spades rated to be divided 3-3, only a little over one third of the time.

Thus it came to pass that declarer centred his thoughts on how to best handle the spade suit if the missing spades were divided 4-2. He found the correct solution.

After drawing trumps, he cashed the ace of spades. He then followed up by leading the spade queen, West taking the trick with his king as East's ten-spot fell. Declarer's contract was now there for the taking. When he regained the lead, he led a low spade towards dummy's nine. West took his jack and, simultaneously, South's eight-spot became his game-going trick.

Had declarer, after playing his spade ace, elected to lead a low spade, he would have gone down. East would have won this trick with his ten-spot, and eventually West's king and jack would have taken two more spade tricks.

As declarer played the hand, he would make two spade tricks whenever either declarer held the doubleton J-x or 10-x. The alternative play of leading a low spade, after cashing the ace, in the hope that one of the defenders held the K-x of spades, was against the odds, since the chances of one of the opponents holding either the J-x or the 10-x was twice as great as his holding the doubleton K-x combination.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

We have 2334 for the game today. Two 3's, one 2, and one 4. Using all four each time, but no other digits at all, you form expressions for consecutive numbers from one up.

Use any arithmetical signs, but no summation or factorial symbols. Don't forget both types of decimals, powers and roots (no extra digits). For example, 43 plus 2 minus 3 is a solution for 42.

The limit without a break in continuity seems to be 92. I shall be glad to check solutions, and will send hints to help in future games if requested.

Yesterday's answer: GOON was 1338.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

'Great Stink' Started Clean-Up
Many of the people who are today much interested in fighting pollution would be interested in an article which appeared recently in The Pharos, the journal of the Alpha Omega Alpha Honor Medical Society of Palo Alto, Calif. The author, Carleton B. Chapman, M.D., wrote about The Year of the Great Stink, which occurred in London. In late June, 1858, Queen Victoria, with her Prince Consort, Albert, and others, went to the Thames River to inspect a new huge steamship, later called The Great Eastern.

The members of the group suffered so much from the "bad smell" of the river that soon efforts were being made by the anti-pollution people of the day to stop people from emptying human excreta into the river. Eventually, after much argument, a huge sewage plant was made.

Dr. Chapman says that in the United States, interest in water closets, as early toilets were called, seems to have started in the Boston area. In 1827, the Boston Hotel provided water closets (toilets) and bathrooms for its patrons, and placed these conveniences in the basement. The poet Longfellow is said to have been the first to install the device in a private home.

We read in Dr. Chapman's article that one night, for lack of a toilet in his London hotel, no less a person than Lord Byron was ejected because "on a cold, wet night, he deemed the hall to be a less inclement place than an uncovered yard."

The Thanes began to stink in the 1840s. Another problem for London was that with the fouling of their water, they had terrible epidemics of cholera. And, most of their fish were driven out of the Thames.

Today people in Europe are beginning to worry about the extreme pollution of the Baltic Sea, and it is felt that someday the North Sea will be badly polluted by the Rhine as well as by the Thames.

More of NORAD Role Seen

A one-day seminar on the North American Air Defence Treaty concluded Monday that Canada should continue its modest contribution to NORAD, but not increase it, Prof. Reginald Roy said Tuesday.

Roy was organizer of the seminar, which 34 experts, officials, politicians and academics attended at the Empress.

Roy said there were opinions differing over 180 degrees on the value of NORAD, but there was a "general feeling" that Canada should continue with its present role.

NORAD is a military surveillance system, in which Canada participate at a cost of about $140 million annually.

OTTAWA (CP) — Erroneous income tax returns are running 40 per cent below last year, Revenue Minister Robert Stanbury told the Commons Monday, saying that recent correspondence indicates a favorable reaction to the new 1972 tax forms.

A skeptical John Diefenbaker (PC-Prince Albert) said there are two types of

Aussies Foil Assassinations

CANBERRA (UPI) — Attorney-General Lionel Murphy said today he has evidence terrorists planned to kill Yugoslav Prime Minister Dzemal Bijedic during a visit last week, and failing that, wanted to murder Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam.

Both plans were thwarted by tight security precautions.

Murphy made the charge while outlining legislation he plans to introduce to wipe out terrorist organizations. He said the groups have been proven to exist in Australia, particularly among the country's 140,000 Yugoslav immigrants.

The attorney-general told parliament, "I am advised that terrorists came to Canberra last week with the intention of killing the Yugoslav prime minister. The commissioner of police, Jack Davis, advised me that, frustrated in that ambition by security precautions, the terrorists might make an alternative attempt on the life of the Australian prime minister or other ministers in the government."

In preparation for Bijedic's visit last week Murphy ordered up the heaviest security guard ever mounted in Australia for a visiting dignitary. He also made an unprecedented visit to the director of Australian Security and Intelligence Organization to demand documents he said were being withheld from him and which he said proved his case that terrorists were operating with impunity in Australia.

"Toleration of terrorism in this country is over," Murphy said. "Whatever we import from the rest of the world we do not need that. This government is determined that terrorism in Australia will be resolutely stamped out."

Tax Errors Down

STANBURY said there were some complaints before the forms were distributed, partly because of the "fear tactics" of the opposition. But in recent days the correspondence has been "quite the contrary."

US. Half Of Space Hook-Up

Engineers of Rockwell International Corp.'s space division check a full-scale replica of the United States spacecraft which is scheduled to hook-up with a Soviet spacecraft during a 1975 mission in earth's orbit. Command and service module are at left; and docking module at right. The Soviet Soyuz spacecraft will hook on the docking module during the flight. Both countries will displace their sections in a forthcoming air show in Paris.

FORT LAMY, Chad (AP) —

Will the rains come?

That is the life-and-death question for millions of Africans living along the sub-Saharan belt from Chad, in central Africa, to Mauritania on the west coast.

Drought has dried up rivers, devastated crops and herds and raised the spectre of famine in countries so poor they have no way of combating the crisis alone.

Especially hard hit are the semi-desert countries of Mauritania, Senegal, Mali, Upper Volta, Niger and Chad, all former French colonies. Even northern states in Nigeria, an oil producer, have been declared a national disaster area.

The government has promised $15 million in relief assistance.

Even if the rains do come during this year's rainy season, roughly between May and September, food shortages will be acute until crops are harvested.

CATTLE STARVE

The United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization said last month that two million head of cattle in Mauritania, Senegal, Mali, Upper Volta, Niger and Chad were threatened with starvation. It then cited more recent reports that half the estimated 2.6 million cattle in Mauritania had already died.

areas of northern Chad or Mauritania or any of the other countries poses formidable obstacles.

"You can't put more than five tons on a truck or it'll sink in the sand," said an American diplomat. "Gas is extremely expensive because of the high cost of importing it."

The World Food Program has committed nearly 50,000 metric tons of food grains for West Africa at a cost of $7.7 million.

Austria Faces Suicide Record

VIENNA (Reuter) — Health authorities in the land that gave birth to psychiatry are setting up a special institute to combat one of the worst suicide rates in the world.

In this small Alpine republic, usually thought of as the land of wine, women and song, about 23 of every 100,000 inhabitants chose to end their lives each year, bringing the annual suicide toll to almost 1,700.

Exact figures on the number of attempted suicides are unknown because only those cases brought to hospitals can be registered.

The ratio of attempted suicides to successful ones is estimated at between eight and 10 to one which means that an average 16,000 Austrians try to kill themselves each year.

According to international statistics, this record is only surpassed by Hungary, with Czechoslovakia third on the list.

BACKGROUND SIMILAR

All three countries belonged to the Austro-Hungarian empire before the First World War. A similar social background, climate, and above-average alcohol consumption in all three countries are suggested as possible factors.

Psychiatrist and social workers, however, have other explanations.

"The simple reason might be the fact that the Austro-Hungarian empire possessed some of the best statistical records in the world and therefore suicides in these countries were and still are registered with greater accuracy," says Austrian sociologist Heniz Steinert.

Road Hazards To Be Flashed On Freeways

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Motorists on one of the city's busiest freeways soon will be receiving advance warning of road hazards by reading message boards like those used in many baseball and football parks.

"Left Lane Blocked Ahead" and "Accident Ahead Use Caution" are examples of the messages that will be flashed to drivers on a 13-mile stretch of the Santa Monica Freeway which links the seaside city of Santa Monica with downtown Los Angeles. More than 20,000 vehicles travel that section of freeway each way, ranking it among the world's busiest arteries.

The signs, 30 feet wide by nine feet high and spaced about a half-mile apart, are expected to go into operation at the end of March. They are part of a $9 million experimental program aimed at speeding up traffic along Los

Already in operation are electronic sensors which enable authorities to monitor the flow of traffic and determine when there is a problem which may be solved by dispatching a highway patrolman or tow truck to the scene.

Like the message boards that have become popular in stadiums, the 35 freeway signs consist of light bulbs that spell out words on command from the operations centre at the state division of highways.

There are 100 messages stored in a minicomputer for instant use but if these do not cover a situation, the proper advisory may be typed manually.

The signs will be evaluated for a year before a decision is made whether to remove them or add more along other freeways.

PRESSURE EASES ON DOLLAR

LONDON (UPI) — Pressure on the dollar eased today and the U.S. currency held firm on the European money markets. One financial barometer, gold, dropped $1.25 an ounce following two days of brisk trading. (See also Page 45).

In London the pound became slightly more expensive to buy with dollars, though the changes were measured in fractions of a cent. It opened today at $2.48175, marginally higher than Tuesday's close. In early trading the dollar dropped by another 15 hundredths of a cent.

Bill 42 Delay Sought

The Social Credit opposition in the legislature today moved an amendment which would delay second reading of Bill 42 for six months.

The amendment was moved by Ed Smith (SC—North Peace) who was winding up his participation in the second reading debate of the Land Commission Act. (See earlier debate on Page 45.)

All three opposition parties expressed strong support for the amendment, but government spokesmen including Premier Barrett, rejected it, saying it was designed as a "delaying tactic."

Barrett said the effect of the six-month delay would be to "let the subdividers go at it again."

Opposition leader W. A. C. Bennett rose for the first time during debate: "Don't shave this down the people's throats so quickly," he told the government.

"It's not easy to take a second look, I know," he said to Barrett, "but if you do you will go down in history as a great premier."

If Barrett refuses a second look, "even his own members will know he is a dictator and will remove him from office," Bennett said, adding that in his public life he has never seen the people of the province so "aroused" about one particular piece of legislation.

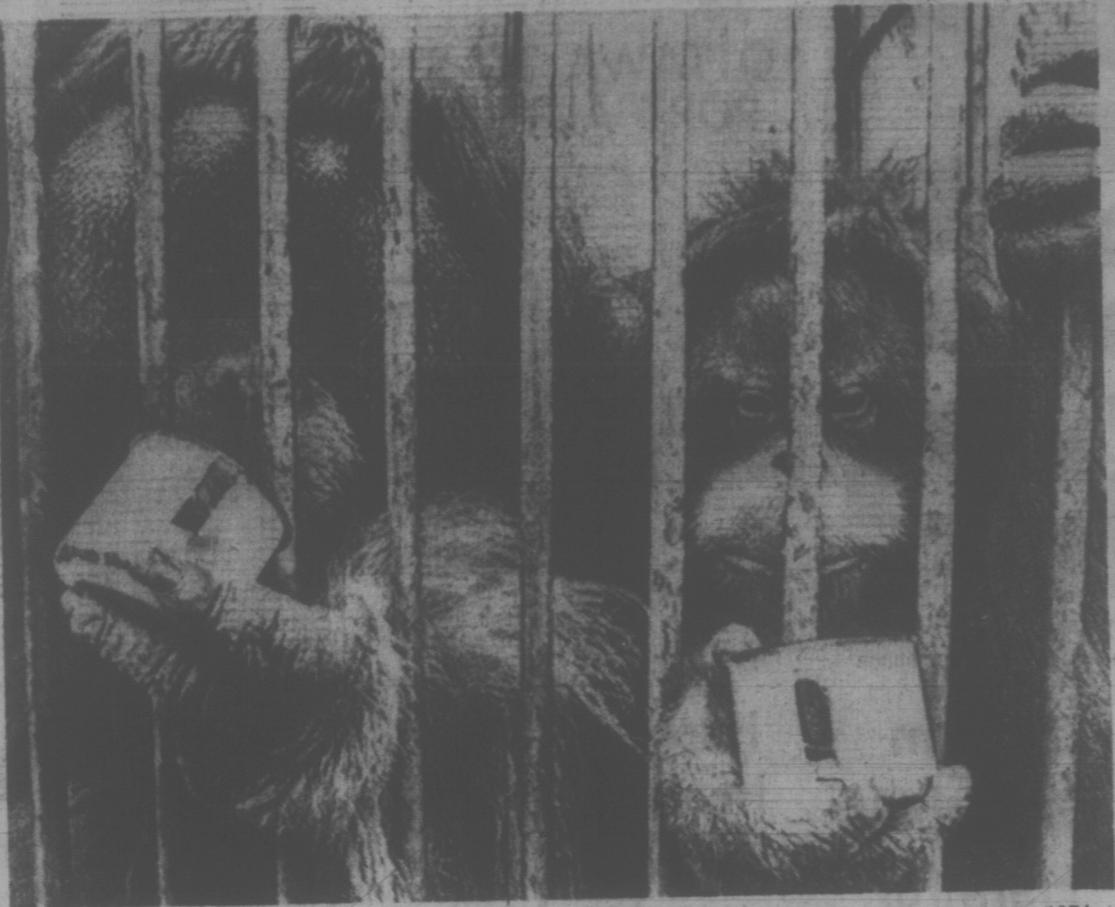

The debate on the amendment was by far the most heated witnessed in this session of the legislature. Members shouted across the floor of the house, banged their desks to make their points, and speaker Gordon Dowding had to repeatedly call for order.

Garde Gardom (L—Vancouver Point Grey) said what the government is doing is "practising closure."

"If we were governing this province," he said, "we would not bring in a lousy bill like this. We would consult with the general public." He urged the government to conduct public hearings on the bill in accordance with the citizens' right to a "fair hearing before the highest court of the province, which is this legislature."

"The premier is denying them their democratic rights," Gardom said.

GUARD REMINDS HIM OF WIFE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A San Quentin prisoner filed suit Tuesday charging it is cruel and unusual punishment to have women guarding him, especially when one of them looks like his wife.

Lorraine Hand, 42, asked the U.S. District Court to find that employment of women guards subjects him to "cruel and unusual punishment in violation of the 8th Amendment of the United States Constitution."

The prison recently hired two women correctional officers, Bonnie Briggs and Wilma Snider, both of whom were named as defendants.

The prisoner said he has lost certain rights but personal modesty was not among them. He said his privacy is being invaded because the women guards watch him as he bathes and take care of his other personal needs.

"Defendant Snider is an almost exact duplicate of plaintiff's wife and when plaintiff sees this defendant he is reminded of the fact that he may not hold his wife and demonstrate his love to her," Hand said.

"By seeing defendant Snider, plaintiff is being subjected to deprivations of his past life and is subjected to what is tantamount to a carrot on a string in that he is able to see the defendants as women, but is unable to compete for their affections as such is totally against the rules."

Hand is serving a sentence of eight years to life for convictions of kidnap, rape and other offenses.

I'll Be Home Soon: Oppel

Times News Services

Lloyd Oppel will be back home in Courtenay in a few days, he told his father today in a phone call from Clark Air Base in the Philippines.

The 21-year-old missionary worker was released in Hanoi this morning by Laotian Communists, who have held him as a prisoner of war since Oct. 28.

Oppel's father, Magnus Oppel, said his son sounded fine. He said the call was so clear his son could have been telephoning from across the street.

Oppel Sr. said he tried to make a tape of the phone call for his wife, at present a patient in hospital in Comox, but there had been some technical difficulties with his equipment.

Lloyd said he wanted to assure everyone, all his friends and those who cared that he was fine," the father said.

The young missionary was handed over in Hanoi to Frank Clark, Canadian charge d'affaires in Manila, then flown to the U.S. air force base in the Philippines aboard a U.S. ambulance plane. He was accompanied by nine U.S. POWs for whom he had conducted daily prayer services during their imprisonment.

Oppel, wearing a long moustache, stepped off the plane into bright sunshine with a big smile on his face and a longish shock of hair blowing freely in the wind. He looked thin and pale, but in good physical shape.

U.S. officials said Oppel was expected to undergo medical checks here and then was to fly by CP Air to Vancouver.

WOUNDED KNEE 'ONLY START'

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Wounded Knee is only the beginning of overt Indian unrest that might result in similar incidents in Canada, a group of Indians who have returned from the South Dakota community said Tuesday.

Bob Atone, a leader of the London chapter of the American Indian Movement (A.I.M.), said there are 4,000 Indians from all over North America in the towns surrounding Wounded Knee.

Those Indians are there to show support for the 250 Ogala Sioux inside the hamlet on the Pine Ridge Reserve, he said.

A group of 25 left London two weeks ago to observe the Wounded Knee situation.

In Wounded Knee, Indian moderates have ousted members of A.I.M. who were leading the occupation. This apparently clears the way for a peaceful end to the four-weeks old siege.

A less militant group of Ogala Sioux is reported to have taken command in the historic settlement, seized Feb. 27 by a band of armed Indians demanding a better deal from the U.S. government.

South Dakota Senator James Abourezk, who has been in close touch with the situation, said the moderates want a meeting with the government in nearby Rapid City today.

Lawyer Ramon Roubideaux said in Wounded Knee: "We could have terminated this problem earlier if it wasn't for the shenanigans of A.I.M., but A.I.M. is out of it now."

Federal officials at the scene said they understood that Dennis Banks and Russell Means, two militant leaders of A.I.M., left Wounded Knee two days ago.

When Kingkong was overrun by North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao, both escaped in a jeep, but decided to go back to look for two missionary girls who were missing.

When they re-entered the town, they were captured by Communist troops who took their shoes and tied them to trees in the center of town.

Later the same day, they were taken by truck to a village seven miles away and were then forced to walk barefoot another 17 miles to the Communist town of Dong Hene.

The bodies of the two girls they tried to save were later found inside a burned house tied to a post.

BATTLE SWELLS IN CAMBODIA

Times News Services

PHNOM PENH — Communist forces pushed to within 15 miles of Phnom Penh in fighting along Highway 1 today despite the 21st consecutive day of bombing raids by U.S. B-52 bombers and other warplanes.

In Washington, the White House said U.S. bombing would continue as long as Communists press their offensive in Cambodia, the only country in Southeast Asia with no formal ceasefire.

Cambodian military spokesman Col. Am Rong said Communists now occupy a 17-mile stretch of Highway 1, running from the strategic Mekong River navy base at Neak Luong to the plywood factory town of Del Eth, 15 miles southeast of Phnom Penh.

In Saigon, the U.S. neared the end of its troop withdrawal from South Vietnam today with the departure of 19 jet transports filled with 1,800 GIs, U.S. involvement in Vietnam comes to an official end Thursday when the last 2,501 Americans including their commanding officer, Gen. Frederick Weyand, leave for home or new duty stations, one day after the deadline set by the Paris peace accords.

Military sources in Phnom Penh said the U.S. bomber raids were the heaviest of the war in Cambodia and the closest to the capital itself.

The United States, the sources said, were reluctant at first to bomb along Highway 1 because of the heavy population there, but relented later and made the area a primary target.

During the past two months, military sources said, Communist strategy has concentrated on cutting major supply routes into the capital and lately has grown to include a possible attack on Phnom Penh itself.

'Heroin Siberia' Urged

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Special to The Times

OTTAWA — When it comes to solutions for the heroin addiction problem in Canada, everybody — doctors, politicians, law enforcement officials, scientists, and self-appointed experts — seems to have an answer.

In British Columbia, where the problem rages most out of control, former B.C. Liberal leader Dr. Pat McGee reportedly suggested beefing up the RCMP drug squads and giving them the power to tap telephones of all those suspected of being involved in the drug trade.

And heroin users, he added according to reports from the provincial legislature, should be shunted off to an isolated island community, free of drugs. Others in Canada have preferred the establishment of a Canadian Siberia for drug addicts.

One member of the commission, Ian Campbell, has a scheme of his own that has an even more definite Orwellian ring to it: Place a slow-release pellet containing a narcotic antagonist deep in the thigh muscle of every heroin addict "without his consent."

The antagonist would be designed to counteract or block the pleasurable effects of the drug, and thereby reduce the incentive for the addict to stay on his heroin habit.

More than that, according to Campbell's scheme, the antagonist would be designed to last up to a year and to actually make the addict "sick as a dog" every time he tried to take heroin or a related narcotic.

Thus the ideal chemical antagonist would not only remove the reward of heroin, the "kick," but it would also provide negative reinforcement, perhaps nausea and stomach pains.

There are some problems, both technical and social, and Campbell admits them. The LeDain Commission, as part of its studies, has uncovered some others.

Guns, Bombs Shatter Ulster Lull

Times News Services

BELFAST — Shooting and bombing have returned to Northern Ireland on a large scale, ending a brief lull coinciding with Britain's presentation last week of its proposals for Ulster's future.

Numerous explosions rocked Belfast and Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second largest city, Tuesday.

A British soldier was killed when an armored car was blown up by a 500-pound mine on a country road.

The Irish Republican Army's militant Provisional wing later claimed responsibility for the explosion.

In Belfast, a young man believed to have been on the British Army's list of wanted men was shot to death by troops in the Catholic Ardoyne district.

The army said he was spotted pointing a weapon at a military foot patrol.

Belfast police sources said today they were tightening a dragnet around two girls who lured a group of British soldiers to their apartment with promises of a party, and the gunmen who machine-gunned three of the soldiers to death when they arrived.

PHOTO RELEASED

Two of the soldiers died instantly and a third died in hospital, victims of the three and a half years of violence between minority Roman Catholics, majority Protestants and security forces that has cost 761 lives. Three of those victims were killed Tuesday.

Troops and police swooped down on several homes in Roman Catholic areas throughout the city in the last 24 hours in the search for information on the party murders, and police released the photograph of a third girl wanted to interview.

"She is aged 30 and has an oriental face," a police spokesman said. "She is not one of the girls who lured the soldiers to the apartment but she can help us."

In Londonderry, bombers failed in their second attempt in six days to destroy a barracks.

Explosives planted by four armed men were thrown into the street before they went off. The four men beat the bar owner off. The four men beat the bar owner off.

"This is a further attempt by the government to ensure that the dwindling agricultural land resources of the province will continue to be available for agricultural production to those generations to follow us," Williams said.

Williams said that the policy change will be effective immediately. All crown grants issued for lands acquired for agricultural purposes will contain a restrictive covenant that will preclude redevelopment for non-agricultural use," he said.

The new policy will parallel the principle behind the Land Commission Act, Williams said, and will ensure that crown lands suitable for agricultural use will be used in the future for farming and not for commercial, industrial or urban development.

"This is a further attempt by the government to ensure that the dwindling agricultural land resources of the province will continue to be available for agricultural production to those generations to follow us," Williams said.

Forget the Super-Stars Sports Are for People

Day in and day out, no writer does a more competent, entertaining job of column-writing than our own Bill Walker and I want him to know that's my opinion before I slip this knife right between his shoulder blades.

Along with certain other sports writers who have that professional blind spot of being more advocate than critic of the endeavors they cover, Bill has come out, without reservation, for the use of public moneys so that Canadians may run faster or jump higher for the greater glory of the nation. Myself, I don't happen to think that running and jumping should rate high on any priority list of government spending and I'm not at all sure that they should be on the list at all.

Bill's argument is that since Montreal is hosting the next Olympics we should be grooming some super-stars "to give us a national pride in our very own Olympics". Our track and field record at the last Games in Munich, it seems, was fifth place in the pole vault and a sixth in the high jump.

To match up and catch up with the other competing nations we need an injection of that old green magic called money.

Bill goes on: "Of course, this would involve full-time professional coaches, which Canada hasn't got; national training centres where athletes could gather for concentrated coaching, which Canada also hasn't got; and some form of freeing the athletes from the necessity of earning a living for that period of specialized training each year, which Canada also is missing."

I wish I could believe that the quality of life in this country could be upgraded in any way by the creation of winning athletes, but pride or prestige, as I see it, are better won in any other arena than track and field. The Soviet Union and the United States may come head-to-head in that kind of hysterical nationalism. We surely have more important things to do, more worthwhile goals to attain.

What Bill is proposing is a discreet form of professionalism, which is what the Olympics have become. That is the trend in Canada as much as it is anywhere.

Sport is rapidly becoming show business. We create heroes to be worshipped and rewarded with kings' ransoms in hard cash. We are progressively becoming a nation of spectators, either in stadiums with wall-to-wall carpeting for the players or in the living room facing the magic lantern. Winning, rather than playing the game, has become a reason for competition. Fifth in the pole vault and sixth in the high jump is, in the view of the sports chronicler, a national crisis.

We have, in fact, a continuing national crisis in terms of athletics that's far more important than hand-toeing a select company of gold medal winners. Two recurring findings by interested groups over the past 20 to 25 years have spelled it out in the clearest possible terms.

The first is that, as a nation, we're in truly dreadful physical shape. It is a finding that goes across every age group from the primary school to the paunchy middle years. For a country with an outdoor tradition our condition is lamentable. The disease of Spectatoritis — watching the superstars — is clearly a contributing factor.

Secondly, we're a nation scandalously short of facilities for the playing of sports, particularly in urban areas where they're needed. Every study comes to the same conclusion. We've not nearly enough playing fields, tennis courts, swimming pools, ice rinks or gyms. Why pour public money into specialized training for the virtuoso athlete when it's clear that we're under-financed where it counts the most?

Coaching and competition are necessary in every sport, at every level. There is no question that that takes money. But the real priority in this nation should be at the grass roots level where physical fitness and the fun of the game are far more important than the making of world champions. That's where the money should be going, Bill, not to any foolishness of national pride.

Tight Tenure Tests For UVic Professors

Arts and science faculty members who have applied for tenure at the University of Victoria will have to demonstrate "exceptional" circumstances to win a recommendation this year, Dean Jean-Paul Vinay said today.

Vinay was reluctant to talk about the tenure cases before they are decided by the UVic board of governors at its next meeting but he said probably only five or six out of 13 professors up for tenure will be recommended by him.

However, the eight or nine who don't win tenure will not be rejected, but will be deferred until next spring when their cases will be reconsidered.

Winning tenure means a faculty member has a permanent appointment at UVic and may not be fired except for a good reason.

Quick Switch On 23% Wage Boost

urged decision

Victoria city council changed its position on an outside workers pay contract at short notice Tuesday by formally accepting the mediator's recommendation of a 23 per cent increase over two years.

At a special meeting in the morning, council voted 4-3 to table Clark Gilmour's mediation report to April 12 for discussion by a full council.

By the end of the afternoon, after a two-hour session behind closed doors, the aldermen had waived a normal 24-hour notice period for a formal meeting and assembled to vote six to one in favor of the contract.

Gilmour was in Qualicum Beach Tuesday morning when he heard about the council's decision to table his report and returned to the city immediately to meet with Mayor Pollen.

He attended the afternoon meeting and urged aldermen to make an immediate decision.

Lone dissenter was Ald. Tom Christie. He said today he thought there was no economic justification for the size of the pay award.

At the Tuesday morning meeting Christie accused council members of bowing to "threats and coercion" from Canadian Union of Public Employees spokesman Tom Smith.

Smith said last week that if council did not act fast on the contract proposal there would be a strike for a higher settlement.

Union representative Tom Smith declined comment on the city's sudden change, except to say that now both sides have accepted "and we have a collective agreement for two years."

Still to be negotiated at Victoria city is a new contract for inside employees. Smith said a few meetings have been held with the city's negotiating committee and more will be arranged.

Elevator Mediator

Labor Minister Bill King told the legislature Tuesday he has appointed a mediator from his department — Gus Leonidas — to the dispute involving Canadian elevator construction.

The mediator was involved in meetings with the two sides Monday and Tuesday, King said, adding "I am hopeful some resolution will be forthcoming soon."

King was responding to a question posed during the day's question period by Scott Wallace (PC — Oak Bay).

New Director

Kathleen Ruff, defeated NDP candidate for Victoria in the last provincial election, and past president of the Victoria Status of Women Action Group, has been appointed director of the Human Rights Act, it was announced today.

She succeeds Jack Sherlock, who retired recently.

Announcing the appointment today in a press release, Labor Minister William King said "Ms. Ruff has had wide and varied experience in the human rights field. In her new position she will be in an excellent position to advance human rights in this province."

The statement says for the past year Ms. Ruff has acted as an "unofficial ombudsman" in dealing with many complaints concerning discrimination in employment and in housing.

She has submitted briefs to federal and provincial agencies, the Victoria Police Commission and a number of private corporations.

After receiving her early education in Europe, and an honors bachelor of arts degree in languages from the University of Southampton, Ms. Ruff obtained her bachelor of education from the University of New Brunswick and her master of arts degree from the University of B.C., specializing in French.

After working in the teacher training field in New Brunswick and Montreal, she was employed as an English instructor at the University of Montreal and later as a French instructor at the University of Victoria.

A three-year resident of Victoria, Ruff was the first president of SWAG when it formed here in 1971. In June of last year she organized an "ombudsman" through SWAG, to investigate discrimination of the basis of sex and marital.

"refreshing change"

Lindholm wrote the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service last Thursday, asking it to approve the board's choice of bidder, and got the green light on Tuesday.

The board is most pleased with the prompt action from Cocke, the chairman said today.

"In my view the minister should be congratulated for dealing with our request as swiftly as he was able to do."

Lindholm described it as "a refreshing change."

Art Young, chairman of the Capital regional hospital board, added:

"Regardless of how anyone looks at the new government, as chairman in the hospital field I'm completely satisfied with their approach and speed."

New Hospital Due to Start In 10 Days

Construction on a new hospital for the Saanich Peninsula — the first in 60 years — will start in about 10 days.

That will be the good news delivered at the first annual meeting of the Saanich Peninsula Hospital Society tonight.

Health Minister Dennis Cocke announced Tuesday that the government has approved the contract to the low bidder, Dura Construction Ltd. of Saanichton, at $935,980.

It took the provincial government just four days to approve the recommendation of the hospital board on awarding the contract to the society.

The Saanich Peninsula Hospital Society is headed by lawyer Louis Lindholm a North Saanich resident. He was elected at the society's organizational meeting 17 months ago, when close to 600 people jammed Sanscha Hall.

Tonight's meeting, also at Sanscha Hall, starts at 8 p.m.

Old-Age Pensioners Bristle Over 'Impertinent' Questions

Old-age pensioners are talking at the many details they are asked to give in Mincome information returns mailed with their provincial supplementary cheques this month.

The forms state that the pensioners' answers won't jeopardize their eligibility for Mincome assistance.

They also state: "This information is required for accounting and statistical purposes only."

David Arc, 74, of 906 Gordon, is typical of those resenting being asked the additional questions.

He has sent the form back uncompleted saying, "Unless I am compelled by a court I have no intention of filling in the enclosed form."

He says losing the supplementary allowance would be "better than getting an ulcer from bureaucratic impertinence."

He's concerned that "some crooked-minded people may use such information for their own ends."

WHY B.C.?

He asks if the federal government doesn't demand these facts, why does the provincial government need them?

He refers specifically to questions on such items as:

—Rental (if home is rented) per month.

—Mortgage payments per month.

—Electricity costs per month.

—Telephone costs per month.

—Water costs per month.

—Fuel costs, both monthly and yearly.

—Property taxes, both monthly and yearly.

—Insurance costs, both by the month and the year.

He also states: "This information is required for accounting and statistical purposes only."

David Arc, 74, of 906 Gordon, is typical of those resenting being asked the additional questions.

He has sent the form back uncompleted saying, "Unless I am compelled by a court I have no intention of filling in the enclosed form."

He says losing the supplementary allowance would be "better than getting an ulcer from bureaucratic impertinence."

He's concerned that "some crooked-minded people may use such information for their own ends."

WHY B.C.?

He asks if the federal government doesn't demand these facts, why does the provincial government need them?

He refers specifically to questions on such items as:

Highrise Burials

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — People who like living in highrises may soon be able to spend eternity in them.

Two years ago, Woodlawn Mortuary Inc. began construction in south Nashville of a high-rise mausoleum which the company says promises to write the tombstone's epitaph. At least two more are planned in Tennessee, one near here and one in Knoxville.

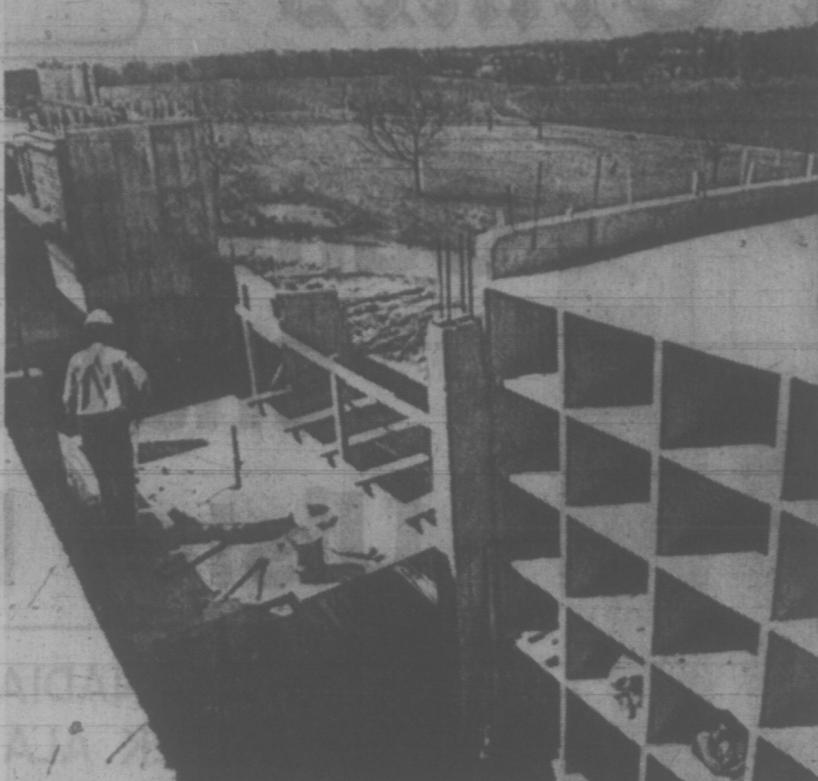

The first floor at Woodlawn's 20-storey mausoleum here will open early this summer with 2,183 crypts for above-ground burial. The company says demand is so great it will begin construction soon on a second one in suburban Hendersonville.

At Knoxville, Memorial Estates and Investment Co. has announced plans to build its own high-rise mausoleum.

"I don't think there is any question that this is the thing of the future," says John E. Spivey, a Woodlawn official. "For one thing, we are running out of land and need it to grow food."

In addition, he said the cost of labor "has made it pretty expensive to dig graves."

Continued from Page 1 tagonists generally, according to LeDain studies, is that the addict can turn to other drugs, such as alcohol and barbituates, which are not blocked by the chemical. In fact, since the use of a chemical antagonist does not in fact treat and remove the underlying causes of drug addiction, it is considered likely that many addicts would resort to other drugs.

Campbell answers: "But then you might prefer the addit to use alcohol or barbituates, and dry up the illicit heroin demand."

Other Commission members question whether society actually better off with tens of thousands more alcoholics or barbituate addicts.

DON'T EXIST

exist could convince some Canadians to try heroin on the false assumption that treatment and cure does exist, chairman Dean LeDain says.

The LeDain Commission feels that antagonists must be considered as one of the number of many possible approaches to treatment of heroin addiction. Some commission members predict that Canadians will be faced with important decisions about the use of antagonists in as little as two or three years; if better antagonists are developed and if the present oral methadone program is pushed to its maximum as far as attracting addicts to treatment.

In other words, the antagonist issue will likely come up for discussion and decision at the same time as the heroin maintenance issue comes to a head.

HIGH PRIORITY

It should be noted that the commission, in its drug treatment report last year, urged the government to give high priority to the development of antagonists for amphetamines, "speed."

The commission has said

Stream Greenbelt 'Harmful'

There is a progressive link between "speed" use and heroin use, in part because both types of drug abuse involve the "intravenous or needle route" of administering the drug.

Both the antagonist and the "ship the addicts off to an island" approaches fall under the controversial area of "compulsory treatment," an area the LeDain Commission has tried to stay away from as much as possible.

The commission favors maximizing treatment and rehabilitation; it favors the "inducement" approach; it does not seem to favor forcing addicts to be treated and rehabilitated.

The main problem with the various proposals to isolate all heroin addicts, as LeDain sees it, is that in Canada at least, the present democratic system would make such solutions unacceptable.

He admits that such approaches do look attractive, if radical solutions that "work" are what society wants.

Other commission members argue that society might actually lose if it did ship everyone off, instead of trying to rehabilitate some or all of them.

Peter Stein, the Edmonton social worker, notes that the heroin user is not the "abominable beast" society has branded him as being for so many years.

Parole officers and social workers in Vancouver, where heroin has been a major problem for many years, "continue to be amazed at how bright and energetic heroin addicts are," especially when compared to alcoholics, Stein maintains.

"You're not dealing with a 'wipe-out' guy," Stein says. The heroin addict has to be tough and bright to be able to survive, to be able to hustle in the street every day for his money and his heroin.

Stein also makes the plea that the "repugnance society feels towards the heroin addict" must be broken down if the heroin addiction problem is to be dealt with properly and if the heroin addict who leaves his drug problem behind is to be able to return to society.

Happy Hooker Checked

Forestry firms today urged the provincial government to permit selective logging right to the edge of streams.

In a brief prepared for presentation today, the B.C. Truck Loggers Association said leaving a green belt of 66 feet of uncut timber at streams could do more harm than good.

Old trees could blow down, plugging the streams and tearing the banks.

The logging firms said there should be a selective cut, leaving alder, maple and small conifer trees.

"Rather than a policy of leaving strips of timber that will blow down, we feel it is prudent to log to the stream edge leaving those trees that can stand," the brief says.

GOOD FISHING

The Vedder River near Chilliwack and the Nanaimo River have both been logged to the edge in past and fishing is still good in both of them, the brief says.

The brief was presented today to the legislature committee on forestry and fisheries, which is studying the effects of new guidelines for the forestry industry.

The Truck Loggers Association called for a commission or judicial inquiry to determine forest management policy for the next 20 years.

The commission could help to sort out what the association called a three-way battle involving the forest service which wants timber cut, the fish and wildlife branch which isn't sure and the department of recreation which is opposed to timber cutting.

The brief says timber stands are more important to British Columbia than farms and timber harvest more important than harvest of agricultural crops.

Ottawa to Study U.K. Drug Plan

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Special to The Times

OTTAWA — Three federal drug experts will visit Britain next month, to study the advantages and disadvantages of that country's controversial heroin treatment program.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde made the announcement outside the Commons Tuesday, in response to reporters' questions about what the federal government intended to do about the recommendations in the just-finished LeDain Commission final report.

The LeDain recommendations were made public in newspaper reports Monday, even though the LeDain report will not be officially released until June.

Lalonde would only say he decided "recently" to send a mission of health department scientists to Britain. He also said that "we are not going to just sit on our fanny and wait for the report of the LeDain Commission" before taking independent steps to study the heroin problem.

In Britain, "designated" doctors can give heroin addicts legal heroin and methadone shots, as well as oral methadone.

The LeDain report, in recommending that Canada experiment with the British approach, "to see how it works," leaned heavily on conclusions about the British heroin treatment program.

the weather

The ridge of high pressure responsible for the good weather is being forced eastward by a succession of disturbances moving through the Gulf of Alaska and across the Alaska Panhandle. Thickening cloud has already spread over the north coast and rain is expected to begin there late today along with brisk south-easterly winds in exposed areas. The cloud from this weather system is expected to spread eastward and southward to cover most of the province Thursday. However, the precipitation is expected to remain mainly over the north coast and northern Vancouver Island.

Library Board Seeks Branch Library Defended

The Greater Victoria Library Board will ask the Capital Regional Board to regionalize library services as soon as possible.

Library director Donald Miller and Brian Tobin will attend the next CRDB meeting to present and explain a draft proposal on regionalization.

The draft suggests that administration be revamped.

The reorganized Greater Victoria Public Library would be administered by a library board appointed under part III and section 56A of the Public Libraries Act. The board would be composed of the chairman of the CRDB (or a member of the board) and other members chosen by the regional board or employees of the regional district.

It recommends that the library board be required to present to the CRDB a detailed estimate of the money required to operate the library system for the current year with the CRDB having the authority to either approve or disapprove the budget.

The draft states that the CRDB should apply for supplementary letters patent to assume the responsibility for provision of library services to Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Central Saanich and View Royal.

Before doing this, however, the draft says "consent of the municipalities would be required" and a referendum would be needed in View Royal.

Also, a decision would have to be made regarding ownership of library buildings, materials, furniture and fixtures. (At present the Oak Bay branch belongs to that municipality and the Saanich-Victoria branch to Saanich.)

The main library belongs to the "citizens of Greater Victoria" but the land is the property of the city.

Stating that regionalization would permit long-range planning and extension of services to View Royal, the draft notes:

"If it had not been for federal and provincial grants in 1971, there might still not be a branch library in Oak Bay and the Saanich branch might still be operating from inadequate rented quarters. The centennial branches should have been established years ago and it is likely they would have been if the library had been organized as a regional service."

Central Saanich Ald. Zachary Hamilton said regionalization of library services "would be just another spike in the regionalization thing".

He said the CRDB was "taking letters patent for everything under the sun. We (people in the rural areas) are looking askance at that."

His comments followed a report by Miller that "negative responses" had been received from the Vancouver Island Regional Library Board on suggestions for forming a Vancouver Island Public Library Action Group, use of the GVPL's reference department and co-operation in other fields.

"Their attitude seems to be we want to play the game our way. My response is that's fine, let's try it."

He said the VIL board is unwilling to discuss their services on the southern part of Vancouver Island without discussing their entire system.

The board, with the exception of Saanich Ald. Alan Newberry, voted to accept the invitation of VIL executive director Fred White for librarians from the Greater Victoria Public Library to meet those of the VIL for a workshop to be held at the Island Hall April 14 and 15.

Miller said it would cost be-

Children
Now Blind

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — An emergency campaign is under way in Bangladesh to save a generation from going blind. It means giving every child under 6 a dose of high-potency vitamin A, and Dr. Wade Kamel says it is succeeding.

Dr. Kamel, a public health specialist, estimates that 150,000 Bangladeshi children went blind from malnutrition in 1972.

Food distribution and health services were crippled by a cyclone in 1970, followed by the Pakistan-Indian war of December, 1971. Creation of the new country of Bangladesh resulted from the war.

The United Nations Children's Fund sent Dr. Kamel to Bangladesh last November to tackle the problem.

tween $400 and $450 to send 15 librarians to the workshop.

Newberry observed, "Here they say come up to Parksville for a weekend. I can't see it. Why should we send 15 librarians up to Parksville for a weekend?"

Miller said, "I tend to feel something like Ald. Newberry that maybe nothing (productive) would happen but I think we should give it a try."

In other business:

The board was told that staff members of Local 410, Canadian Union of Public Employees, had applied for mediation in their contract negotiations and mediator Clark Gilmour would start Friday.

The board asked Miller to produce a full analysis of three possible locations for a second branch in Saanich, giving rentals, renovations that would be needed and the space available.

One of them is in the University Heights shopping centre.

Newberry said, "I would suggest University Heights would be prepared to negotiate — they admitted that."

He suggested Miller contact the centre and ask what their bottom price would be. They are asking $5 a square foot, in addition to 40 cents a square foot for maintenance. The library would also have to cover costs for such things as floor coverings and light fixtures.

City representative Malcolm Anderson said he could not vote for this because it would be "putting the cart before the horse" when the city council had raised formal objections to the establishment of another branch in Saanich.

Board member Brian Tobin reported that, in the past two years, he and other representatives had met with the city council's finance committee to explain the budget, rather than the entire council.

Noting that the original plans were to build the Victoria-Saanich centennial branch as a replacement for quarters formerly rented in the Shelbourne shopping centre, and add an additional branch in the Gordon Head area later, Newberry added:

"I'm wondering whether they're saying they're now going back on their word. There's been some misunderstanding and misconceptions."

Miller said it was important that a decision on the library's proposed budget be made soon.

"We're a quarter way through the year. If the branch is not approved we should stop buying books for

Newberry said: "I make this motion (to meet with city council) in a great deal of hope. I'm quite confident that city council will reconsider its decision — we should hang in there."

It was assumed that the board would be able to meet with council at the council meeting scheduled for Thursday, April 5.

At its meeting Tuesday library director Donald Miller read a letter to the board in which the city council stated it "formally objected" to the $55,253 included in the budget for the new branch, stating that its objection was based on the need "to stabilize the operating budget for at least two years."

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 ounce unsweetened chocolate
3 tablespoons cream
1/2 cup icing sugar, sifted
1/2 cup golden brown sugar, lightly packed

Place butter, chocolate, brown sugar, Rogers' Golden Syrup and cream in a saucepan. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly; boil hard 2 minutes (until bubbles are large and glossy). Remove from heat and mix in icing sugar and marshmallows, stirring until melted. Immediately spread over top of cake, letting it drip down sides. Garnish with pecan or walnut halves. This is enough frosting for the top of an 8" or 9" layer cake or square cake, or a cake baked in a 10" tube pan.

B.C. Rail Changes

Premier Barrett, president of the B.C. Railway, Tuesday announced two administrative changes in the management of the railway.

J. S. Broadbent, who has been vice-president of the railway, becomes vice-president in charge of development and research.

M. C. Norris, who has been general manager, becomes vice-president in charge of operations.

PRESSURE EASES ON DOLLAR

LONDON (UPI) — Pressure on the dollar eased today and the U.S. currency held firm on the European money markets. One financial barometer, gold, dropped $1.25 an ounce following two days of brisk trading. (See also Page 45.)

In London the pound became slightly more expensive to buy with dollars though the changes were measured in fractions of a cent. It opened today at $2.48175, marginally higher than Tuesday's close. In early trading the dollar dropped by another 15 hundredths of a cent.

Bill 42 Delay Rejected

The Social Credit opposition in the legislature today moved an amendment which would delay second reading of Bill 42 for six months.

The amendment was moved by Ed Smith (SC-North Peace) who was winding up his participation in the second reading debate of the Land Commission Act. (See earlier debate on Page 45.)

After a fiery debate, the amendment was defeated, with the government crushing the combined opposition by a vote of 32 to 17. Debate then continued on the principle of Bill 42.

All three opposition parties expressed strong support for the amendment, but government spokesmen, including Premier Barrett, rejected it, saying it was designed as a "delaying tactic."

Barrett said the effect of the six-month delay would be "to let the subdivider go at it again."

Opposition leader W. A. C. Bennett rose for the first time during debate: "Don't shove this down the people's throats so quickly," he told the government.

If Barrett refuses a second look, "even his own members will know he is a dictator and will remove him from office," Bennett said, adding that in his public life he has never seen the people of the province so "aroused" about one particular piece of legislation.

The debate on the amendment was by far the most heated witnessed in this session of the legislature. Members shouted across the floor of the house, banged their desks to make their points, and speaker Gordon Dowding had to repeatedly call for order.

Gardie Gardom (L-Vancouver Point Grey) said what the government is doing is "practising closure."

"If we were governing this province," he said, "we would not bring in a lousy bill like this. We would consult with the general public." He urged the government "to conduct public hearings on the bill in accordance with the citizens' right to a 'fair hearing before the highest court of the province, which is this legislature."

"The premier is denying them their democratic rights," Gardom said.

WOUNDED KNEE 'ONLY START'

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Wounded Knee is only the beginning of overt Indian unrest that might result in similar incidents in Canada, a group of Indians who have returned from the South Dakota community said Tuesday.

Bob Atone, a leader of the London chapter of the American Indian Movement (AIM), said there are 4,000 Indians from all over North America in the towns surrounding Wounded Knee.

Those Indians are there to show support for the 250 Oglala Sioux inside the hamlet on the Pine Ridge Reserve, he said.

A group of 25 left London two weeks ago to observe the Wounded Knee situation.

In Wounded Knee, Indian moderates have ousted members of AIM who were leading the occupation. This apparently clears the way for a peaceful end to the four-week-old siege.

A less-militant group of Oglala Sioux is reported to have taken command in the historic settlement, seized Feb. 27 by a band of armed Indians demanding a better deal from the U.S. government.

South Dakota Senator James Abourezek, who has been in close touch with the situation, said the moderates want a meeting with the government in nearby Rapid City today.

Lawyer Ramon Boudreault said in Wounded Knee: "We could have terminated this problem earlier if it wasn't for the shenanigans of AIM, but AIM is out of it now."

Federal officials at the scene said they understood that Dennis Banks and Russell Means, two militant leaders of AIM, left Wounded Knee two days ago.

GUARD REMINDS HIM OF WIFE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A San Quentin prisoner filed suit Tuesday charging it is cruel and unusual punishment to have women guarding him, especially when one of them looks like his wife.

Lorraine Hand, 42, asked the U.S. District Court to find that employment of women guards subjects him to "cruel and unusual punishment in violation of the 8th Amendment to the United States Constitution."

The prison recently hired two women correctional officers, Bonnie Briggs and Wilma Snider, both of whom were named as defendants.

The prisoner said he has lost certain rights but personal modesty was not among them. He said his privacy is being invaded because the women guards watch him as he bathes and take care of his other personal needs.

"Defendant Snider is an almost exact duplicate of plaintiff's wife and when plaintiff sees this defendant he is reminded of the fact that he may not hold his wife and demonstrate his love to her," Hand said.

"By seeing defendant Snider, plaintiff is being subjected to deprivations of his past life and is subjected to what is tantamount to a carrot on a string in that he is able to see the defendants as women, but is unable to compete for their affections as such is totally against the rules."

Hand is serving a sentence of eight years to life for convictions of kidnap, rape and other offenses.

I'll Be Home Soon: Oppel

Times News Services

Lloyd Oppel will be back home in Courtenay in a few days, he told his father today in a phone call from Clark Air Base in the Philippines.

The 21-year-old missionary worked as a prisoner in Hanoi this morning by Laotian Communists, who have held him as a prisoner of war since Oct. 28.

Oppel's father, Magnus Oppel, said his son sounded fine. He said the call was so clear his son could have been telephoning from across the street.

Oppel Sr. said he tried to make a tape of the phone call for his wife, at present a patient in hospital in Comox, but there had been some technical difficulties with his equipment.

"Lloyd said he wanted to assure everyone, all his friends and those who cared that he was fine," the father said.

The young missionary was handed over in Hanoi to Frank Clark, Canadian chargé d'affaires in Manila, then flown to the U.S. air force base in the Philippines aboard a U.S. ambulance plane. He was accompanied by nine U.S. PoWs for whom he had conducted daily prayer services during their imprisonment.

Oppel, wearing a long mustache, stepped off the plane into bright sunshine with a big smile on his face and a longish shock of hair blowing freely in the wind. He looked thin and pale, but in good physical shape.

U.S. officials said Oppel was expected to undergo medical checks here and then was to fly by CP Air to Vancouver.

PHNOM PENH — Communist forces pushed to within 15 miles of Phnom Penh in fighting along Highway 1 today despite the 21st consecutive day of bombing raids by U.S. B-52 bombers and other warplanes.

In Washington, the White House said U.S. bombing would continue as long as Communists press their offensive in Cambodia, the only country in Southeast Asia with no formal ceasefire.

Cambodian military spokesman Col. Am Rong said Communists now occupy a 17-mile stretch of Highway 1, running from the strategic Mekong River navy base at Neak Luong to the plywood factory town of Dei Eth, 15 miles southeast of Phnom Penh.

Military sources in Phnom Penh said the U.S. bomber raids were the heaviest of the war in Cambodia and the closest to the capital itself.

The United States, the United States, were reluctant at first to bomb along Highway 1 because of the heavy population there, but relented later and made the area a priority target.

During the past two months, military sources said, Communist strategy has concentrated on cutting major supply routes into the capital and largely has grown to include a possible attack on Phnom Penh itself.

In Saigon, the U.S. neared

the end of its troop withdrawal from South Vietnam today with the departure of 19 jet transports filled with 1,800 GIs. U.S. involvement in Vietnam comes to an official end Thursday when the last 2,500 Americans including their commanding officer, Gen. Frederick Weyand, leave for the new British plan.

'Heroin Siberia' Urged

OTTAWA — When it comes to solutions for the heroin addiction problem in Canada, everybody — doctors, politicians, law enforcement officials, scientists, and self-appointed experts — seems to have an answer.

In British Columbia, where the problem rages most out of control, former B.C. Liberal leader Dr. Pat McGee reportedly suggested beefing up the RCMP drug squads and giving them the power to tap telephones of all those suspected of being involved in drug trade.

And heroin users, he added according to reports from the provincial legislature, should be shunted off to an isolated island community, free of drugs. Others in Canada have preferred the establishment of a Canadian Siberia for drug addicts.

The bodies of the two girls they tried to save were later found inside a burned house tied to a post.

Still in B.C., Socred MLA Don Phillips is reported to have called for "the firing squad" for convicted drug traffickers.

And it's all not in the realm of rhetoric. Dr. A. B. Morrison, head of the federal health protection branch, notes that Japan, among other countries, does in fact ship all its heroin addicts to an isolated island. As a consequence, Japan has very little of a heroin problem.

Members of the LeDain Commission on drugs have their own views on such seemingly-radical yet publicly-spoused "solutions" to the growing heroin problem.

One member of the commission, Ian Campbell, has a scheme of his own that has, an even more definite Orwellian ring to it: Place a slow-release pellet containing a narcotic antagonist deep in the thigh muscle of every heroin addict "without his consent."

The antagonist would be designed to counteract or block the pleasurable effects of the drug, and thereby reduce the incentive for the addict to stay on his heroin habit.

More than that, according to Campbell's scheme, the antagonist would be designed to last up to a year and to actually make the addict "sick as a dog" every time he tried to take heroin or a related narcotic.

Thus the ideal chemical antagonist would not only remove the reward of heroin, the "kick," but it would add some negative reinforcement, perhaps nausea and stomach pains.

There are some problems, both technical and social, and Campbell admits them. The LeDain Commission, as part of its studies, has uncovered some others.

The first problem is that as yet such an ideal antagonist does not exist, nor does it seem on the visible horizon.

The respected Addiction Research Foundation Journal recently reported that the United States has launched a multi-million dollar, high-priority research program to develop such an antagonist.

And clinical tests are already under way in the U.S. on a promising antagonist, called Levo BC-2605, originally developed by Bristol Laboratories in Canada.

Levo BC-2605 only lasts a few months, which is considerably longer than anything else now in use. But it only blocks the heroin "high"; it does not produce unpleasant side-effects. But the chemist may find such an antagonist for Campbell around the next corner in the next few years.

Guns, Bombs Shatter Ulster Lull

Times News Services

BELFAST — Shooting and bombing have returned to Northern Ireland on a large scale, ending a brief lull coinciding with Britain's presentation last week of its proposals for Ulster's future.

Numerous explosions rocked Belfast and Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second largest city, Tuesday.

A British soldier was killed when an armored car was blown up by a 500-pound mine on a country road.

The Irish Republican Army's militant Provisional wing later claimed responsibility for the explosion.

The army said he was spotted pointing a weapon at a military foot patrol.

Belfast police sources said today they were tightening a dragnet around two girls who lured a group of British soldiers to their apartment with promises of a party, and the gunmen who machine-gunned three of the soldiers to death when they arrived.

PHOTO RELEASED

Two of the soldiers died instantly and a third died in hospital, victims of the three and a half years of violence between minority Roman Catholics, majority Protestants and security forces that has so far claimed 761 lives. Three of those victims were killed Tuesday.

Troops and police swooped down on several homes in Roman Catholic areas throughout the city in the last 24 hours in the search for information on the party murders, and police released the photograph of a third girl they wanted to interview.

"She is aged 30 and has an oriental face," a police spokesman said. "She is not one of the girls who lured the soldiers to the apartment but she can help us."

Williams said the policy change will be effective immediately. All crown grants issued for lands acquired for agricultural purposes "will contain a restrictive covenant that will preclude redevelopment for non-agricultural use," he said.

The new policy will parallel the principle behind the Land Commission Act, Williams said, and will ensure that crown lands suitable for agricultural use will be used in the future for farming and not for commercial, industrial or urban development.

This is a further attempt by the government to ensure that the dwindling agricultural land resources of the province will continue to be available for agricultural production to those generations to follow us," Williams said.

A party council meeting voted 340 to 231 for acceptance as recommended by Brian Faulkner, party leader and former prime minister.

It was clear that the delegates were not in complete accord with the British proposals, which call for an election by proportional representation of a new assembly to replace the Unionist-dominated parliament suspended by Britain a year ago.
